New York City has entered the Birnbaum case, supporting the Teachers Retirement System that the system can reduce the annuity of present members of the system by adopting new mortality tables. The teachers retirement system is part of the Teachers Retirement System of New York City and is one of the largest in the country.

Charges Are Upheld Against Lanza Case Parole Officers

ALBANY, May 12 — Charges against two officers of the State Parole Board have been upheld.

The State Parole Board announced its decision in the disciplinary actions against parole officers John Clark and Francis K. Lawrence. The employees were formally suspended from their positions for alleged violation of the rules and regulations of the division.

Mr. Clark and Mr. Lawrence were charged with making false entries in official records and in addition, Mr. Lawrence was charged with violating a rule relating to permitting a prisoner in custody to have unauthorized contact with other persons.

The charges grew out of the highly publicized Socks Lanza parole case.

The board, after reviewing the recommendations of the hearing commissioner, sustained the charges.

As a result of the suspensions, both employees will lose one month’s pay for the period they were initially suspended. Mr. Clark will lose an additional month’s pay as a result of the board’s findings. Mr. Lawrence was officially reprimanded and restored to duty. The monetary penalty for Mr. Clark will be about $1,000 while the penalty for Mr. Lawrence will be approximately $500.

Notice Bill Killed

ALBANY, May 12—A bill which would have required State agencies to discontinue the practice of applying new mortality tables has been disapproved by the governor.

The measure “runs directly contrary to the thinking embodied by the State to give adequate attention to the completely spontaneous outburst of publicity on complaints about working hours, which have received so much space in the papers these past few weeks,” if the newspaper reports are accurate, despite general agreement that the troopers working hours are ridiculous, the only change in working hours for which we can use the increase of daily hours of the Thruway detail from approximately one hour to a week.

Last year when we challenged the failures of the State to accord Civil Service status to members of the division of State Police, you designated a committee composed of Assistant Director Alden, Supreme Court Commissioner, and William J. Murray, administrative assistant to the Civil Service Department, to consider the substance of our complaint.

That was an imperative that we have an early opportunity to discuss the problems of the state police either with you or with a similar high level committee to which that was appointed by you last year. As you are well aware, the problem of the troopers’ working hours goes beyond the Division itself since there are definite budgetary implications and it is therefore desirable to discuss the matter at the level of your office or your designee rather than purely with the division.”

Wider Security Risk Bill Is Voted

ALBANY, May 12—A bill which would have extended the effective date of the Security Risk Bill until June 30, 1950, and broadened its definition of security risk has been defeated by the Senate.

Mr. Harriman, point out that he had submitted a similar bill to extend the risk law another year, and the measure “runs directly contrary to the thinking embodied in a report by the Committee on Police Employees Security Procedures.

The bill also was opposed by the State Civil Service Commission, the Civil Service Employees Association and other groups. The bill would have extended security risk provisions to every state agency and every state job.

Harriman Asks Better Career Opportunities For Public Employees

ALBANY, May 12—A plan for greater advancement opportunities and public recognition for the public employee was voiced by Governor Harriman at the New Year's celebration dinner.""}

"The civil service reformers, three-quarters of a century ago, were satisfied that if they could make 'merit and fitness' the test for appointment, the ablest candidates would be attracted to government service. Like in old romances, if the spils system were once abolished, everybody would live happily ever after. Well, it hasn't worked out quite that way, although certainly, with the doing away of the spils system, the quality of individual civil servants has risen to meet the greatly expanded needs of public service.

"There were fewer than 3,560 State employees when civil service was inaugurated. Today, 90,000 are required and there are 2,700 different job titles in the State Civil Service. Among the 355 original job classifications we find such menaces of bygone days as coachman, blacksmith, and treasurer.

"To meet the complex needs of today there are such positions as auditors, parole officers, airline pilots, an assistant director of laboratories for bio-chemistry and immunology, a director of industrial relations and so forth.

"Thirty-three thousand of today's employees are needed to care for the more than 115,000 patients in our mental hospitals and institutions. Others patrol and manage the State forest lands and maintain the more than 14,000 miles of State highways.

"Still others do research on cancer, tuberculosis, and heart disease; inspectоварies, banks and boxing bouts; regulate race tracks and cemeteries and combat crime.

"But, we have only to think of how many of the most talented leave government service annually to realize that something more is needed than merely placing initial recruitment upon the basis of merit and fitness.

"Governor Harriman continued: "This year, an important step to broaden advancement opportunities was taken with enactment of a law I recommended making it easier for high level employees to move from one department to another, either by transfer or through promotional examination. But the Legislature short-sightedly cut out of the budget funds I proposed to permit a modest beginning on an incentive program which would have allowed cash awards for efficiency, economy and superior job performance among State employees.

"If the Civil Service is to truly represent a worthwhile career to able minds, in addition to improved material recognition, it is essential that Civil Servants be held in the high esteem they merit." Governor Harriman said. "Too often, uninformed people criticize public service without discrimination—calling it a bummer, or some other slighting term. The facts are that all our great governmental activities, including scientific programs which affect the health and welfare of all of us—the very security of our nation—depend for success on our loyal civil servants."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

HARRIS ELLSWORTH, Chairman, U. S. Civil Service Commission, on "Seventy-five years ago the U. S. Civil Service Commission was set up, among other reasons, to help the President improve the efficiency of the public service. Seventy-five years ago the Civil Service Act overthrew the mistaken idea of some people that just anyone can be a government executive. We now need career executives by the hundreds, rather than by the dozens. And we no longer can rely on haphazard methods or chance."

Many Harshes Now, But What About Later?

Governor Hartman has proclaimed the month of May as Civil Service month. Last week there began a series of events emphasizing the 75th anniversary of the passage of the Civil Service Law. The theme of Open House Week throughout the State underlines this 75th anniversary.

During the month, and at other celebrations, many nice and complimentary things will be said about the work and integrity of the public servant. Many public servants may be impressed and some will be led to a new understanding of just what public service is and how dependent the community and nation are upon it.

So much for the month of May. During the rest of the year, except for occasional and sometimes sensational news stories, the public service and the public servant will rarely be mentioned. Your civil service organization will try to keep alive the public interest, and will try to bring about a better public understanding through its frequent contacts with the public press and the community. However, the real and effective job of selling the value of the public service to the people lies within the power of the civil servants themselves. There are several thousand of them in New York State. Each day, almost every minute of every day, there is a meeting between a civil servant and a citizen. The policeman pursuing a crime, the state tax inspector, the Motor Vehicle Bureau testing for a driving license or a regulation to a prospective tradesman, the tax office discussing a bill with a property owner, the license bureau explaining a law to a citizen. Other civil servants are the policemen pursuing a crime, the state tax inspector, the Motor Vehicle Bureau testing for a driving license or a regulation to a prospective tradesman, the tax office discussing a bill with a property owner, the license bureau explaining a law to a citizen. Letters to the Editor: Municipal Accountants

_The Leader_, May 13, 1958

Municipal Accountants

The Society of Municipal Accountants is soliciting ideas from its members to help bring about more equitable pay for municipal accountants. As the rate of pay for industrial workers has increased, it is essential that the pay of municipal accountants increase proportionately. The six- or eight-week summer vacation, which is typical of many industrial workers, should also be considered for municipal accountants. To meet the increasing demands on our city accountants, it is necessary to increase the salaries of these employees. The number of cases, the amount of research, the amount of paper work, the volume of books, and the number of reports are all factors that need consideration. Although the need for these changes is apparent, the possibility of their implementation may not be. The expense of salaries is only part of the problem. The city has no funds available for salaries that are higher than those of industrial workers. A raise for the accountants is necessary, however, if the city is to attract qualified accountants. The city can no longer afford to pay less than industrial accountants.

About Time Irony Ended

The United States government is sensitive to the embarrassment of conceding monetary advantages to private industry over federal employees. Remedies for these discrepancies may be slow in coming, but a 10 percent increase in pay for supervisors less than industry employees who pay their travel expenses to the job is a step in the right direction. Federal employees, less than industry employees who pay their travel expenses to the job, the U.S. Civil Service Commission is backing a bill to have the government defray the cost, as private industry does, relating to hard-to-fill jobs. The Commission drafted the bill; its purpose, Chairman Ellsworth says of the bill, is to increase the ability of Federal agencies to recruit the highly qualified and specialized personnel needed by a reduction in his first-year salary. A particularly favorable factor in this bill is the recognition of the value of federal services in the community.

SEEK UNIFORM FRINGES

In the past, the different states have been able to levy different rates, but the Internal Revenue Service has been able to make adjustments to the federal income tax. This has led to the conclusion that the federal government should be able to levy uniform rates. The state of New York is one of the states that has been able to levy uniform rates. Law Cases

(Continued from Page 6) for mandamus after a hearing. He seeks to compel the civil service commission to grant him the right of appeal to the Commissioner pursuant to subd. 2 of Sec. 4 of the civil service law, or in the alternative to have his case transferred to the Appellate division for disposition. There the alternative to have his case missed the petition as to the civil service commission. As to the commissioner of hospitals the petitioner was suspended for insubordination for refusing to submit to a medical examination. The petition was granted because the petition failed to allege facts which establish a clear legal right to the relief sought.

O'Neill et al. v. Rechter. Petitioners sought redress on examination for promotion to sergeant (P.D.), for answers other than the key answers to certain questions. The application was denied because the proceeding was instituted more than four months after the publication of the final key answers.

Windle v. Adams. After trial the court decided that petitioner, a former patrolman (P.D.) had reigned without the consent of the police commissioner while he was under indictment. He applied for reinstatement within one year but his application was denied on the ground that he was ineligible as he had not been separated for any cause other than fault or dismissal on his part. His petition was dismissed.

Kelly v. Board of Examiners (Board of Education). The court denied a motion to dismiss the petition for insufficiency where it was alleged that the respondent's appeals committee found petitioner entitled to a 95 per cent additional credit on her supervision test. The court pointed out that such appeals committees have jurisdiction by virtue of respondent's by-laws. Permission to serve an answer was granted.

Wynne v. Board of Education (Yonkers, Supreme Court, Westchester County). Proceeding for reinstatement as an active teacher of the public school system. A motion to dismiss the petition was granted because the petition failed to allege facts which establish a clear legal right to the relief sought.

Shugrue v. Helfgen. As permitted by the court, an amended petition has been served. The present petition was found objectionable for the same defects which appeared originally and the court held that it cannot be answered in a manner to frame issues. The application for review was again denied but leave to serve a second amended petition was granted.

Stem v. Kennedy. Petitioner was dismissed as unsatisfactory during his probationary period as patrolman (P.D.) because he failed to disclose, on four occasions, in answer to direct questions, that he had been connected with a certain organization. The court found that the dismissal was made in good faith and upon sufficient evidence and dismissed the petition.

Fosler v. Board of Higher Education. Petitioners, college science assistants and college science technicians, while on the instructional staff, were placed on the inactive list on the ground that they were ineligible as assistants and college science technicians, while on the instructional staff, were placed on the inactive list. The petitioners, eligibles on list for correction, seek to have the employment of provisionalists in that position.

Keough v. Cavagnac. A lieutenant in the Fire Department seeks to compel correction of his appointment. Date to give him seniority is September 14, 1942. Pearl v. State Department of Civil Service (Albany County). Petitioner, a candidate in examination for promotion in the Inspector General Service Department, failed the test and in this proceeding the rating given him. CLOTHES FOR CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYEES OVER 45 YEARS

About three years ago, a Correction Department employee in Syracuse fractured his hip. Complication set in and today he is still disabled and out of work.

Fortunately, this man was enrolled in the CSEA Plan of Accident and Sickness Benefits. Because of his foresight he has received a monthly Disability Check for $115.00 for the past 34 months.

Don't wait for the last hour by the same accident. Protect your income by enrolling in the CSEA Plan of Accident and Sickness Insurance. This needed protection is not included in the new Social Security Plan.

Get in touch with one of these experienced insurance counselors who work in our Civil Service Department.
