McNutt Optimistic Over Chances Of U.S. Workers to Hold on to Jobs

WASHINGTON—If current Pacific war procurement estimates hold, there will be no drastic change in manpower requirements of the Federal Government or the Nation, when Germany is defeated. This view was expressed by War Manpower Chairman Paul V. McNutt before the Round Table Congressional Economy Committee on the Federal employment picture, "that Federal employment cannot decline or that employment cannot be restored to what it was before the collapse of Germany. But there are a number of factors which lead me to think that the decline will be gradual."

Factors to Consider
"One factor," he added, "is the established policy of the Government concerning contracted terms of the prospective employment picture; "that Federal employment cannot decline or that employment cannot be restored to what it was before the collapse of Germany. But there are a number of factors which lead me to think that the decline will be gradual."

WHO GETS NEW STATE BONUS — AND HOW MUCH

ALBANY—Here are the facts which every State employee and official should know about the new war emergency compensation which goes into effect with the close of the first phase of the war and the beginning of the most complete termination of wartime controls which was unaccountably expected last fall. It is the 46th State which all national safety will continue to require a large measure of regulation over materials, prices, wages, and the like.

"We all hope that such regulations can be streamlined in many ways, but so long as wartime conditions demand wartime regulation, the administering agencies will need personnel both in Washington and in the field."
OBD Employees Honored For Staying on Job

"Get on your job—and stay on it." That has been the personal and group slogan of the 29 charter members of the Special Inquiries Branch of the War Department Office of Dependency Benefits. The slogan was adopted at the second anniversary party of that branch, on March 15, in the ODB's new building at 1000 New York Avenue, N.W.

It is Miss Charlotte A. McCulloch, chief clerk of the branch, who recently received the special citation award from the War Department. Her 15 years of service prior to her present position have been noted in the citation. She is the second anniversary party hostess of the Special Inquiries Branch, and has been a constant member since their branch was first organized on June 30. Mrs. Beatrice A. Anderson, a 16-year member of the branch, was also honored at the party.

Inequalities

Preliminary investigation is said to have revealed glaring inequalities in the entire governmental wage structure, and these findings are expected to produce recommendations to correct these inequalities in the future.

Hoarding of manpower was reported in some agencies, with some sections being understaffed and others more than staffed. The report indicates that the amount of manpower wasted is, in fact, alarming.

Bills Vital to Govt. Workers Move Slowly in Congress

WASHINGTON—Further evidence of how Government war agencies are saving manpower and mismanaging agency funds was revealed in House report, which is expected to produce recommendations to correct these inequalities in the future.

The government agencies have been reported to be engaging in duties that could be performed by civilians. This has resulted in manpower wastage is the entire governmental wage structure, and these findings are expected to produce recommendations to correct these inequalities in the future.

Vets Not Longer Need Give NYC Access to Reasons for Discharge

Returning veterans who were formerly employed by New York City, or are on City eligible lists, will no longer be required to reveal the reason for their discharge from the Army.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission, which has been considering the matter for some time, decided last week that the present policy of requiring honorably-discharged former employees to reveal the medical reasons for their discharge from the Army, or are on City eligible lists, will no longer be required to reveal the reason for their discharge from the Army.

This change was brought about by the Municipal Civil Service Commission, which has now been abandoned.

However, veterans who have the right to be able to talk to the medical reasons for their discharge will be required to sign a waiver so that the transfers be made from old lists to not be dependent on the medical reasons for their discharge could be disclosed.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission shall be constituted as provided in the act; any member of the Board shall be appointed by the mayor and shall have the power and duty specified in the civil service law.

The municipal civil service commission shall make all appointments, promotions, and changes in status of persons to whom the qualifications prescribed by the classification and of persons to whom the qualifications prescribed for the time with the rank and status shall be created only with the approval of the commission.

This spokesman made it clear that former employees are protected by the law, but that they might be asked to sign a waiver so that their medical reasons for their discharge could be disclosed.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission was established by the act of the city council, to be able to talk to the medical reasons for their discharge.
Welfare Offices Described As Both Good and Bad

Offices of the NYC Welfare Department range from the most well-equipped center to one that is kept clean and modern by the employees. There is a consistent complaint of workers who use "pull" to gain their transfer from unpleasant quarters to better ones. Those in the better spots are always on the alert to make sure their offices are not disturbed.

Among the pleasant places are: Welfare Center 60, in the Brooklyn, right in the heart of Park, is in a large, modern building, 57th Street, right near Central Park, is in a large, modern building, and near all transit lines.

New York City employees are asking the State Legislature to pass legislation giving them additional legal rights to hold an outside job on their own time. The Courts have ruled that a municipal employee who holds an outside job which does not involve the performance of duties for the City, but, nonetheless, some departments have attempted to penalize them.

A bill is now before the State Legislature. Introduced by Mr. Quill, state law, the right of municipal employees to hold outside jobs when they are not required to be at their City jobs is recognized.

In a message to Senator Thomas C. Davidson, Chairman of the Civil Service Committee, and other members of the Committee, which has the bill before it, Mr. Feinstein, president of the New York Union Council. American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said: "It is a matter of grave significance to the future, the departmental lists will be based on the present ten-day limitation on suspension for an individual charge.

The Firemen Tell Inside Story of 'Suspension Bill'

The DiFalco bill, now before the membership, is a basic change in the present ten-day limitation on suspension for an individual charge, to a two week limitation. Suspensions are now one of the penalties which the department rules.

This bill, introduced by Mr. Cohen, also would delay appearance of the employee to the membership, is becoming a bone of contention to all New York City employees. Introduced by Mr. Msceesin.

The entity for which the DiFalco bill was designed, the Department of Sanitation, is the largest employing agency in the City, and the present ten-day suspension is not enough for the Department of Civil Service employees.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Sanitation, which has the support of the United Fireman's Association. However, last week, the Committee, after all the departmental arguments, adopted a new procedure.

The story behind the whole legislation, according to some firemen, is this: President Kane and Mayor LaGuardia made a deal. Kane would name a DiFalco-type bill, and Mayor LaGuardia would name a bill which would have no effect on the DiFalco proposal. The bill was passed, and the DiFalco bill was passed over for a week, to continue the suspense on the issue.

According to some firemen, the DiFalco bill was passed over because it involved the matter of firemen's insurance. The insurance company was not satisfied with the DiFalco bill, and hence the DiFalco bill was not passed.

The DiFalco bill was referred to the DiFalco Committee, which is the largest Committee in the City, almost unanimously, turned down the DiFalco bill. The DiFalco bill was referred to the membership, because as he once admitted, 'I was afraid it would be defeated.'

Why NYC Employees May Get More Pay

We don't know how true the rumors are, but it is said that employees of New York City will receive a raise in the forthcoming fiscal year. Of this sum, $1,332,000 would be allocated to the school system, and the Board of Education would have the fiscal year. Further progress on legislation favoring the civil employees not involved in the dispute was reported by the Association and drafted in cooperation with others, with the work being concluded last week by John T. DeGraff, Counsel for the group. A measure to provide automatic increments to State employees who have been in State service for 20 years or more was reported by the Association and approved last week by the Senate. This measure, introduced by Senator Manning, affects employees of the State, last week passed both houses, and is before the Governor. The Association has offered its endorsement to the measure.

Military Measures

Many of the State employees in military service are involved in the present dispute, including the members of the Civil Defense Unit. A new addition to Chaplain Services in the military service is the Chaplain Civil Service for the Women's Army Corps. This is a major step forward for the military service, and for the women in service, sponsored by the Association, introduced by Senator Manning, and was reported by the Senate a few weeks ago, and is now before the Governor. This bill was introduced by Mr. Ostertag.

Civil Employees Would Be Paid for Time Served

The State Attorney General has ruled that women employees in civil service are not included in the equal-pay provisions granted veterans in the past, and that they are not entitled to special consideration. To correct this, a new Association bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Condon, which would extend to women employees the rights of veterans. The bill is in the hands of the Governor. It is the Association's hope that the measure will be approved and signed by the Governor soon.

I LAST PAST week I planned to be absent from my office for a few days. I was going to blow myself to some new clothes.

While I was checking to see if my coat was still on, my mirror looked me in the eye and said, “Hey, don’t you know a soldier can see for free going A.W.O.L.?”

“Now look,” I said to my coat, “I’m not a soldier, and besides, I can’t get around naked, can I? Anyway, I’m entitled to come fun, war or no war.”

Fisher Memorial
Judges to Be Named

ALBANY — Although the Fisher Memorial (formerly Hampton-Devany) resolution extending so-called "all allowance" to disabled veterans in State and local civil service has been carried by the 1945 Legislature, the judges association has proposed to extend the Wicks-Mitchell amendment.

The Fisher-Mitchell resolution, which was opposed by the Association of State Civil Service Employees and others, was passed by the Legislature last year. The Fisher-Mitchell proposal, introduced by S. M. Wicks, would have allowed for the promotion of disabled veterans from the lowest grade to the highest, subject to the approval of the board of education. The Fisher-Mitchell proposal was rejected by the Legislature.

How the British Handle Civil Service Grievances

By GEOFFREY SEED
Member of Staff, British Information Service

Last week, Mr. Seed described the development of a new system of grievance for the civil service employees in Great Britain. His paper follows up with a discussion of the Civil Service in its capacity as an employer, the general body of employees, and organized groups among them such as full-time officers.

The British method of dealing with grievances of civil service employees consists of Whitley Councils with, in some cases, district councils. It is the function of these councils in 1919, individuals and groups having grievances stated mainly by petition. This was the year in which the Whitley system virtually excluded personal discussion, an alteration in the Civil Service

The civil service Whitley Councils were set up as an expression of procedure recommended by workmen's councils. These councils are for advice and Committee for Industry. There is a National Council for problems of general concern; while for departmental problems there are about 75 autonomous councils with, in some cases, district and local committees.

The constitution of the National councils consists of two parts: to secure the majority of the trades and to elect them in their capacity as employees. The Councils in matters affecting them, the number of officers and the increased efficiency in the public service by the well-being of those employed; to the Departmental Councils for the civil service with, the Whitley system, and general ly to bring together the experience of all concerned with the view of representatives of the Whitley Councils have been made.

V. Determination of the general principles governing conditions of service, e.g., recruitment, hours, promotion, discipline, tenure, and conditions of employment.

VI. Improvement of office methods. Special attention will be given to the provision of opportunities for the full consideration of suggestions by the staff on this subject.

VII. Proposed legislation with the consent of the unions concerned.

The functions of the Departmental Councils are as follows:

(a) Departmental Joint Industrial Councils. Every Government department has a Council of this kind to which industrial workers have a right through their union or unions concerned. Representation is on the principle of superior as in the Departmental Industrial Councils. Matters affecting a single Department are dealt with by consultation with the union or unions concerned. The Departmental Joint Industrial Councils are for the purpose of examining the various questions of the unions concerned.

(b) Government Trade Joint Councils. These councils are for the purpose of examining the various questions of the unions concerned.

(c) Examinations and Certification. The Departmental Councils are responsible for the introduction of the general principles governing conditions of service, and for the appointment of Representatives of the Treasury and Civil Service Department. In practice the Official Side, with one exception now not likely to be large, is represented by the National Councils of Higher Civil Servants, the Ministry of Labor and the Attorney General's Department, and the Ministry of Shipping (for travel of persons of standing) (who may be, of course, represented by the representative of the Civil Service). The Civil Service concludes the list of persons of standing (who may be, of course, represented by the Representative of the Civil Service). The Civil Service concludes the list of persons of standing (who may be, of course, represented by the Representative of the Civil Service).

The importance of the Departmental Councils is very great, and the more active of them may equal or surpass the National Council in bulk of work, in closeyness of contact with actual situations, and in effective influence.

Want to Teach in New York City Schools? List of Openings for Next Two Years

A list of examinations for teaching in New York City Schools has been drawn up by the Department of Education. The examination system has been set up as an expression of the City's educational policy. The Board of Examiners in the Public Schools is responsible for the conduct of the examinations. These examinations are held in the various branches of the public schools, and the Board of Examiners in the Public Schools is responsible for the conduct of the examinations.

The fact that this has been done is not surprising, as it is recognized that the public schools are the best available source for the recruitment of teachers. Clerk Grade 2 Promotion Exam Soon

To Open for New York City Employees

A City-wide promotion examination to Clerk, Grade 2, has been announced by the NYC Civil Service Commission and sent to the City Budget Bureau for the necessary authorization and printing of the test questions.

The examination will likely be similar to those in the past, though the grading system may have been changed. According to Mr. Goldman, the exam will be similar to those held in the past and will be designed to measure the applicant's knowledge of clerical work.

Vets Who Held Permanent Jobs

Get Them Back

WASHINGTON - The Senate has corrected a provision in the wartime Civil Service Act which would have deprived many thousands of government employees of permanent status and forced them to accept temporary appointments.

Only for Permanent

Seniors

In cases where the seniority of employees is measured to apply only to those who have served a certain length of time, these employees would be forced to accept temporary appointments. This bill, introduced by Senator Green of Rhode Island, would have forced these employees to apply for new appointments in the Federal service within the next year.

Governor

The Governor has stated that this bill would have forced the reclassification of every employee, requiring them to apply for new appointments. The Governor has asked the Senate to reconsider this provision.

James E. Russell, Director of the
James E. Russell, Director of the Civil Service Department, has announced that the New York Post Office is now in need of additional clerks. The office has been experiencing a significant increase in mail traffic, and it is necessary to hire additional clerks to handle the increased workload.

THEY MIGHT BE KING

"I could have written a book," said Sen. Harry Byrd, chairman of the Joint Committee on Civil Service. "The problem is that I have no time."

Among other proposed examinations for a class of employees is a test for the classification of 2,000 clerks, 1,000 of whom would be picked from the existing employees.

Reported appeal at State Selective

When a local board refuses a request for a deferment, the applicant may file a written notice of appeal direct to the Civil Service Commission. The commission will then review the case to an appeal board for final decision.

Civil Service Leader

The Civil Service Leader has reported that a new examination for the classification of 2,000 clerks, 1,000 of whom would be picked from the existing employees, has been set up. For all other employees, the same amount as is paid under the regular schedule will be paid for all work performed under this classification.

Examinations

When the writing examinations are given to the following employees, they must be carefully tested so that the employees will understand the questions and be able to answer them.

Chief Bernardino Harley is making more friends daily with his employees in the Department of Public Works, as more and more people are coming forward to volunteer for duty.

"What's up Joe, the grade go to now?" he was asked.

"My friend," he replied, "the grade go to now, have lengthy conversations you know. . . . It's all right Chiefs, you know."
