Scheduling was under adverse conditions at the opera's removal out and about being cleared to play. As everyone knows, the scheduling controversy stems from the fact that our basketball team was invited to the NCAA regionals based on our "weekend" schedule. This problem, not only in the present, but in recent times, has been caused by the timing of our games. The present regionals are currently on the business side of the NCAA and the present schedule is in conflict with our current scheduling practices, while the present schedule is in conflict with the present schedule of the regionals. The present schedule is also in conflict with the present schedule of the regionals, which has caused a lot of concern.

Although our basketball team has been successful recently, another question about high-powered scheduling must be considered. How far can we go without athletic scholarships? Our team has always been known for its high-powered scheduling and this has led to a lot of controversy. The problem appears to be providing a means of finding the right balance between the number of contests and the scheduling of the contests. This would call for a reorganization, and revitalization of the schedule, but such a move might not be such a bad idea.

As the competition for outstanding students increases and the University is in a position to offer athletic scholarships, the University will expand and the sportscast will increase.

DEAN O. WILLIAM PERLMUTTER, director of the Alumni Association, said that the "role of the Social Scientist and the athlete in the science of society." He said that "the role of the Social Scientist and the athlete in the science of society." The Alumni Association's function is to provide a means of finding the right balance between the number of contests and the scheduling of the contests. The present schedule is not the right balance between the number of contests and the scheduling of the contests. This would call for a reorganization, and revitalization of the schedule, but such a move might not be such a bad idea.

As for the present schedule, it is generally agreed among the students that the present schedule is not the right balance between the number of contests and the scheduling of the contests. Mead Reverses Position On Marriage In Two Steps

(COLUMBIA STUDENTS) Anthropologist Margaret Mead, who has been a leader in the marriage reform movement, has reversed her position and now advocates marriage in two steps, a new approach that she believes will lead to a more stable and satisfying relationship for both sexes.

The new approach, known as the "Myth of Marriage," is based on the idea that it is not enough to simply marry and then assume all the responsibilities of marriage. Instead, Mead suggests that couples should take responsibility for their own lives and relationships, and that marriage should be seen as a partnership rather than an ownership.

Mead's previous stance, which advocated for the concept of "two goals" in marriage, has been widely criticized by many in the field of marriage studies. However, her new position is being welcomed by some as a more realistic approach to the complexities of modern marriage.

Tomorrow at your 8 A.M. class, don't just sit there.

We know. Morning just isn't your time to be. But there's one thing we know: You're not going to go to class. You might as well not even try. But the fact is, you have to be there. And you can't just sit there. You have to do something. So do something. Maybe it's just a quick note or two. Maybe it's a few pages of reading. Maybe it's a question for the professor. Whatever it is, do something. Don't just sit there. Because the last thing you want is to be left behind.
In recent months, starting regularly vandalism occurred on the University campus. While some of this, and even a large part, may perhaps be the destructive work of outsiders to the University Community, we find it impossible to believe that it was done by university students.

It is reported that the thesis reached a high point in December and January, with the most vandalism occurring in the last few weeks. On the latter issue, we wonder if there may be a correlation with certain campus activities. If there may be a correlation with certain campus activities, it makes it seem that vandalism may not be as nonchalant as it seems.

Some rather amazing occurrences in both categories have come to light. Some papers have been defaced and stolen from the Campus Center along with numerous art works. The art works have been cut out of the papers, and even the cost for repair in this $300,000 is estimated at $250. A student who had his nose when he uses the stairway floor.

Exposure to various minority groups and their problems, in addition to the integration of these groups in the white society, is a necessary part of education. In this University sociology, we are one of these groups that are not exposed—the Negro.

The student, after four years returns to his community, but we will have greater knowledge of the Negro's problems, and, for those who live in communities where few, if any, Negroes reside, he will be as aware as when he began, of the problems facing the community in relation to the Negro. We feel that this awareness must be absorbed and reversed.

A new group has formed in campus, so we don't see that it's a necessary change. We have a purpose which is to educate the white community as to why they may decide to get involved in a more understanding relationship with Negroes.

Stink

Every so often, some academicism is decentralized by the print of garbage when we enter the winter way. In front of the Campus Center, a large bone is visible. It arises from the building, and is not necessary to the atmosphere of the place. It is supported on the second floor.

The stink, Food Service.

When a university can boast of a perfect parking job on campus, it is a mark of the popularity of that university. The University of Iowa has a perfect parking job on campus. Intermedia '68 Revives After Poor Beginning

by Robert B. Cotter

THEATER

Intermedia '68 was all thatIntermediates expected it to be. Since the beginning, the members of the group have worked hard to establish a successful arts-oriented group. Though this year's performance was not a complete sellout, it was still successful to a large extent.

The event was held in the Art Gallery at 8 p.m. on Thursday, December 13, 1968. The gallery was packed with people, many of whom had been waiting in line for hours. The performance lasted for about two hours and included a variety of artistic forms, such as poetry readings, dance performances, and music.

The performance started with a reading by Diane di Prima, a well-known poet. Her performance was followed by a dance piece choreographed by Thang Long, a dancer who has performed with several well-known groups. The dance was accompanied by music played on the organ by Robert Wallace, a skilled organist who has played at several major events.

The next segment of the performance was a reading by Robert Wallace, who read selected works from his new book, "Let the People Come." This piece was well-received by the audience, who showed their appreciation with applause.

The final segment of the performance was a dance piece performed by Thang Long. The dance was set to music played by Robert Wallace, and it was a beautiful conclusion to the evening. The audience was left with a sense of satisfaction and excitement, knowing that Intermedia '68 will continue to bring innovative and exciting events to the University of Albany.

Potter Club Sweeps Wins Decisively In I&II

Potter Club teams routed easy wins Tuesday night in both the League I and the League II championship games. Amazingly both of the winning teams were forced into playoffs before winning their championships, but the three teams were able to complete top teams in either league. In League I action Potter combined a hustling, alert defense with some spurt by a few individuals to sweep the Intramural rival Buffalo with 24-9 and 19-8 victories. In the League II championship game, also played Tuesday night, Potter defeated a strong team in a 34-7 victory.
