"I'm sorry, Ed, but you're too small for the team." These words were spoken by a school football coach. They left a schoolboy feeling pretty sad.

His little Ed grew up to be big — more than six feet tall. He had helped keep America safe by outsmarting and capturing our nation's enemies.

The boy who couldn't make the football team is now the head cadet corps and learned to march and handle guns. He was so well liked that we should not only consider seriously the matter of making it practical and useful, but also consider seriously the matter of making it safe and efficient in government.
State Decision Broadens Competitive Principle

ALBANY, May 4—While the New York Board of Education is fully justifiable in appointing junior high school principals non-competitively, it must fill all jobs, under existing law, of administrative assistant in high school, assistant administrative director, and junior principal, according to an informal opinion of the State Education Law. This opinion was based on the provision of the State Constitution, which requires the Board to hold an examination for all positions.

The Board would be free to fill any position not listed, thereby avoiding the necessity of recruiting the list, and the necessity of accepting tenure in the assistant, if there is no constitutional or statutory bar, said Mr. McDonough, who is no longer and not immediately appointed by the Board.

The question was whether the four titles came within the exception of this section, which would render competitive examinations unnecessary in the positions contained in the section, relating to principals. The opinion was based on the non-competitive choice of placing the Incumbents therein three positions listed, that its act is an assignment and not an appointment, and that the positions were in the non-competitive class.

The opinion was based on the provision of the State Constitution, which requires the Board to hold an examination for all positions, except for the position of superintendent or assistant superintendent, or director or of a special branch, principal of or teaching in a school principal of a high school, shall be from the first three persons on the appropriate eligible lists prepared by the State Department of Education.

How Plan of Insurance Against Accident and Sickness Has Grown

The Civil Service Employees Association's new accident and sickness plan has grown and been expanded through the years to the extent that a larger group of public employees have become eligible for its benefits. The plan is made possible if it were not for the $75,000,000 which the State has already invested in the Territories of the Bush & Powell, Inc., has developed the plan so that it could be written in the form of a contract, and through the wholesale purchasing power of the Civil Service Employees Association.

New Job Plan Put in Effect In A. & M.

ALBANY, May 4—A classification study of all 564 positions in the Civil Service Department was completed by the Civil Service Employees Association, with cooperation from Governor Averell Harriman, President of the Civil Service Department.

Mr. Harriman said the survey, the first complete one of its kind in New York, was completed under the direction of the Classification Committee of the Association.

The resulting changes in job classifications and grades are effective on April 1, 1953, with the exception of the position of Mental Hygiene, which, the Association said, would not be affected until July 1, 1953.

The new plan will provide a minimum increase in salary for 277 employees, an exact average of $3.66 per week. In addition, 203 employees will receive a slight increase in salary in the range of $2 to $3 per week. A further 64 employees will be put on the new plan but receive no salary increase.

More Study Later

The study is proceeding with the approval of Budget Director T. J. (Jack) O'Brien, the Civil Service Department.

New Loyalty Program Must Include Real Appeals

President Eisenhower's executive order, setting new standards and methods for checking employees for loyalty, security or blabbering, follows the previously announced pattern and includes no actual provision for appeals. This is a serious omission, as we pointed out in an editorial when the gist of the proposed order was first revealed. Denial of opportunity to appeal is comparable to the department heads' recommendations of dismissal of Federal employees on charges. Also, the accused will not be entitled to a bill of particulars of the charges, nor need the accused's identity be revealed, nor is there any right granted to be confronted by one's accuser.

Tough Problem, Tough Policy

We appreciate that the President must meet a serious problem. There has been a disgusting series of revelations of failure in a department whose employees are the old Loyalty Board's work was ineffective. The standards it was required to apply were often vague. But appeals were permitted. Perhaps the appeal opportunities were even too great, but that is not reason to reject all rights of appeal, including the general right of appeal which veterans enjoy in all dismissal cases under the Veteran Preference Law. After May 26 even veterans may not appeal.

The new reviewing Boards will consist of officials of employment departments or others than the employing department or heads. If the employing body, the accused, but department heads could carry out proposed firings against the contradiictional recommendation of such Boards.

Words of Warning

Hiram Bingham, former Republican Senator from Connecticut and chairman of the former Loyalty Review Board, commented:

"I'm sorry that there's no appeal allowed from the decisions of the heads of 60 departments. I have been in the program for two and a half years and have found that people who make decisions in departments on firings do not always do so justly. We have reversed a good many cases where the lower Boards have found people to be ineligible.

"I think there should be appeals allowed to bodies like the Loyalty Review Board, not composed of Government employees."

Amendment Needed

The new standards apply to all agencies and all employees. The OIO says that the new diamiural rules are supposed to be concerned primarily with security risks. "But inking of their true purpose is the inclusion of all agencies, where currently only sensitive agencies are covered."

The fundamental right to even a hearing is denied to 90,000 U.S. employees, those who haven't completed their probationary period. This wouldn't be too bad, if only one's work were found unsatisfactory, as department heads have authority now to drop employees for that reason. But since the new standards do not make clear to whom the substitution of smaller branch offices. The decision on reorganization was made without the approval of all civil service employees. The substitution of smaller branch offices is found lacking is quite a different matter. Precluding real appeals, though an act undoubtedly inspired by the highest motives, it smacks too little of justice and too much of statism. It's a backward step in American governmental history. The order should be amended to include right of real appeal, otherwise the remedy may prove worse than the salient.

Moreover, to equate blabbering and disloyalty along with a single dismissal process, has in it obvious needs of injustice. And is not the way opened for other injustices, too, dismissal for whim, and the use of this new mechanism to dismiss persons whom it might be more difficult to dismiss for other reasons?

Delekthe New Classification Schedule C of the Federal service offers little likelihood that such an employee would be rehired. Experience with a related provision in the existing law: only three employees dismissed for loyalty, security or blabbering, may be rehired by another department, and one of the beneficiaries would be the employee's family.
