HUMAN SIDE

OF THE TAX DEPT.

When all the returns are in (State tax, that is), another high water mark in filing should be reached — about 400,000 more than last year. This is a good sign that the efforts of the Revenue Men and Women throughout the State have not been in vain. The April 15 flood was met successfully, and there should be more of the same.

Industrially, Tax officials are "going right" on persons who have neglected to pay their taxes. The new tax law is being enforced, and the State Tax Bureau gets a boost in their efforts.

Some semblance of sanity and objectivity has to be brought into the picture, or the man-in-the-street may respond to all this with a reaction that will be good for government workers nor for government itself.

A quotation from an article that appeared in Redbook Magazine is appropriate. Here it is:

"...the heaviest burden of government workers is the service rendered by conscientious citizens. Thousands of honest, hard-working, loyal men and women give their lives to government service. They execute the policies you and I, through our elected representatives, write into law. And the more people you have, the more they are tearing away at the roots of democracy."

"Every day of the week is open season on the government worker. He is a favorite whipping boy for editorial writers. Each time a crook is caught in the government, the blame rests on every civil servant. Each subservient discovery makes suspect the loyalty of all government workers. Each story of government red tape evokes a picture of all government offices haggled over their own rule and the law that passed them.

"The government worker's morale has taken a beating... Attacks on his efficiency, sincerity and loyalty have burst all about him. It is conceded that morale among civil servants is lower now than at any time during the past 50 years..."

The Pinpointed Way

Investigations are necessary, discipline is necessary, and efficiency is necessary in government. But those objections do not justify the attack on every civil servant. A careful, direct, and pinpointed methods. The finding of single instances of malfeasance or misfeasance need not be so vast that hundreds or thousands of employees are made to appear guilty of the same sort of thing. Those who indiscriminately abuse the civil servant, who use him for political advancement, who employ backcut methods of getting a position, who undermine the efficiency of those who do their jobs, should be named and castigated, but the names of the millions of honest and efficient public servants should not become the butt of mudslinging.

Open Season

On Government Workers

From the current rash of headlines about probes, questionnaires, Grand Jury investigations, dismissals, you could be pardoned if you concluded that public employees are a collection of scoundrels.

Young Dissatisfied
With Present Way
Of Setting U. S. Pay

WASHINGTON, May 23—Philip Young, director of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, finds that present methods of establishing pay scales of Federal workers is far from satisfactory.

Instead of proposals by the administration, debates in Congress, final legislation or none, with the result often a mixture of sound and unsound proposals, justice to one group, injustice to another, he thinks some centralized method should be tried.

He admitted Congress would be hard to forge power it now exercises over pay, but points to more satisfactory results obtained through wage board determinations, and the fairness of public employee pay being confirmed to that paid by local industry for the same type of work.

Chairman Young summed his ideas in a speech before the Society for Personnel Administration.

Hassan County patrolmen were their contest with the State Civil Service Commission. The issue concerned questions which had been asked on the examination this week. They won, in the Appellate Division, a decision in their favor with the State Civil Service Commission. The issue concerned questions which had been asked on the examination to the higher position. The men had all been within two points of the passing grade, and had challenged questions which Supreme Court Justice Huntington, in his first decision, had established in stenographic form. There was no word, at present, whether the State Commission would carry its appeal to the Court of Appeals. In view of the fact that the Appellate Division had ruled unanimously in favor of the men, however, it appeared doubtful whether the appeal would be carried further.

Two Issues

The Appellate Division ruled on two issues:

1. They first denied the patrolmen's motion to dismiss the appeal of the State Civil Service Commission. After the Commission filed its notice of appeal, the patrolmen moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground that the State Commission was not a party aggrieved by Judge Huntington's order. The theory behind this motion was that since the State Commission merely acted as the Civil Service Commission, it had no status as a party for appeal purposes. The patrolmen inferred the situation of the State Commission in that of any private agency which might hire a County Commission to conduct an examination. Since such a private agency would have a right to appeal by virtue of giving assistance, and the patrolmen argued that the State Commission was in the same position, there was no right of appeal.

2. The Court disapproved the above argument. It wrote, in part, as follows: "Appellants may be considered parties aggrieved by the order appealed from, as persons interested in upholding the determination reviewed in the proceeding and by virtue of their interest in the enforcement of the State Civil Service Law and of the provisions of section 6 of Article V of the State Constitution with respect to competitive civil service examinations."

Heard on Merit

The denial of the motion, in effect, meant that the appellate court would hear the appeal on the merits. On the merits, the order of the lower court was affirmed unanimously. The patrolmen urged as their theory behind this motion that was in the same position that if any private agency which might hire a County Commission to conduct an examination, since such a private agency would have a right to appeal by virtue of giving assistance, and the patrolmen argued that the State Commission was in the same position, there was no right of appeal.

In the enforcement of the State Civil Service Law and of the provisions of section 6 of Article V of the State Constitution with respect to competitive civil service examinations, the Court disapproved the above argument. It wrote, in part, as follows: "Appellants may be considered parties aggrieved by the order appealed from, as persons interested in upholding the determination reviewed in the proceeding and by virtue of their interest in the enforcement of the State Civil Service Law and of the provisions of section 6 of Article V of the State Constitution with respect to competitive civil service examinations."

The patrolmen's attorney was Harold L. Herstein.

The NYC eligible list for personnel assistant is expected to be established on June 1, the Department of Personnel reports. Oral exams for the 100 eligible last week.

New Edition of 'Little Green Book' Issued

A new edition of "The Little Green Book" has been issued. It may be bought for $1 at the office of The Record, Room 1203, Municipal Building, Chambers and Centre Streets, NYC. The edition is limited. There will be no second printing.

The NYC government's most popular publication is pocket size. This year it has 198 pages, and is bound in a Kelly-green velour cover. The literal title is "The Official Directory of the City of NYC." It contains much information helpful in answering questions in examinations for NYC jobs.

Boy gets girl... or boy?
or twins maybe!

All through the long, happy wait for this couple, the obstetrician will guide the young mother-to-be through her pregnancy. He'll check her blood, urine, weight, blood pressure and observe the position of the baby regularly. He'll guard her against infections of the kidney and a host of other female difficulties that used to interfere with Mother Nature's best interests. And when the time comes, he'll spank the breath of life into the baby. For that precious moment, he's stuck the stork's best friend!

The obstetrician is just one of twelve specialists who support your H.I.P. family doctor in comprehensive teamwork medical care of your family. Whenever you need a doctor, surgeon or specialist... as close as you need a doctor, surgeon or specialist... the entire H.I.P. medical team is at your service. Yet you'll never see a doctor's bill! You pay a single, moderate premium: the cost of H.I.P. comprehensive teamwork medical care for a family of three or more is just $26 a day! H.I.P. now serves over 420,000 New Yorkers and suburbanites, many of them union members. Why not ask your employer or union officials today how you and your co-workers can join H.I.P.

Suffolk Aides Hear How Civil Servants Worked in America’s Early Times

PATCHOGUE, May 23 — The civil servant of today is a skilled professional whose job is vital to the community to whom his life work is devoted. This was the heart of an address delivered by Thomas Dyer to the CSEA, at the Patchogue Hotel, May 14.

Mr. Dyer, who is Chairman of the Onondaga County Board of Supervisors and counsel in the central part of the State, contrasted the present demands on government with demands when our nation was young. Some late-going governmental functions, he said, firefighting, police protection, maintenance of water, sewer and highway systems, became increasingly more complex and require thoroughly trained professional persons. The community also has new demands on its governmental structure. The Committee of 1883, in evidence, noted the need in all areas as public and mental health. These are the jobs public servants enjoy, the jobs to which they voluntarily devote their lives.

Vehicle Inspectors Hold Annual Meeting
ALBANY, May 23 — The 19th annual meeting of the Public Service Motor Vehicle Inspection Association, CSEA, was held in Albany.

Mr. Dunn, who is President, D. A. Phillips, U.S.I. president; Ralph Fawley, recently appointed superintendent of motor vehicle inspection; William H. Bellot, Syracuse, secretary-treasurer; John F. Murphy, Troy, 3rd vice president; and William B. Bichrest, Utica, secretary-treasurer.

In connection with action on applications for reclassification and realization under Chapter 237, the Director of Classification and Compensation reviewed the classification of all positions engaged in the operation of water treatment plants, filter plants, and sewage disposal plants. A revised plan of reclassification was submitted with an application for approval on April 1, 1954. The changes are by reclassification, and those individual employees whose positions are affected will receive notices of determinations.

Results of State Pay Appeals Announced

Staten Island, May 23 — Results of the first round of the first phase of the new State Pay Appeals program were announced today. The new program was set up to handle appeals from employees who are unhappy with their new compensation plan.

A total of 1,624 appeals were handled in the first phase. A total of 1,481 were determined to be valid, and 143 were found to be invalid. Of the valid appeals, 721 were determined to be in favor of the employee, 617 were in favor of the State, and 17 were determined to be in favor of both parties.

The results of the appeals will be sent to the employees who filed them, and the State will begin to implement the new compensation plan.

The new compensation plan is designed to provide better pay and benefits for State employees. It is based on a salary survey conducted by the State in 1953, and it is expected to save the State $35 million per year.
