Office workers in Mental Hygiene institutions of the State, particularly those working as aids in the Mental Hygiene Office, have filed a reconsideration of their salary appeal, which they feel was denied without due process. The appeal was denied as the result of improper handling of the cases by representatives of the Employer, said Fred J. Krumman, president of Employees Association. Most of the members of the Employees Association are members of the Civil Service Employees Association, which also feels the salary appeal was denied without due process.

For the Legislature

In denying the appeal, J. Earl Koehne, director of the State Public Employees Association, stated that the appeal should have been granted. The right of the employees to have all complaints thoroughly investigated and promptly acted on is a basic one, Mr. Koehne said. The employees have been affected in the same manner as other groups, however, as well as workers in the Labor Department. The appeal was denied since the basic right to due process and to have all complaints thoroughly investigated and promptly acted on has been denied, according to the director.

MULTIPLE LISTINGS

The complaint is that the appeal should have been granted. The right of the employees to have all complaints thoroughly investigated and promptly acted on is a basic one, Mr. Koehne said. The employees have been affected in the same manner as other groups, however, as well as workers in the Labor Department. McDonough Makes Strong Plea for Merit System As Basic to Democracy

ALBANY, Dec. 30—The student political forum of the State University at Albany, headed by William F. McDonough, former chairman of the State Classification Board, urged full study of the basic principles for the merit system. The system is being circulated in many departments and institutions. Also, probably because the plan is not yet in effect, the system is being employed to provide more titles through promotion. At present the deans, directors, and other top officials at the university have no way of knowing how many employees are eligible for promotion.

McDonough, who is now ex-officio chairman of the Classification Board, urges full study of the basic principles for the merit system.

The present-day difficulties in maintaining efficient and economical operations in public agencies of State and local government are due to failure to put into practice the merit system, which would result in better and superior governmental operations. The merit system is a measure of merit or worth, as well as of ability, and it is an incentive to good work.

The Third in The Leader's series of editorials "What the Public Thinks" is devoted to the personnel proposals for New York City. It is based on the findings of the Griffenhagen report, which was recently subjected to a considerable quantity of criticism. Some of the criticisms are being made, and the affirmative suggestions arriving from many sources, ought to get— and we may presume they are getting—their just opportunity to be heard. The Formal Hearings Board will sit for as long a period of time as needed. It can act in a variety of ways, either providing the Griffenhagen proposals a fair trial, or making them the subject of administrative复活 or correction.

4. It may alter the statement of job-duties or the qualifications required to fill the jobs.

5. It may make changes in any other of the Griffenhagen recommendations, so long as they do not conflict with the proposal that a Bureau of Personnel Administration be lodged in the Mayor's office.

We hope to see the Formal Hearings Board use its power fully and unreservedly. Suspension have been made that the Board be enabled to sit for as long a period as three months, and that the formal presentation be added. We should object to such an enlargement of the Board's powers if we were worried that it contains a bread of arbitrary and capricious people. It is not possible to predict how Judge Director Thomas Patterson will rule, but we are assured that he will not rule in any manner which may seem difficult upon them. The necessity must therefore be that the Griffenhagen report contains many points of view, and that these points of view will be strongly impressed upon them. The necessity must perhaps be that the Griffenhagen report was composed of the opinions of the most knowledgeable and constructive people. United Press International
They have shown in recent elections that they are deeply worried about the corruption in public life.

This is not to say that there is actually more corruption today than there has ever been. The scandals of the '50s have engendered more protest than any previous period, but the citizenry has become more aware.

In the public mind, the recently uncovered scandals have been hit by words but by actions. And the public is not just talking. It is awaking.

The great investigations which have uncovered the corruption have been led by Senator Estes Kefauver, Senator Philippines Pulbright, Senator Joseph McCarthy, and, of course, the most' recent one, the hearings before the Select Committee on Improper Use of Federal Communications.

It would be difficult to impress upon the public consciousness the need for reform and the willingness to support it. The people are the most important people in government. But the impression has been made clear that this is something the Washington Democrats do not want to take for granted.

The people have made it clear that they do not want to be treated as a rubber stamp for the Democratic Party. That is not the same thing as saying that the people want the Republicans to take over.

The people are saying that they want the Democrats to clean up their act. But the people are saying that they want the Democrats to clean up their act, not that they want the Republicans to take over.

Communities have become aware of corruption.

In every community you pick a man who wins by Truman's good government campaign, Mr. Halley.

The appointment of a Kefauver President, as important as it is, is not the only action that must be taken if we are to solve the problems of the nation. As a Democrat in the Senate, Mr. Halley would be a formidable opponent. But he is not the only one. Halley's supporters are astute. And there are many more like him. He is just one of the many problems that must be faced.

Mr. Halley might not be the right man for the job, but there are others who could do it. But the people want a Democrat who is a Democrat, not a Republican.

New Pay Plan Would Bring Order

Coming as it does at a time when New York City civil servants are discussing the Griffen-ham report, news of a new development regarding personnel in a county surrogate court is particularly important to the merit system.

Excluded from the Griffenhams study were certain courts and other jurisdictions, among them the surrogate courts of the five metropolitan counties.

However, the reports are the object of a separate study by the State Department of Civil Service, charged with servicing them.女王

Queens County is one of these. As a result of this study, and only with the fullest cooperation of the Griffen-ham committee, Queens County surrogate court is moving toward a development regarding personnel in which it is expected that considerable savings will be realized. The way the court is going about it is first to bring in a consultant to make a study of the court's personnel and compensation through a separate study by the State Department of Civil Service.

By bringing in a consultant to make a study through which they may be able to find a way of handling their personnel costs more effectively, it is expected that they will be able to cut down on their costs and thereby be able to give their employees higher raises.

The consultant will be given a blank slate on which to work. He will be given a copy of the court's personnel and compensation system and he will be made aware of the highest and lowest pay level for each job, regardless of how much or how little the employees are actually doing on a day-to-day basis.

The consultant will also be made aware of all the clerical help the court has, how much money these clerks are making, and what it will cost to get them to do the jobs they are supposed to do.

The consultant's report will be the basis for a new pay plan for court employees.

Evidencing a desire to correct this situation in his own court, Judge Flashe نفس last month appointed a consultant, Mr. Wurf to study the court's personnel and compensation system which may well become a model for similar courts around the state. Mr. Wurf was chosen by the judges of the court for this position.

More High-Pay Jobs, More Training for U.S. Employees, Asked by Robert Ramspeck

Federal employees, in order to fit the program into the everyday life of the best people on the job and involve the maximum number of employees, asked for the session of Congress to have a role in the Civil Service Commission. U. S. Civil Service Commissioner Robert Ramspeck, speaking at a Washington meeting of the Federal Personnel Association at a dinner held by the Bureau of the Budget, said, "I don't think an afternoon meeting in Washington, last night. The Chairman emphasized his view that federal employees, and other civil servants should be substan-ed and better management personnel, he said.

"The growing demands of the Government's economic and military defense programs justify such investments because they will increase productivity; while this is "far better to do it through a general authorization increase in the number under the Classification Act than by piecemeal legislation from time to time." The Commissioner added:
