Dane trackmen run away with eighth in states

By Ian Clements

The Albany State men's indoor track team finished a disappointing season with a sound overall performance but finished sixth in the State Championships at Cortland.

Despite advance on promotion of their own, the Dartmouth and Harvard teams were the victors as the Jim Hanks Memorial Carnival at Smithtown hosted by the University at Albany.

The team was led by senior Michael Schaffer, who won the 1500 meters with a time of 4:03.

"It felt like a few things," said Schaffer, "and I thought I had stopped it." Afterwards, he came back from behind.

"I wanted Schaffer to qualify for the meet," said Head Coach Bob Bower, "but he didn't make the cut." Schaffer's time was 4:08.7.

The men's relay team also qualified for the meet.

"I won't comment on the results," said Bower, "but I think we did well." The team's time was 3:31.4.

The women's team also qualified for the meet, with a time of 3:55.0.

"It was a great performance," said Head Coach Bob Bower, "but we need to work on some things." The team's time was 3:55.0.

Protestors killed

(AP) At least 14 black protesters were killed in South Africa, near the Indian Ocean port city of Uitenhage, in an effort to balance the president's hegemony over the country in memory or the 69 blacks demonstrating in the industrial province last week. The police spokesman said the situation in the province, which took effect for the first time during the past 25 years, is still tense.

Budget talks halted

Albany State budget talks for Gov. Mario Cuomo and the Assembly Speaker Stanley Fink, D-Bay Shore, were deadlocked Wednesday night, Democrat Cuomo said he was "out of patience" after two months of negotiations. "We still see some students who are not satisfied with the way students are treated in the classroom." said O'Leary, adding that he was "very happy that Gordon was returned to the job."

Advisement study results argued

A study of advisement at the University of Albany, sponsored by the Center for Academic Advisement, John Webb, Dean of the School of Social Science, reported a call for a report to the Legislature next week, the commission declined to recommend improvements.

Leak causd found

A leak was found in the air conditioning system at the University of Albany, and the decision was made to close the building. The problem is not serious. The building is expected to be closed for the rest of the day.

Students rally in Washington in national protest of aid cuts

By Bryan Weitzman
The United Students Students Association (USSA) kicked off its national campaign to fight against President Reagan's proposed cuts in federal education funds with a rally in Washington Monday night. The roulette board of Proposal B's proposed cuts was the driving force behind the rally's attendance of around 200 from throughout the state. "We are here to demand that the cuts be stopped," said O'Brien, a SUNY New Paltz student.

"We are not talking about a student going to Harvard instead of Buffalo," he added. "We are talking about students not going to college at all."

Chairman of the rally, a member of SUNY New Paltz, was asked to stand up and tell students that "we have a new President, and he is going to cut education." In response, a student from New York University stood up and asked the chairman, "Are we going to stand up and tell the President that we'll fight the cuts?"

"We will do exactly that," the chairman replied.

"Reagan is going to cut education, but not in New York," the student added.

The rally was held at the Senate Fax, a building on Capitol Hill that has been used several times by the US Senate in the past.

"We are here to demand that the cuts be stopped," said O'Brien. "We are here to demand that the President listen to us." He added that "we are going to stand up and tell the President that we will fight the cuts." "We are not going to sit back and let him cut education," he said.

The rally was attended by several members of Congress, including Senator Alfonse D'Amato, Representative Gary Ackerman, and Representative Charles G. Brown. "We are here to demand that the cuts be stopped," said O'Brien. "We are going to stand up and tell the President that we will fight the cuts." Prof finds Greens party of a different color

By Bill Jacob

As the reality of the term Green swept through Albany State, a political expert now says that the party will probably not last, but it was significant as far as what St. Patrick's Day brings is concerned.

The information comes to us from political science Professor Carl F. Landowski of the Albany State University, who said that the party represents a new, different perspective in politics in Albany State.

"It is not that the party is doing anything wrong," he said. "It is simply that the party represents a new perspective in politics in Albany State." The party, he said, has a "new, different perspective in politics in Albany State." The party has a "new, different perspective in politics in Albany State," he said.

The party began in a present moment, where the Greens included the building of a political environment which perceived to the environment. Landowski said that the Greens argue that the governmen, has not tried to prevent the environment and environmentalism, such as expansion political.

The party was also supported by the German political parties, but government in Germany, they have not yet deployed in Europe. However, the Greens are being considered by other countries. It is al-

‘Miranda’ warnings misleading due to several common myths

Sarah, a sophomore at SUNY, is stopped by a security guard after leaving Price Chopper. The guard thinks Sarah has stolen an item from Price Chopper. The police arrive and place Sarah under arrest.

True or False?

1. If the police never read [the Miranda] warnings to an arrestee, is it possible that an arrestee could later successfully challenge the legality of the arrest?

2. If the ‘Miranda’ warnings weren’t read, an arrestee might be able to sue Price Chopper to get back the stolen item.

3. If Sarah confesses to the police that she took the item from Price Chopper, she should plead guilty when she appears in court.

4. (For the answer to this question, read on, or look at the end of the article if you can’t wait.)

If you volunteer information to the police that is relevant to the case, you may be better off sharing it.

Ramaley discusses scientific images

By Johanna Rayburn

"The way we look at the world is how we create it. And how we create it is how we react to the world. Then find out each other," said the President of Academic Affairs, Mark S. Misner, and the President of Academic Affairs, William J. Turco.

Friends of the Library's first annual Ramaley is a speech entitled "Scientific Discovery: What is it and how is it used?". The audience was captivated by the speaker's insights and the scientific images she shared.

"A small group of friends and friends of the library joined together in a brainstorming session," said Turco. "During the brainstorming session, the group decided to create a series of public lectures with Ramaley at the center." Ramaley agreed and the popular technology of the digital image is the way scientists present their research.

Ramaley cited images from various sources, including art, science, and music. She discussed the way scientists think about the world, using images to convey their ideas. Ramaley also described the challenges scientists face when trying to share their research with the public.

"I hope that my lecture helps people understand the importance of scientific images," said Ramaley. "I hope it激发s curiosity and encourages people to think about the world in new ways."

Life long learners ease the transition of returning students' entry to SUNYA

By Pam Schultzerman

Life Long Learners, a new 5A funded service, started in the fall to help and direct process of returning adult students.

According to Kim Farrel, Student Affairs Coordinator, this service received an emerging 5A funds in September, and the group began.

The combination of returning adult student 16-24 years old registered at SUNYA Mrs. Farrel, and those students need special support.

"Quite logically, the needs of these students differ from that of a traditional student," she said, "They often have the same problems and issues, but need help with how to go about it."

Mrs. Farrel explained that many of these students are going to SUNYA for second chances, and time on campus. "They often take more classes and are forced to take courses in order to explore the services and activities offered," she said.

"It was important that all academic classes were open," Mrs. Farrel said, indicating that it cost SUNYA some financial aid loss. The service offers these returning students advancement on academic standing, skills, and access to knowledgeable professors. Mrs. Farrel explained, "We have a resource person to focus, where the students come to be re-advised." She added that the former core classes and help these students get in touch with others.

The group's goal is to hold together as a traditional student group. Mrs. Farrel, because the people included their own personalome. "They can not work together at any normal 5A activity, and they need a meeting place at SUNYA."

Summer Sessions '85

State University of New York at Albany

Make-Summer Sessions '85 a part of your summer! Think about it — our short, intensive sessions let you move ahead in your studies. You could even graduate early. Give us eight weeks and you'll earn a full year of laboratory science credits. Or work off some general education requirements in three- or six-week sessions. Whatever your preference, we're offering some of the most popular courses in nearly all disciplines. And the best part is, summer classes are smaller and our facilities — like computer user rooms and tennis courts — are much less crowded. You'll enjoy summer in the Capital District. Pack a lunch and take off for the New York City Ballet, the Saratoga races, an Albany-Colonie Yankees game, or a SPAC concert. There's the Red Jass Festival, too. Or spend a day in the sun around the University's fountain.

The Courses
Scheduled courses include entry requirements for several majors, including business, computer science, criminal justice, and social welfare. And summer is the perfect time to fulfill general education requirements. Many courses open only to majors during regular terms are open to anyone during the summer. This summer we will be offering more courses than ever before. Pick up a Summer Schedule of Courses for a complete list of courses. Talk to your advisor, or call 455-6129 for more details.

Easy Registration
Register for Summer Sessions during Early Registration when you register for fall semester and follow the same procedures. Ask your advisor for details.

Rabbi tells of business ethics

By Andrea Consun

The first question asked of man in the world to come, according to the Talmud, a Hebrew oral tradition, is: "Are you honest in business?" said Rabbi Moshe Bomzer, who spoke on the topic of "Money and the Ethics of Jewish Business" on Friday night.

Business has worked with students on different college campuses for over fifteen years, teaching, he said, courses on how to be honest about the Jewish religion. The basic two dignities in psychology, a master in Jewish philosophy, and one in Jewish as well.

"A judge who pervades justice is called an angel, a saint, and honest," he explained, and "One cannot do business with business judgment unless one sees that the other man is honest, too." The business is a judge.

"It's the reason why we must make sure that we can conduct their business in a straightforward manner," Bomzer said.

"What business ethics are answered business ethics and "what's good for the goose is good for the gander."

Bomzer said that when dealing with business judgment there must be an understanding that the business is a judge.

"If you don't do it, then you can't conduct your business in a straightforward manner," Bomzer said.

One cannot be holy in the synagogue, a thief in a house, said Bomzer, and hypocrite in the market. "What you do on the inside must be done on the outside," he said.

All business ethics have a "respective lawfulness," in some degree, whether it be monopolistic tricks or a conspiracy between management and labor, said Bomzer. He spoke of Jewish business ethics covering many years, some of which involved collusions between labor and management.

Bomzer told of one Jewish man's "collusion." The man, Bomzer said, and some others who in order to get people to buy them to be found other places, that they would buy their stock in a hundred thousand dollars. They would then go up to the price of gopher fish, knowing that the fish were all going to be bought by the Jodls. Bomzer said.

A rabbi, who knew that the Jodls couldn't afford to buy the fish, prohibited using the fish and as a result the prices went down.

According to Bomzer, most all Jewish businesses were unprofitable. He described a case in which an extremely rich Jewish man ran an automobile business and had somehow overcharged them, he said.

Due to the business's honesty it was overcome by the amount of customers and ultimately he began running the store, he said. When he told customers to pay on the street, he said, he was told customers to do what was expected of them. That led to a loss of competition and the only customers were the Jewish business owners and employees.

"That is despicable," he said, and "it's morally, there is no difference between violence by fist and abuse by fraud." He also told the group "morally, there is no difference between violence by fist and abuse by fraud.

"And leave the driving tons.'" Bomzer said.

"Frosty Fugs" 可能 after graduating last year, and is what promising to be a major attraction. "Frosty Fugs" will be run by the brothers coming in from all over the country to be in the "funeral business" as the head of their Telethon family plan to sing the concert.

From 6:30 to 9:30 Friday night, they will be filled, said Dorf, with the use of the four cameras. "The Telethon audience will begin as soon as the audience members are cleared out. The show will be followed by several local stations on Friday.

Starting around 3 a.m. Saturday, "Late Night Movie" will be played. From 7 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday, the Tape is to be played on the main floor.

And, meeting at 12:30 a.m. on Monday, they will be meeting in the "Frosty Fugs" room for four hours, finishing their three hours on the third floor.

Dorf said that one of the greatest attributes of people who come to help Telethon includes being friendly and the college students who come up from the New York City to help, he said, but that the one was conspicuous in the Jewish people.

"The University is also picking up at the university level," he said. "As the students are at great risk in the event of something.

Dorf said the Friday and Saturday's event was just the first of a long series of events by the "Frosty Fugs" staff. Voting with a "Florida Mariner" Tournament in September, activities have included Rock-and-Roll Wednesdays, Dancer Champions, SHINE Olympics, and more.

Don't sit there—Get involved!!

The University is also pitching in with some of the activities as well, he said, that all students can attend at a markup of the event.

Conviction rate in marital rape higher than 80 percent, says X

By James O'Sullivan

"It happens more often than we think," said the scene on the TV screen, which was providing the only source of light in the Lower Campus hall.

The 350 people in the room were about to the women, and often with similar stories, were interviewed in part of an oral history documentary on Marital Rape.

According to the show, the woman on the TV feed in Philadelphia, and even though her husband had raped her 11 times for five years, she could not prove it because Pennsylvania law would not allow women to get a restraining order against their partners.

To date, Pennsylvania is one of 26 states that do not have a specific marital rape statute.

In many of the other 24 states, marital rape can be charged only if the rape occurred during an assault or battery on the part of the husband or other rape charges.

"We believe that the state should enact a marital rape statute," said X, the executive director and founder of the National Clearinghouse on Marital Rape, applauded this fact.

"We need to be able to prove marital rape in court," said X, the executive director and founder of the National Clearinghouse on Marital Rape, applauded this fact.

"It's a very difficult statute to prove," said X, adding that "we believe that the state should enact a marital rape statute."

All American Mercurio envisions final season

By Rachel Hirt

Like most track and field athletes, Mercurio isn't worried about the upcoming season's outcome. Instead, he is very pleased with his personal, state and national successes.

Mercurio has long been known as the top hammer throw athlete in the county. He was named All American Mercurio in 1983 and has continued to excel since then.

The All American title comes as a surprise to Mercurio, who says he was most surprised by the All American title last year. He attributes this success to his hard work and dedication to the sport.

Mercurio says his performance at nationals last year is what earned him the All American title. He credits his coach, Rick Pardey, and his training partners, Bob and Bobbie, for helping him achieve this goal.

The All American title is a prestigious honor that is awarded to the top athletes in the country. Mercurio is thrilled to have earned this title and is looking forward to competing at the national level again this year.

Mercurio says his goals for this season are to improve his personal best, qualify for the national championships, and help his team to success.

'The All American title is a great accomplishment, and I am looking forward to competing at the national level again this year. I am excited to see what I can achieve this season, and I am determined to work hard to achieve my goals. I want to improve my personal best, qualify for the national championships, and help my team to success. I am looking forward to the challenges ahead and to seeing what I can achieve.'

Mercurio's dedication and hard work have been recognized by his coach, Rick Pardey, who says he is a great athlete and a great teammate. Pardey says Mercurio has a great attitude and is a very hard worker.

Mercurio says his coach, Rick Pardey, has been a great influence on his training and development. He says Pardey has helped him achieve his goals and has been a great mentor.

Mercurio says his training partners, Bob and Bobbie, have also been a great influence on his training. He says they have been a great support system and have helped him achieve his goals.

Mercurio says his personal best is 179 feet 6 inches, and he hopes to improve this this season. He says his team is looking forward to seeing what he can achieve this season.
Dear Dad,

Today I ran a personal best of 9.02. I call them the spring blues to take your mind off the snow outside. We are both looking forward to the day when the track meets will start. I am not fast enough to make the team, but I am determined to improve my times. I want to make you proud.
