WASHINGTON, July 2 — Leaders of public employer and pension organizations have asked the Senate Finance Committee to hear their side of the case for U.S. recognition of public employee pensions. If the request is granted, a public hearing on the question before the committee will be organized for the first time with a spokesman for the employees presenting the case.

The argument of the Federals who don't get the benefit of pensions, and states which have a strong interest in the outcome.

Representative Sidney A. Pine of New York requested to have the exception subject brought up when the House was considering the tax bill. He moved for a suspension of the closed rule, which would open up the tax bill to full discussion. The proponents of the exemption provision are seeking to make this exception provision as nearly identical with the case of grants to Social Security and Railroad Retirement pension recipients.

The Attempt to Cut Your Vacation

The two-year old attempt to curtail the vacation and sick leave benefits of Federal employees has become a reality again, this time in the U.S. Senate, but it proves as poisonous a plant as ever.

The whole trend in relation to vacation and sick leave has been in the direction of increase. In private industry, these topics have been the basis of collective bargaining, and employers have acquiesced. The 28-day vacation plan of U.S. Government employees, which also exists in some States and cities, has set a laudable pattern.

The effort to curtail vacations and sick leaves of Federal employees can not be viewed as a thing apart. It must be taken for granted that, as the standards of U.S. Government benefits have been the goal of employees in State and local government, and in private industry, that the blow is aimed at them, especially, to foreclose expected demands from such employees in the near future.

For wage increases limited, pension, vacation, sick leave and other benefits from employees in private industry must be expected.

The employees of States and their civil divisions, such as cities, towns, and school districts, also teachers employed by local boards of Education and Boards of Higher Education, should realize that any encroachment on the present vacation and sick leave provisions in the Federal service will have repercussions that will strike them, and strike them hard. States, cities, towns, villages and school districts need not be expected to be bashful in attempting to level their employees down to any Federal standard.

The sentiment reported among some Senators for reducing vacations and sick leave is based on theories of efficiency and quality, lower employment costs, but also on the premise that the economic condition of the country has set a limit to the amount of time that can be given to discretionary activities.

NYC PENSIONERS WANT WHAT STATE PEOPLE HAVE

Editor, the LEADER

In your issue of June 12 (front page) New York State Reired Employees were mentioned as being less than 73c per month may apply for increase in minimum pension, provided by the 1953 Legislature, starting July 1, what has happened to the New York City employees who were put on less than 23c per month, and were members of the New York City Employees Retirement System?

I'm afraid the group be notified that if there was ONE organization that fights for the rights of our employees, it is the Civil Service Employees League. It is a pleasure to report that since that letter was published the members of that organization will receive a raise of 20c per month.

Stabilized Veteran Disability Needs No Recency Certificate

Veterans who have been certified by the U. S. Veterans Administration as possessing stabilized disabilities are eligible for a certificate, should they be hired, prior to the establishment of the eligibility list or a year prior to the Veterans preference law was made effective. The certificate is also held to be still valid if the veteran, who has been certified, is in the military service at the time the law was established and has served 18 months or more, and has never been discharged under any circumstances except for disability.

Example of Stabilized Disability

The stabilised type of disability, for instance, would be represented by a missing finger. There would be no need to re-examine such a case, since he is never going to get his lost finger back.

Effective Date Set

As to two other services whose promotion judges had held illegal, because they were promoted prior to a Court of Appeals decision clarifying the applicability of disabled veteran preference generally, the Appeals court ruled that the applicants were entitled to the list created under the law as it then existed and (their promotion) therefore legal. The point that the proof was approved, the Appeals Court of Appeals clarification was not of any particular significance, on the ground that a law is what the court say it is.

In other particulars the Appeals Court of Appeals upheld Judge Steiner, including his finding that prior to their promotions were made illegally. The group promotions, he found, were made as it existed prior to January 1, 1941, and that the certificate, whereby disabled veterans were the ALBANY, July 2—One of the few spots in New York City that can be counted upon to have a large number of doctors is the Board of Regents' action was held to be arbitrary, Supreme Court Judge McGrath, who disposed of the case.

The members of the Board of Regents, at their last meeting, set for the time of the establishment of the list, and that the certificate will be deemed to exist at the time of the establishment of the list.

The difficulty arose because the Court of Appeals, which made its status, made its standards more severe. The Court uphold the right of the Board to change its standards but noted that the certificate had qualified before the exclusion of the four columns from the list that these reorganization was put into effect. As to future exams, he noted his policy would apply.

The case was argued in the Albany Supreme Court by Mr. McGrath, Counsel for the petitioners.

Five Basics

The Court, in its circular, sets forth these additional requirements for disabled veteran preference

1. Proof of veteran status,
2. Disability certified by the VA in time of war,
3. Disability incurred in time of war,
4. If the applicant is a veteran, he must have been active in the forces of the United States for a least a period of six months in time of war,
5. The disability must be in existence at the time of the establishment of the list.

What constitutes disability existence at the time of the establishment of the list is subject to the interpretation of the court. The rule for this is that the disability in existence at the time of the establishment of the list of disabled veterans has been given within one year prior to the date of promotion for the NYC exam or one year prior to the date of the list, and that the certificate has been qualified at least 10 per cent or more, the disability that enables the disabled veteran to perform his Instrument in a small home entertainment
