State Proposes to Transfer New Group of Exempt Jobs To Competition; Hearing Due

By MAXWELL LEHMAN

ALBANY, April 3 — The State Civil Service Commission plans to place 20 State jobs, now in the exempt or non-competitive categories, into the competitive class.

In addition, the Commission proposes to kill 24 jobs, after the titles in a variety of others. The action was announced on top of the 44 job jurisdiction-transfers and eliminations announced several weeks ago.

Twenty-two State agencies are involved in the new move, a drastic attempt to "shake out" jobs which the Commission considers unnecessary, and to place as many positions as possible within the competitive class.

The public will get an oppor-

SELLING CIVIL SERVICE

The MUNICIPAL Service Division of the State Civil Service Department has issued and distributed to local civil service employees folders containing ideas and suggestions for improving public relations and selling Civil Service to the communities throughout the State.

It is the Association’s concept that it is part of the job of civil service officials to tell all the people that civil service is really important to them in their daily life.

In its own fashion the Association has tried to emphasize the fact that the merit system is designed to provide public officials chosen for ability, as it is through fair, open competition, and thus assures the maximum of essential public service at the least cost.

J. Edward Conway, president of the Commission, in his foreword to “Selling Civil Service” quotes a short popular definition of good public relations as “doing a good job and getting credit for it.” Doing a good job is, I believe, an ideal attained more often in public service than in any other business. But even more credit is given the thousands of outstanding public employees for jobs well done than is their rightful due.

I agree with the manual that the best potential salesman for the merit system is the merit man himself, the public employee.

Perhaps because one section of the public service is so vocal, the non-elective, permanent public servants keep their big mouths too often shut and silent. We public employees have a duty to ourselves and our fellow employees of the civil service to spread the gospel of good public service, so that it will be the New York story.

The body of this manual is devoted to simple, standard practices and procedures for good public relations in the office. The last section deals with relationships between the civil service commissions and the employees. In a very real sense this can be taken as a statement of policy for the entire state. I quote briefly:

"Open Lines of Communication"

"In selling (civil service employees) on civil service —you provide public officials chosen for ability, as it is through fair, open competition and thus become enthusiastic salesmen for civil service in their centers of influence."

"Good morale is, in part, the result of such visible factors as good pay, good working conditions, and liberal leave benefits. But there is one more. It involves the employee’s feeling of accomplishment, of getting a worthwhile job done, with his efforts acknowledged by the public and the office."

"Open lines of communication lend to the important feeling of belonging. Many supervisors have maintained lines of communication with their employees in the office, in class rooms and health publications, in order that employees may be informed of the organization’s activities and objectives. These channels serve also to attract employee grievances and to receive employee suggestions."

"A valuable interchange of ideas may result. The New York Merit Award System has proved the time and labor saving value of some of these employee suggestions. Given the chance to place their ideas into practice, they will prove their worth and become enthusiastic salesmen for civil service in their centers of influence."

"USURPATION"

"The peculiar of this usurpation," Mr. Kelly said, "would amount to a virtual repeal of the lower salary grades specified in Section 35 of the Civil Service Law. Such a course would be a usurpation of the legislative function."

According to Mr. Kelly's analysis, 118 classes of work were represented in the petitions—some exclusively in the mental hospitals, some in all State departments and institutions.

Decision had been recorded but one petition of a second class of workers. A request to a new course of action appears, Mr. Kelly contended.

Freezing of Bonus Serves Dual Causes

Nn sooner was Mayor William O'Dwyer's decision announced to freeze the $350 remainder of the NYC bonus into permanent pay than the gratitude of employees began pouring in to the mayor. Such unity was one of the top objectives of all employee organizations. The LEADER had been campaigning for it steadily.

A thing difficult for the employees but for the people of the City because of the improved morale of the employees and even keener performance of duty. The freezing of a part of pay is officially temporary unfinished. Now the hazard has been happily and gracefully ended. State employees, the blue-collar wage earners largely contented into base pay two years ago. It was inevitable that sooner or later, the City would have to follow.

The LEADER for the benefit of the public because of the difference in the pension systems and the basis of pay. Laborers, mechanics and workmen receiving the pay are not classified under Section 220 of the Labor Law are not affected, nor are teachers, since no bonus applies to the pay of other employees. The earliest full benefit will be derived by Policemen and Firemen. Under their similar pension systems the possible payment can be made on July 1 next, and thereafter, when Policemen or Firemen including officers, retire at half pay, they do so at $175 extra a month.

The white-collar workers outside of teachers are members of the NYC Employees Retirement System in which the benefits and the system are provided for. Between July 1, 1950, and July 1, 1955, new pensioners under that system will be eligible to derive benefits.

The LEADER is glad that its own long campaign for this has been successful. It was Mr. Feinstein, who first suggested the amendment to the LEADER. He has been working for their pension interests for years and has waged unceasing battle, first against the freeze of the City bonus, and then for the freezing of the bonus.

Mr. Feinstein is in charge of the pension committee of District Council 37, American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. As soon as a sizeable number of members of the committee has been interviewed, another action will be taken.

The LEADER is glad that its own long campaign for this has been successful. Its offices to another city. There is permanency in City employment.

Supreme Court to Consider Employee Loyalty Program

WASHINGTON, April 3—While the United States Supreme Court prepared Monday for an unusual justification of the Government’s 1958 loyalty program, 9 of its 10 members—Congress voted Thursday to give protection to Federal employees dismissed for alleged disloyalty. At the same time, there was a move in Congress to give protection to employees dismissed for security reasons.

Federal employees could be discharged for alleged disloyalty, according to the measure, or dismissed because their loyalty could not be held harmless from all Federal service for three years. This, said the Court, seemed to be "punishment by a process of inquisition," since the loyalty order never had in mind.

As it was, the Federal Appeals Court in Philadelphia had ruled that the Government should not be held liable for libel damages because of a case of disloyalty.

Called It Unconstitutional
This was in the case of Dorothy Bailey, who was charged with disloyalty from April, 1953, from an $8,000-a-year job in the Health, Education, and Welfare Department, and dismissed three months later.

The case was before the Court on the ground that the entire loyalty program was unconstitutional. She once was a member of a labor union, and the ruling may have been influenced by the ground that the Court had disapproved the Government’s dismissal of Judge H. Barrett Prestyman, the judge who had ordered the dismissal.

Approval Rights Sought
Mobil Homes has been developing in Congress to give Federal employees of whose loyalty he is not completely convinced. He said the Court had placed upon the President and Congress responsibility for the country’s welfare in world affairs.

A conference was held by a UFA delegation at the Quayle headquarters. The Commissioner supported their plea.
