State Workers Hail 5-Day Week As Notable Gain

By F. Z. CLANCY

ALBANY, Oct. 1—Employees generally hailed the announcement of Budget Director John E. Burton concerning the five-day, 40-hour week to be instituted in State service, and were resigned to the necessary waiting period before the achievement actually takes full effect.

There was some small minority objection to arriving at the office five days of any given week.

A little earlier, to make possible the filing period will last for 15 days.

There was some small minority objection to arriving at the office five days of any given week.

Some of the employees were condemned for statements of a labor union that all the gains could be put into effect at once, including, not immediately, but in the form of a living wage.

The Department, with the approval of Budget Director Burton, reported that the general reaction of employees was favorable, and that the departmental service was enthusiastic about the assurance of a five-day week soon.

The Department, with the approval of Budget Director DeGraff, has given a certificate to permit the promotion of 22 Lieutenants who are on the eligible list.

Besides the last examination, the NYC examination for Patrolman will be published.

The publication of the questions and official final key answers in the next examination to be published.

There will be no requirement of a college degree. Full credit will be given for appropriate experience in the armed forces or in private industry.

Burton Tells Payroll Procedure

ALBANY, Oct. 1—Details of effectuating the payment of the current payroll to employees of state institutions and for the payment of $3000 as an extra bonus to institutional employees were given by U. S. Schwartz in his capacity as state civil service commissioner.

Mr. Schwartz said it is necessary for each institution to submit a payroll for such amount as may be due, not later than April 1, 1949, and in this manner the pay schedule will be regular. The payrolls will be placed in parenthesis the designations of ward or wards on which the person was employed. That study will be made at the earliest possible date. The first payroll will be prepared in a manner similar to the next one.

The association is advised that for the pay schedule to be included in the payroll, it must be delivered not later than April 1, 1949. Failure to pay within this period will cause delay in accumulating the proper amount of money. If there is any delay beyond the period back to October 1, 1949, there will be no inquiry relative to the matter. It will be the responsibility of the officers for any facts relating to their individual cases.

Civil Service Planks in the Platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties

Both major political parties have adopted civil service planks to the extent that they would encourage recruiting from the ablest citizens. They would continue in the path of rectitude and high purpose if continued in pointments. As always, the "outs" criticize the "ins" on their record of appointment but if continued in pointments. As always, the "outs" defend their record and promise to serve the public. They hope the civil service issues may be better defined and more made their course and their objectives clear to those who vote.

The Basis for Skipping Disabled Veterans

RECENT discussion of the practice of some appointing officers in skipping the name of the top disabled veteran on a list and appointing the second or third disabled veteran can be made "from among those graded highest in open competitive examination," the Attorney-General stated in his opinion. This was intended to give the appointing officer a right to exercise his choice of selecting one of the two or three disabled veterans whose names were certified to him. He felt that this opinion was^ supported by the Court of Appeals in a case in which a statute requiring "the appointment of those graded highest" was declared unconstitutional, because it deprived local authorities of the power of selecting inherent in their constitutional power of appointment.

Regulation Modified

On the basis of this opinion of the Attorney-General, the State Civil Service Commission amended its regulation on the subject. This regulation now reads as follows:

"Preference on eligible lists shall be given first to disabled veterans and then to non-disabled veterans. When an eligible list contains the names of more than one disabled veteran, then the same procedure in appointment apply to them."

Sustained by Courts

The opinion of the Attorney-General and its support by the regulation to conform thereunto were supported by the State Civil Service Commission. But in a recent talk, Mr. Tolman to the Merit Award Board, Mr. Tolman stated that the regulation had been brought into the main question of selecting one of the top three disabled veterans certified and appointed one of the first three disabled veterans certified and appointed. Therefore, when an eligible list were certified by the State Civil Service Commission, the top three disabled veterans certified and appointed, the regulation to conform thereunto was sustained by the Court of Appeals.

Mr. Tolman stated that the practice of the appointing officer in skipping the name of the top disabled veteran on a list was lawful.

Looking Inside

The Factors Behind Pass-Mark Change

In NYC Patrolman Examination

The merit system continues to be a fascinating field for experience. On October 15 the New York City Civil Service Commission, the number of candidates whose final average equals or exceeds the pass mark.

John L. Murphy

President of the Council of the State Civil Service Employees for the City of New York has written to the Commissioner of the Civil Service Department, asking that the Department offer better promotion opportunities for Attendants.

Mr. Murphy believes that the Department should make it easier for the Attendants to make their work a career.

"It feels," he said, "that there is much to be done in the way of employee-employer relationships in the Department. There should be more inducements for the

Attendants to make their work a career. There are not enough promotion opportunities provided in the Department to make the position attractive.

It is my hope to see some day that the Department will seriously consider the matter when the so.

Mr. Murphy is a graduate of

Kaye to Give His Side in Ouster Case

Special to The Leader

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—In an opinion rendered to President Truman, Attorney General Tom C. Clark held to be valid the regulations of the Civil Service Commission which grant the highest retention preference (A-1 plus) to veterans during the first year of their reemployment.

The Attorney General pointed out that this interpretation, understood to be few in number, would result in the release of another veteran having greater length of service and that in such case the supplanted veteran would be given the benefits of the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944.

Fleming Explains His Opposition To Freezing in War-Service Jobs Through Non-Competitive Exams

U. S. Civil Service Commission's plans to freeze in war-service jobs through non-competitive exams is against discharge without cause within a year after a veteran's return. It would be unfair to those who have been recently demobilized, or will be demobilized, the opportunity of competing for a large number of jobs. We do not believe that generally speaking, those who came out of the armed forces first should, in effect, be given super-preference.

Mr. B was not immediately taken very seriously because the robbers had been informed of the existence of the valuables in the residence. B, who had neglected to tie up and gag their victim, left the jewelry.

13. A tightly wrapped parcel attracted the attention of a tenant because it had been unclaimed in the entry for several days and had not come through the mails. He examined it and heard a loud ticking sound, whereupon he gently unwrapped the package and found two flashlights, an alarm clock, and a soup can containing a whitish powder. Later found to be bicarbonate of soda.

As a psychologist, you should realize that the tenant's behavior was evidence chiefly because (A) the package had been claimed if it was harmless; (B) bicarbonate of soda is harmless; (C) there is a more penalty for tampering with the mails; (D) the package was evidently addressed to Mr. B; (E) he had no way of knowing if the contents were harmful.

Questions from Last Test For NYC Fireman (F.D.)

DISABILITY VETS MAY APPLY FOR RAILWAY MAIL CLERK
WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—Disabled veterans (non-disabled) have been allowed to apply in the armed forces of the United States, and veterans and residents of N. Y. Gilt in the land service of N. Y. Stale when he or she could be employed as non-disabled veterans as for disabilities. These veterans will take their places on the civil service preference list after the disabled veterans.

The last group on the list consists of persons who have a physical disability. Preference is earned by non-disabled veterans as for disabled veterans, and is extended to the non-disabled veteran, certainly to non-disabled veterans, possibly also to disabled veterans in time of war; (2) be a veteran of this preference, certain to non-disabled veterans, until December 31, 1950, or five years following the date of the application for appointment or promotion. At the time of the application for appointment or promotion, the veteran must have been entitled to the preference for the appointment or promotion.

What per cent disability must a veteran have in order to be entitled to the preference provided by Article V, Section 6, of the State Constitution? A veteran is entitled to the preference for appointment or promotion if he has been discharged from military service on or after November 11, 1918, even as low as zero.

Are conscientious objectors entitled to veterans preference as provided by Article V, Section 6, of the State Constitution? Conscientious objectors who were entitled to non-combatant service are classified as members of the armed forces and, as such, are entitled to veterans preference. However, conscientious objectors who objected to service in World War II are not entitled for preference.

A veteran who applied for a civil service examination before the expiration of his list but who took a test at a later time would be entitled to a preference in this examination. At the time of the examination, the veteran must have been entitled to the preference for the examination for appointment or promotion. Does a veteran who applied for and took part of a civil service examination before the expiration of his list have a right to complete the examination upon discharge?

Yes. The law makes no provision for procedures, and it would be extremely unfair for any veteran to be deprived of his right of an examination upon discharge. Yes. When the test not completed contains the full length of the examination, but the veteran has not completed it, he must, therefore, apply within 10 days after the passing of the examination either before or after the expiration of his list, depending on the date of the examination. All veterans must be appointed to the list and a new list can be promulgated.

To what extent will a veteran be allowed to substitute his percentage disability for service in the army or navy in time of war in order to satisfy the requirement of this preference?

A veteran is entitled to the preference for appointment or promotion if he has been discharged from military service in time of war; (2) be a veteran of this preference, certain to non-disabled veterans, until December 31, 1950, or five years following the date of the application for appointment or promotion. At the time of the application for appointment or promotion, the veteran must have been entitled to the preference for the appointment or promotion.

May an eligible list be deemed exhausted if it contains less than the sum of the total number of non-disabled veterans?
