The Junior School reception will be held in the Recreation Center (old gym) and will be a masquerade. It is requested that anyone who cannot possibly wear a costume will at least wear a mask. The chairman of the party are Mary Wisburn and Lois Nosbitt. They are planning several games, a Virginia Reel, and of course there will be social dancing. There will be entertainment by some of the students whose names have not yet been divulged.

BOYS' COOKING CLUB

Welsh Earlebit was the dish prepared by the Boys' Cooking Club this week. They are planning to learn to cook foods enough so that they can prepare simple meals by themselves. The Boy Scouts in this group expect to get help toward their merit badges from this club.

GIRL SCOUTS PLAN COMMUNITY SERVICE

The girl scouts of Troop 20, in Milne, held their entire meeting on last Friday to swing things for Community Service, which will be given to Mrs. Margaret's Home or the Brady Nursery Home.

Among the articles made, there were bibs, rompers and oilcloth animals. Each girl also cut blocks of material which she later sewed together to make a quilt for the children. As the articles have not yet been finished, the scouts will continue with their work this Friday.

CIVICS CLASSES
NEAR ADDRESSES

Novel homework is being given to the ninth grade social science classes in civics. They listen to talks over the radio given by prominent people in the government. These talks furnish material for discussions during class periods.

BARNYARD FOWLS SEEK EDUCATION

Have you noticed Albany High School's new agriculture department? The neighbors are trying their luck at raising chickens in a fenced-off portion of ground between Milne and the high school. This is to the delight of the Milne pupils on the west side of the building.

The chickens have even proved themselves clever and intelligent. Someone put up the fence. However, it is so high that the chickens cannot possibly fly over. Nevertheless, when they see something that they desire outside the enclosure, they slyly look around to see if anyone is watching and then cautiously slip under the fence. If the chickens see anyone coming to chase them they calmly turn and wriggle back where they belong.

The question bothering many dignified students is: how much intelligence will these birds absorb from the school, on either side of them?
GOOD MORNING SHERLOCKS!!!

For our victim this week we have selected a ninth grader. He usually wears a dark blue suit. This person is a very dear friend of Professor Ixnay's. The subject of the sketch has dark brown hair, and what do you know! "Wild Alfred" Wheeler scared the class half out of its wits by bringing in a basket containing that ferocious and carnivorous beast of the cat family, known as the kitten. Meanwhile "Dancing Dick" Andrews took up a collection in class for a salamander.

Now that we're all in some club the question before us is, "Are we making the most of the opportunities of this club?" To do this we must cooperate fully with our supervisors, officers, and last but not least, our fellow members. Many clubs are planning assembly programs, parties, and the like, as their activities for the year. If your club's up to par? If it isn't, remember, the responsibility rests on you.

NAMES--WHENCE COME THEY?

After hearing some of the nicknames used in Milne, it is probable that many are wondering about their origin. The Crimson and White, starting this week, will do its best to help enlighten the student body. Investigation shows...

George Farrington--"Farry"--One glance at his last name reveals the reason. If there is any other source, the writer would like to be informed.

NARRATIVE

The ninth grade biology classes, which held their daily meetings in room 320, are now becoming jungle fanatics.

For the last few weeks, they have been studying the methods which animals use in taking food. Several contributions have been made in order to show these methods.

One boy brought one of these wierd, prehistoric monsters, the fr. Billy Saunders brought in a rattlesnake so large that he was almost compelled to take it home again. It was nearly three inches long. Billy's "rattler" is now missing; it is believed he is hiding behind the front left foot.

Now that we're all in some club...
