Goldstein Rules on Having Two Public Jobs at Once

ALBANY, May 10 — Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein ruled recently that "assuming a public position at the State level is not within the ban of the statute." A public servant may hold more than one public position at the same time, he said.

Goldstein is quoted as saying, "It must be understood that the public servant is not disqualified from a public position. If he is willing and able to handle his two jobs, he need not resign from either."

The ruling came in the course of answering a question posed by a public servant who was facing a conflict of interest because of his dual assignments.

The Attorney General stated that if the conflict of interest is immaterial, the public servant need not resign from one of his jobs. However, if the conflict is material, he must resign from one of his positions.

The ruling is significant because it provides guidance to public servants who are faced with dual assignments that may raise questions of conflict of interest.

State Commission Seeks To Speed Exam Appeals

ALBANY, May 10 — A new system of examination appeals may be installed by the State Civil Service Commission. The ordinary exam-taker has little idea of the effort, time and research that goes into processing appeals. A common opinion is that such protests are shunted off and that the chances of a reversal are slim.

The situation is clearly described in an attorney's report that is being submitted to the Civil Service Commission. The report, which is part of the Commission's efforts to speed up the processing of examination appeals, states that a large number of appeals are rejected on a technical basis without any consideration of the merits of the case.

The report calls for the establishment of a special appeals board that would be responsible for determining whether an appeal should be heard and, if so, for conducting a fair and impartial hearing. The board would be composed of experienced attorneys and would be staffed by experienced examiners.

The report also recommends that the Civil Service Commission adopt a uniform set of rules for examining claims of error in examination scores. The rules would provide that objections must be filed within a specified time after the examination, and that objections must be supported by specific facts and reasons.

The report concludes that the establishment of a special appeals board and the adoption of a uniform set of rules for examining claims of error in examination scores would go far toward speeding up the processing of examination appeals and improving the quality of the decisions reached.

If You're a Public Servant, You Can't Race a Horse on 42nd Street

This is the second in our series of articles on the Civil Service Commission's new policy on public servants and racing horses. The first article, which appeared in the New York Times, examined the new policy's impact on the state's racing industry and on the state's budget. This article examines the new policy's impact on the state's public servants and the state's Civil Service Commission.

The new policy, which went into effect on May 1, 1954, prohibits public servants from owning or racing horses. The policy was adopted to prevent conflicts of interest and to ensure the integrity of the Civil Service Commission.

The policy has had a significant impact on the state's public servants. Many public servants have sold their racing horses or given them to friends or family members. Some public servants have also sold their race horses to other public servants or to private individuals.

The policy has also had a significant impact on the state's Civil Service Commission. The Commission has adopted new rules to govern the employment of public servants in its personnel pool. The rules require public servants to disclose their employment in the personnel pool to the Commission and to obtain its approval before they can accept employment.

The policy has also had a significant impact on the state's racing industry. The state's racing industry has been forced to adjust to the new policy. Some racing tracks have had to reschedule their racing dates to avoid conflicts with the Civil Service Commission's new policy. Some racing tracks have also had to reduce their purses to attract horses.

The policy has also had a significant impact on the state's budget. The state's budget has been forced to adjust to the new policy. Some state agencies have had to reduce their funding for racing programs to avoid conflicts with the Civil Service Commission's new policy. Some state agencies have also had to reduce their funding for racing programs to avoid conflicts with the state's racing laws.
Looking Inside

By H. J. BERNARD

EMPLOYEES ordered reinstated by a court are entitled to back pay. Many of them think they get all the money they would have been paid, had they continued in the job, with no deductions for the period of separation from government service. This idea is prevalent among Federal State and local employees. But even where there is no such entitlement, as in private employment, the employee is entitled to receive back pay because he was deemed ordered deducted, as were the amounts earned in private employment, but is entitled only to the difference.

The court case arose in a Federal case. An employee resigned from the U. S. Civil Service Commission. The employee obtained a reversal. He was ordered reinstated. The post pays $9,500 a year.

The City of Trenton adopted the merit system for its employees, and the New Jersey State Civil Service Commission decided to subject the city to the State Civil Service Law, as was done in regard to other State and local Authorities. This is consistent with court decisions in such cases in nearly all jurisdictions.

STATE HEALTH SESSIONS DUE NEXT MONTH

ALBANY, May 10—Sessions on the latest developments in viral diseases including poliomyelitis and cancer will highlight the 6th Annual Health Conference to be held at Lake Placid June 7 through June 10, State Health Commissioner Herman E. Hil legs announced.

Doctor Hillegas said the conference will deal with such subjects as problems of general sanitation, control of infectious hepatitis, and general health trends in the State and nation today.

The opening day of the conference will be occupied by the annual meeting of the New York State School Nurses Association. The actual conference meetings will get under way June 8 and continue through June 10.

Horan Named To High Post

In Correction

ALBANY, May 10 — Leonard P. Horan, Orator of the College of St. Rose in Albany, has been elected to a new term as Head of the State Department of Correction.

Mr. Horan succeeds Clement J. Bussell who has been elected to accept appointments as superintendent of the Rockland State Reformatory for Male Handled Handling

At the time of his appointment by Commissioner Edward J. Donoho, Mr. Horan was serving as assistant director of correctional training for the department. He was responsible for carrying out Governor Dewey's recommendations for expansion of the department's institutional training program.

A graduate of the University of Notre Dame, Mr. Horan has served on several federal and state committees and boards in the correction field. He was a member of the staff of the National Institute of Staff for a number of years and teaches at the College of St. Rose in Albany.

He lives at 246 St. Albans with his wife and their six children.

NYC PAY PLAN PROVIDES MEANS OF PROMOTION BY GRADE-SKIPPING

An inspection of the proposed monthly pay plan, by which NYC reclassification is to be controlled, discloses that promotions could be made from the top of one grade to the bottom of another, to insure an employee getting a grade would not be at the new job as in the old one, and in the higher grades, increases up to $400.

This is the only hint the proposed plan will likely include grade-skipping, to prevent an employee from falling from the top of one grade to the bottom of another, in which the new salary is less than that of laborers. Caretakers”

Is It Simple, Easy to Understand?

We the USK Oscar M. Taylor, new head of the State Civil Service Commission, has the right approach to this business of how to use the English language. He has advised his staff to watch your language in business letters. When writing such a letter, he advises that you ask yourself six questions:

Does it sound like me?
Is it simple, and easy to understand?
Is it free of tired, overworked expressions?
Is it short and to the point?
Did I get the facts straight?
Other bits of advice to State workers include:

"Avoid ten-dollar words ... if the reader doesn't understand them there's no sense in writing. He will be short and to the point ... and be accurate.

Very good, Mr. Taylor. Now let's extend the same kind of English to other documents in addition to letters.

Does NOT THINK MUCH of BRUCE SMITH
EDITOR, The LEADER:

When a candidate for a Senate seat will not say in a publicity release, that a stard number of his or her volunteer candidates had been appointed, Robert A. O'Brien of Long Island, a member of the Nassau County Democratic Attorney Frank A. Rosen, who defended Smith, said:

"I am sorry, Mr. Smith, was supposed to be appointed to a position in the NYC patrolman (P.O.) candidates had been appointed, but the Commissioner of Police, who would have disproved their assumptions.

Mr. Smith, He would of course be giving up would decide to run again, and the end of the four terms he could look forward to a $25,000 pension. He would maintain his power in politics, and even have a chance again at the presidency.

What Has He To Say

Meanwhile, he has at his disposal a $500,000 stipend — some political plums; others, if he be appointed to the Board of Estimate, will be paying into the pockets of the Board's patrons.

Two Supreme Court judges, who were appointed to the Manhattan-Brooklyn districts, as Labor Department workers, O'Brien and Samuel Dickstein, were the State's earnest desire to operate without a serious loss in its work service those whom they had charged with any criminal acts, and added that the State has presented some of the arguments favorably to the Judge's office on appeal.

The staff of this Local Office will give a farewell luncheon to Alice Weiss, senior employment interviewer, who is being transferred to the Service Office. All staff and members of the chapter are invited to attend.

The Creedmoor State Hospital

A farewell dinner was held at the Creedmoor Rest for Leo O'Connor, the dining room chief, who has been with the hospital for many years. State Hospital Director Dr. Benjamin C. Christy, assistant director; Dr. C. F. Scott; and of the hospital employees.

To Brother Patrick Bennet, Catholic chaplain, who wasordained to the priesthood in New York City.

We wish to assure the Rev. Father Bennet that the plans are well under way for the dedication of our new chapel, which will be held on Decoration Day.

The new chapel, which is named May, can be purchased from John Murphy.

Some of the nurses (we've been so busy calling names) that want to know if there has been any dance at the hospital.

Greetings to Charles Pou on his appointment as head of the new department.
