Thousands of Positions In List Of 89 Titles, Paying to $7,175

Jobs as P.O. Clerk and P.O. Carrier are among those listed today by the U.S. Civil Service Commission, open to veterans.

The list contains 89 different Federal titles, offering thousands of job opportunities to veterans. It includes the most popular examinations ever held. Customs Guard (new title, Port of New York) was announced that when the Legislature convenes he will introduce a bill to permit this class of veterans to take special examinations, for the reason that they are unable to take civil service competitive examinations, for which they may have applied.

The Civil Service regulations permit applicants who have been unable to take examinations through no fault of their own to take the examination provided that it is held within the time limits of the original application. This is clearly inadequate in the case of the average veteran in military service for a year. As a consequence, he is unable to compete.

State Bill Opens Old Tests to Vets

ALBANY, Oct. 2—Declarer that "our present State Civil Service regulations do a grave injustice to the State Government employees, who were unable to take civil service competitive examinations, for which they may have applied." Senate President Thomas C. DeMoss, announced that when the Legislature convenes he will introduce a bill to permit this class of veterans to take special examinations, for the reason that they are unable to take civil service competitive examinations, for which they may have applied. Pension Bill Voted

Social to THE LEADER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The House of Representatives has passed the bill exempting the pensions and annuities of Federal employees, regardless of the amount of such income, from all taxation. There was much excitement on the floor of the House preceding the enactment. The Ways and Means Committee's opposition was futile.

The bill amends the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Transfers to Save U.S. Jobs of Many Federal Workers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 — A bright spot in the news about the Federal Service Workforce is that 423,265 people will be placed by the Federal Civil Service Commission in new or different positions through a program to save U.S. workers, but it is believed a considerable number of the new placements, with veterans, of course, heavily represented.

U.S. Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming made this report to the Senate Civil Service Committee, which is studying the problem of veterans and federal jobs.

"The revised regulations, said Mr. Flemming, "gave rise to concern about the rights of veterans and other workers to remain in their present positions, and the right of the veterans to be given reductions in the same positions in the next round." The new regulations, which were made public on October 14, and which were the result of a long and careful study, were designed to assure that veterans and other workers would have the opportunity to remain in their present positions wherever possible.

The revised regulations also gave rise to concern about the rights of workers to be given reductions in the same positions in the next round. 49 Named For Police Vacancies

The names of forty-nine eligibles, from lists for Patrolman, NYC Police Department, were certified to Police Commissioner William J. Brannegan. The appointments were made "within a few weeks." To the usual probationary salary of $1,212 John J. Foley, John J. Walsh, Edward P. Walsh, Simon F. Malin, Mack J. Colgan, B. M. Marandola, and Joseph Manber were appointed. Patrolman P.D. 1662 also received a $1,212 auto driver's license prior to appointment.

Preference Denied to 3; 1 Vet Wins

Claims of three NYC eligibles for veteran's preference were disallowed by the Municipal Civil Service Commission because their claims were not presented in accordance with the rules. Claims of five other NYC eligibles were disallowed because their claims were not presented in accordance with the rules for preference in an "appropriae position currently advertised," but a less pay.

Promotion Exam Still Delayed

For temporary appointment inside the Department of Welfare, 4, to keep their earnings at the $1,800 rate of pay, 62 former employees will be called to hear the series of hearings by Comptroller McElroy. The Comptroller has rendered a series of decisions that skilled workers are entitled to a wage above that of the construction workers. The workers contend that they should receive a higher wage to meet present living conditions. High rates of wages have been established for the years' work, but the withholding taxes were waived.

The measure provides that age 65 be the retirement age for veterans. The new bill also extends the age limit for veterans to 55.

MARSH WALKS UP 7 FLIGHTS DURING STRIKE

The process of the 7th Floor Elevator Operators' Union was halted by President Harry W. Marsh and Commissioner Belzer Bronger.

Four large groups of NYC employees are negotiating with Budget Directors for salary increases. Their plea for higher wages has been turned down so far. The three groups that have been turned down are the Theatre Employers and the Medical Inspectors. The American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFL-CIO) and President William Brinner are calling for a 10% pay raise to make the bonus permanent.

TRUMAN'S LEADERSHIP ON UNEMPLOYMENT PAY

FEDERAL employees, who must be on hand to start the workday in many of the Senate's unemployment compensation bill by the House Ways and Means Committee, should be thankful to President Truman for having gone so far as to summon him before the committee and give them a piece of his mind. While many of them consider to equivalent point one, that the President has been cleaned only from reemployment policies that the Senate were presented in the brief statement to modernize, and by the President's press secretary, it is clear that the President was out of patience with the Senate for having let him down, as he put it, and looked to the House committee not to do likewise.

In the vocabulary of politics a let-down is a failure to keep a promise, and the President was indeed a promise to keep a promise, and the President's upraised hand only confirmed the view that it was against the President's deep conviction at the time the action was taken. It also explained why the President was in prestige in the Congress. This is a critical subject in American statesmanship, especially when the President's own party has a majority in both the Upper and Lower Houses.

It was no setback for Mr. Truman, however, in the eyes of the journalists. For the President is a new type of unemployment insurance, and who look to the President for leadership in attaining it for them, and at rates that are not substandard. This has not been reasserted, and a state of suspended animation no longer attends the unemployment insurance payments. Taxpayers, whose spirits were usually raised, did not realize that what he recommended ought to be adopted, and this has a double significance. The President's endorsement of unemployment insurance, including Federal workers, otherwise as good as dead for this session of the Congress, and to bring forward the need for compensation on an adequate basis.

The Much More Serious Bunder

The second effect deals with the implications of the House committee's action. If the President is to be able to achieve an administrative change, and not to be defeated by the Senate, he must proceed with a policy of unemployment insurance, and this he has been having in mind for many years. He did not feel that any form of unemployment compensation should be adopted while the country was in a state as good as dead for this session of the Congress, and to bring forward the need for compensation on an adequate basis.

FEDERAL TRANSFER RULES

The revised regulations on promotions and transfers to government agencies, which were issued by the Civil Service Commission last March, have been published in the Federal Register. The regulations are aimed at promoting a more efficient and orderly flow of personnel through the civil service system. The new rules will help ensure that those who are qualified for positions are given the opportunity to serve in those positions.

CIVIL SERVICE LAW ON RETENTION

Section 29 of the Civil Service Law, which provides for the retention of appointments and promotions for non-disabled veterans, will expire on December 31, 1950. The President has not yet made a decision on whether to continue the law.

HOW AMENDMENTS DEAL WITH TIME

The proposed amendment to the Civil Service Law, which extends the time limit for appointment of veterans, will expire on December 31, 1950. The amendment will allow for the extension of appointments and promotions for non-disabled veterans, who served during World War II, for an additional period of five years.

The decision as to whether or not the people of New York State will depart from the well-established principle of equality of opportunity and turn over civil service to the control of the State is to be made at the ballot box. It is a question that is not being presented to the people of New York State unawares. It is being gathered with emotion and appeals to emotion.

Against and in favor of the people of New York will be given a chance to enter the civil service, all opportunity to those who were born to engage in the war and then some subtle force has deceived them, but they have preferred proposal sets the veteran apart from other service categories, State, County, the veteran of all wars, of course, the most certainly resent. Impressions of Trip Up-State

BY MAXWELL LEHMAN

There were many highlights on the whirlwind tour of the upstate region, but three in particular stand out.

1. Sagamore Hill, the former home of President Theodore Roosevelt, was fascinating. The house itself is a remarkable composition.

2. The Finger Lakes region, with its picturesque lakes and vineyards, was breathtaking. Standing on the shore of Seneca Lake, looking out over the water, was a truly memorable experience.

3. The Corning Museum of Glass was a delight for the senses. The sheer number of glass items on display was overwhelming.

The trip was a great success and I would highly recommend it to anyone looking for a unique travel experience.
Provisionals Will Fill New Public Works Jobs

ALBANY, Oct. 2—District engineers and division and bureau chiefs of the New York State Department of Public Works were given the department's anticipated 390 new positions for post-war public works.

Policies governing placement of provisionals will vary in accordance with the classification of additional bills entitled to be filed at a conference under the provisions of the Civil Service Act.

The creation of additional bills was entailed by the necessity of filling the existing vacancies in the division and bureau chiefs.

The full complement of provisionals will be placed in the public construction division of the department.

The new positions are in the expanding program of public works, and will be filled by personnel of the new post-war public works.

The full details of a program calling for the department's anticipated 200 new positions were given to members of the Civil Service Commission.

How U.S. Gives the Veteran Opportunities for Jobs

Here's what the new Federal Civil Service regulations on job recruitment mean to the veteran or ex-service man, and what they mean to the veteran or ex-service woman. These regulations are based on the premise that those who have served in the armed forces of the United States are entitled to preference in Civil Service examinations for which there are openings, and that if no written test is required, they will be given full credit for the time they have served, under certain conditions.

Veteran Preference

The regulations are intended to provide for the employment of veterans in Federal service and to give them an opportunity to secure employment in the Federal service after the termination of their active military duty, and to secure from them a preference in Civil Service examinations for which there are openings.

(1)Non-disabled veterans of World War II—Those who served in any branch of the armed forces of the United States or were appointed in any capacity during the war or within three years after termination of their active military duty are entitled to preference in Civil Service examinations for which there are openings.

(2) Disabled veterans of World War II—Those who have served in any branch of the armed forces of the United States or were appointed within three years after termination of their active military duty, and who have been discharged or have been released from active military duty by reason of a service-connected disability, are entitled to preference in Civil Service examinations for which there are openings.

(3) Disabled veterans of any war or campaign or expedition of which a person has served in any branch of the armed forces of the United States or was appointed in any capacity during the war or in any campaign or expedition of which he served, are entitled to preference in Civil Service examinations for which there are openings.

A Soldier's Complaint

I have been serving in the Army for more than one year, which was overseas. The following is the situation: The New York City Government has made a policy of hiring only those persons who have been discharged from active military duty, and those who have been released from active military duty by reason of a service-connected disability. As a result, it is not possible for me to be considered for employment in the New York City Police Department, which is where I would like to work.

The veteran has the right to appeal to the Federal Government if he is not given an opportunity to be considered for employment in the Federal service because he is not a veteran.

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Under the new Federal Civil Service regulations which become effective today, all applicants seeking employment in the Federal service will be given preference, on the basis of his qualifications as shown on his application, over all other applicants who have not served in the armed forces of the United States, regardless of their previous employment or experience.

President's Announcement

The President's announcement of these regulations is as follows:

"I have a wife and two children to support, and I wish to have a home and pay for it. I know my family has existed on the subsistence levels that we have had to live on, ever since the war ended. I wish to have a regular and permanent home and family. I believe that a veteran should have the opportunity to be considered for employment in the Federal service, and that he should be given preference in Civil Service examinations for which there are openings."
