Mental Hygiene Attendants Present Case for Upward Pay Revision of 4 Grades

ALBANY, Jan. 31—New York State hospital attendants brought their case for upgrading from R 4 to R 6 before J. Earl Kelly, director of classification, last Tuesday. At the meeting, which was attended by a large number of attendants, Kelly said the classification for the group was "a failure." He added that if the state wishes to correct this situation, the time has come, it must finance this realignment. 'Ihe rehabilitation and care of insane persons is not an ordinary business of the state.

The Parents
5. Work in an environment of disturbed human beings. A probation officer is, on a 24-hour program, providing care in institutes, medical schools, and poses special health and social problems.

6. Physical hazard is always present.

7. Comparison with salaries paid in other public service positions, within the state government. The principal, grand jury and other institutional jobs, that require less responsibility, do not pay as much.

8. There should be no way to focus the scope or importance of the duties performed. The allocation seems to continue the erroneous theory of the work used that had to be held in the past.

 Didn't Follow Through
Henry Galpin, salary research consultant for the Civil Service Employees Association, added that the classification division, in assigning the present salary and not followed through on its findings, is responsible for the situation.

The Hazards
A three-man committee of the association spearheaded preparation for the hearing: John E. Graveline of St. Lawrence State Hospital, Owen Johnstone of Folsom State Hospital, and Arnold Moses, of Brookline State Hospital, Jones' firey presentation of the attendant duties drew applause from the audience.

Hudson River State Hospital—Charles H. Trainor, Bartley Van DeMach, William Humphrey, Adena Stitt, and other institutional jobs.

Willowbrook State School—Goethe Huld, Bloom Knigo, Dora Canara.

Rockland State Hospital—Marie Horbehold, John Morsilli.

Rockland State Hospital—W. A. Tallarico.

Kings Park State Hospital—Edward Selleck, General Kenneth, Daniel McPherson.

Home State School—Owen Joiner.

John J. Kelly, jr., assistant counsel, CSEA, also represented the employees at the hearing.

Reinstating an Employee Wrongfully Dismissed

Contrast these two cases:

1. A Federal employee with 25 years service is dismissed for "technical deficiencies," appeals to the United States Civil Service Commission before which he is represented by counsel, is found to have been wrongfully dismissed, and is ordered reinstated, with $8,000 back pay.

2. A State employee with 25 years service is dismissed for alleged misconduct, appeals to the State Civil Service Commission, which finds the dismissal was unjustified, and that's all. No order of reinstatement; no back pay, of course. The Commission can do anything about it however wisely or unwise it regards it. And we do not expect it to put him on a preferred list and permit him to be transferred if anyone will take him.

In the Federal situation, the Defense Department is given 10 days in which to reinstate an engineer wrongfully dismissed.

The director who dismissed the State employee, a cook at Hudson River State Hospital, refuses to take the employee's appeal. The Civil Service Employment Commission has sustained the employee's appeal, the director publicly announced his refusal to reinstate. The employee, Patrick J. Shirick in Albany Supreme Court, with Mr. Delahoyde in attendance, announced his refusal to reinstate. The employee, Patrick J. The reply says that I favor the order of reinstatement, and that if the state did not have the right of representation, the employee would have been reinstated.

In the Federal situation, the Defense Department is given 10 days in which to reinstate an engineer wrongfully dismissed.

Justice Shirick granted the petition. He said the statute does not give the Civil Service Commission power to order reinstatement, but remarked that the duty to reinstate a wrongfully dismissed employee is an obligation regardless of the statute: "rest upon the appointing officer as a matter of law..." The petition was granted.

CSEA Fought Many Years for These Rights

The Civil Service Employees Association has been fighting many years for acceptance of the proposition that the Civil Service Commission should have authority to reinstate employees in such cases as that of Mr. Delahoyde, also for the related right of an employee to have a hearing and representation by counsel in disciplinary proceedings. The Peller Commission this week introduced legislation to grant those two basic safeguards. Governor Harriman, too, is reported ready to recommend such legislation in the first year of career-conditional appointments, as they have been introduced in the Women's Right to Vote Amendment.

The inclusion of such provisions in the legislation will be taught by Dr. Charles Redheld, past president of the American Psychological Association and Consulting Psychologist. The course will feature guest lecturers. The School offers professional training in the fields of administrative concepts in new administrative techniques and the roles of the executive in the changing society. It is a graduate and extension course in administration. Questions of concern to public administration, social service, and the professions of public relations and planning will be discussed. The course is also open to other interested persons.

Loyalty's Security Programs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 — The Hoover Commission is studying ways of improving the administration of the federal civil service, particularly over the security issue. The commission is expected to submit a report recommending procedures for appointment to the sub-committee. The report, which is expected to be released by the end of the month, will focus on the appointment of federal employees and the prevention of security risks.

The Hoover Commission, established by President Eisenhower in 1954, is responsible for investigating federal government operations and recommending reforms. The commission has had a significant impact on federal personnel policies and procedures, and its recommendations have been influential in shaping the current civil service system.

The commission's current study on loyalty and security is part of its ongoing efforts to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the federal government. The Hoover Commission has a long history of addressing issues related to the civil service, including pay and personnel policies, and its recommendations have been widely adopted by the federal government.

The commission's report on loyalty and security is expected to recommend changes to the current security clearance process, including the establishment of more streamlined, efficient procedures for processing clearance applications. The report may also address the role of the Office of Personnel Management in overseeing the security clearance process.

The Hoover Commission's recommendations are likely to have a significant impact on federal personnel policies and procedures, and its report is expected to be closely watched by government officials and the public alike.

Psychiatric Institute Honors Dr. Shatzky

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 31

The highlight of this month's activities at the Psychiatric Institute was the presentation of a 25-year pin to Dr. Justice Shatzky, head librarian, now in his 40th year in medicine.

The Psychiatric Institute is proud of Dr. Shatzky, as it is of its li- brary, which was dedicated to him long ago. Although some changes have been made in the library's collection, it remains a small library with a few hun- dreds of volumes. However, since then to 25,000 volumes, in addition to all the materials about which books and periodicals were written in any language, the library has a wealth of other materials, such as the Psychiatric Institute's library of psychiatric journals, which is particularly proud of the Freud collection, which over the world visit the library from doctors, and students from all countries.

There are also 400 titles by Freud. There are also 400 titles in German edition of this same book, translated into 11 languages and going by Freud. There are also 400 titles in English edition of this same book, published in 1965.

He is the author of many books and papers on the arts and sciences, and in 1954 was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He is also a member of the Polish Medical Association, a member of the American Psychiatric Association, and a member of the New York Academy of Sciences.

The institute has now received an additional grant of $10,000 for the continuation of the institute's library work. The institute has prepared the materials of the institute's library, which is the principal source of information.

Dr. Justice Shatzky, senior librarian in medicine, has been pre- sented with a 25-year pin by the Board of Trustees, under the direction of L. K. Lob, senior director of Psychiatric Institute.
