the following points had been respected with the civilian employees:

ployees in the Division of State
Police will be classified by the Directors of Classification of the sion of Classification and Compensation in the near future.

2. The civilian positions will be weigh the questions and judgment of the State Travel

Department for the eligibility of all employees for travel allowances and other per-

Law Cases

Ridley M. Stern, counsel, submitted to the New York City Civil Service Commission the following report on law cases:

MacKeenin y v. Board of Education (New Rochelle). In conjunction with certain "Conditions of Transfer" the petitioner and other teachers were placed upon salary steps, lower than their years of service and transfer credits entitled them. However, they are receiving salaries in excess of those to which they would be entitled under section 3194 of the Education Law had they been placed upon the proper steps. They brought this proceeding to compel full compliance with such law. The court found that while there was a technical violation of the law, the petitioners were not injured and sought an unfair advantage by demanding that they be paid according to the salary schedule and in the same time s e e k i n g to avoid limitations adopted in conjunction therewith. The court pointed out that an order under Article 18, C.P.A. is discretionary and may be denied even where a clear legal right is shown to exist and dismissed the petition.

Norton v. Schechter. The court denied a second application by the petitioner for reargument.

Public Administration

The Civil Service Federation of Canada, which has a membership of about 7,600, has asked for direct negotiation between the government and the federation as bargaining agent for all public employees. Other requests include a reduction in the work week to 36 hours; a five-day week for administrative classes and a five-day 40-hour week for operating classes; an increase in the number of civil service commissioners to five; an increase in the number of hours for operating classes; and job evaluation.

"Say You Saw It in The Leader"

"Nuptials" are weddings... and a wedding call for a gift. Delight the bride with an electric appliance. It's such a thoughtful gift—helps so much in setting up housekeeping.

Using it will be easy on her budget, too... because the price of Con Edison electricity is still about the same as it was 10 years ago.

Con Edison
Public Employees Caught in a Pay Trap

The price of food is once again at a new high. The food dollar usually covers a smaller bite. A pound of oranges, for example, cost about 8 cents. The cost of living has risen continually for the past 10 months. This is not startling news—in fact, it is what the army calls SOP (Standard Operating Procedure). The rigidities, the rules and regulations which have accompanied the rising of prices have created a crazy-quilt of cost-cutting, inflation, and deflation reflected in our daily lives. There is one group of workers who stand to lose heavily during this period of economic confusion. That is the public worker. The price of food, the rent, the cost of transportation, and the cost of living increases are all factors that affect the public worker. The public worker has been hit hard by the inflationary trend. The recent increase in the price of food and other necessities has forced him to cut back on his spending. This has resulted in a decrease in his disposable income. The public worker has been forced to cut back on his spending and to save money. This has resulted in a decrease in his disposable income.

Parity with Industry Sought

Individually, many public officials have decreed this fact—but collectively the public officials have never reconciled the disparity. The public worker has been caught in a web in which he is caught. Never once has this problem been discussed or solved. The public worker has been forced to accept the fact that he is not getting his full share of the benefits that have been derived from the increase in the price of food and other necessities. The public worker has been forced to accept the fact that he is not getting his full share of the benefits that have been derived from the increase in the price of food and other necessities.

Letter from Europe

By VIRGINIA LEATHAM

The Civil Service Employees Association, for the first time, has sponsored a low-cost tour of Europe. The purpose of the tour is to introduce the members to the industrial, political, and collective action of European countries. A review of the state salary discussions during the last legislative session is sufficient to underline this observation. The working conditions of the public employee in Europe present a different position on the question of public workers' salaries. The main point here has been the establishment of the salary level on a national scale. The problem is not the same here as it is in the United States. The establishment of the salary level is a collective action, and in addition calls on its members to immediately start its turning above, and organization for a salary campaign for the 1958 legislative session.

Government and Politics

Called Prime Careers

A YOUNG PERSON, unable to make up his or her mind what kind of a career to seek, should give serious attention in governed politics, advises Joseph T. Sharkey, who ought to know. Not only is he Vice Chairman of the New York City Council but he is also a former competitive civil service employee of the New York City Fire Department. Incidentally, he's chairman of the executive committee of the Kings County Democratic Organization, which means Democratic leader of his community and has held that post for four years, or longer than anybody else who occupied it in the past.

According to those who govern and politics offer such inviting prospects for the young, he explained: "Government and politics are expanding institutions and never go out of business. The opportunities in both fields are greater today than ever and will be still greater tomorrow." Example of Choice.

"If you had a choice, which would you choose?" It didn't have a choice, he answered. "And I chose government. However, I was always fascinated by politics even as a youth. Persons who follow their heart's desire and their natural bent usually do well." "Well, how did you fare doing just that?"

"I can't complain. I try to do better than just make the grade in everything I undertake, and I think that's a splendid prospect for anybody. Those satisfied just to get by never do anything more than just that."

"How does one get started in politics when politics doesn't have any immediate job to offer?"

Politics No Overnight Race

"Success in politics is not shelled overnight, but a government job can be obtained without undue loss of time. That's why a government job is the more practical immediate choice. One should maintain a deep interest in politics all his life, whether he intends to follow politics professionally or not, since politics is nowhere more than the science of government. These days interest in one's government is on a par with patriotism."

"You recommend that those interested in a political career should begin active in politics early, learn the ropes, and serve their party well, to earn recognition and advancement?"

"I recommend that heartily. In politics particularly, one should have the knack of getting along well with people. One must like them, and be ready to hear their requests, arguments or protests. My own does at City Hall and at Democratic headquarters is always open. Today the politician who attempts to seal himself in is only sealing his own doom."

The Democratic Principle

"What do you consider the fundamental principle in politics?"

"The same as in government—majority rule."

"Do you always apply it?"

"Always. When a bill is introduced in the Council I study it. If it deals with some technical subject with which I'm not familiar, I solicit written comment from experts. Also, all City departments that could possibly be affected are asked their opinion. Whenever necessary a public hearing is held. At public hearings much informative and enlightening argument is heard."

"Do you carry out the same in the Kings County Democratic organization?"

"Of course. Only the other day the question of nominations for the coming election was discussed by the executive committee. The final decision was reached by recorded majority vote."

JOSEPH T. SHARKEY

Mr. Sharkey has an attractive personality himself, and a winning smile.

When civil service employees' organizations want to get some bill adopted which would affect them deserve a fair hearing. They often turn first to the political alumnus of their own ranks. He doesn't introduce bills, since he's Vice Chairman, but he can wield influence, and does, when he becomes convinced of a measure's merit.

Mr. Sharkey backed the bill introduced by Congressman Daniel S. Weiss of Manhattan to afford security to the jobs of live poultry inspectors by making them inspectors of markets, weights and measures, and other recent civil service legislation.

Mr. Sharkey is a devoted family man who regrets that duties of his two jobs don't permit him to spend as much time with his family as he'd like.

"Opera and jazz?" he was asked.

"Yes. I get as much kick out of hearing Louis Armstrong's band as out of the New York Philharmonic or just plain jazz concerts as often as he'd like."

"Would you attend as many affairs as I possibly can, and those I can't possibly attend, I attend anyway."

A Survey of Opportunities

In Private Industry

By A. L. Peters

The following describes job opportunities in private industry:

TEMPORARY CLERICAL JOBS

Some of the largest temporary employment agencies in the City of New York offer temporary employment opportunities for the man or woman who is looking for a Civil Service position. Not only does this afford them opportunities to work but the hours are increased from year to day or week to week, so that he does not have to leave in the middle when a Civil Service position is made available. A number of agencies provide this kind of work. They have many more calls for temporary stenographers, bookkeepers, switchboard and monitor board operators and operators of other office machines all the time. Today, with the increasing number of people being laid off, firms are having a great need for workers now their regular payroll to come in and help on special projects, to fill in during vacation periods and during late seasons. It remains easier for firms to call in outside help, than to keep extra people on their payroll.

At the agencies, experienced personnel administer tests, both general intelligence and specific proficiency tests. These people have all been given an extensive background.

From month to month, the temporary agencies provide employment for hundreds of young people who might otherwise be unable to find it. A young person who is being forced to look elsewhere for a job will be surprised to find a position available from the agencies, and might view them as a temporary place of employment, but in reality, they provide an opportunity for the future.

About three years ago, a Correction Department employee in Syracuse fractured his hip. Complication set in and today he is still disabled and out of work.

Fortunately, he was enrolled in the CSEA Plan of Accident and Sickness Insurance. This needed protection is not included in the new State Health Plan.

Let us hope that the Senate bill is enacted because of the fairer treatment it would give those on fixed incomes. But whatever happens, we believe that there is still a need, for in the case of public employees pensioners the need can be conclusively proved.

The Callous Approach Is Outmoded

The actuarial soundness of a pension system need not be impaired by granting the benefits to the cost of living. The science of actuarial statistics on which actuarial values are based is so far advanced that the extra benefit could be included in the estimates on which future operation of a plan is based.

Social Security Questions

I BELIEVE that my husband could collect Social Security at some time prior to his recent death. However, I am unable to locate his Social Security card and number. What can I do?

J. B.

Visit your local Social Security office. Take with you the name and address of your husband's employer, information regarding his place of birth, the name of his father and the maiden name of his mother. The Social Security Administration will search its records in an attempt to locate his account number.

My brother passed away leaving a widow and three children under 18. What documents should the widow bring with her when she visits the Social Security office to apply for benefits?

C. V.

She will need her husband's Social Security card, or number, a death certificate, her marriage certificate and birth certificates for her three children.

If I have been overpaid benefits because I earned over $1,200, how is this over-payment collected?

V. E.

You will be requested by the government to refund the over-payment.

I understand that a working woman who retires at age 62 receives 80 percent of the amount she would have received at age 65. Would she eat a larger monthly benefit if she retired at 63 years of age instead of at age 62?

G. V.

Yes. A working woman, or wife of a retired worker, retiring at age 63 would get a higher benefit.

Your Social Security benefit will not be reduced. However, some private employer retirement plans affect the Social Security benefit against their retirement amount. Actually there are many different plans or combinations in such cases. You should check now with your employer to see what plan is provided in your case.

It was 4:00 P.M. when we hit Lucerne after a full day of riding, and what a refreshing sight it was! Such beauty is really hard to believe. Nothing so far on our tour has made such an impression on us as our first sight of Lucerne with its beautiful blue lake and snow-capped mountains glistening in the sun of late afternoon. There was constabulation about the quaint winding streets, the colorful buildings and fountains painted on their stone walls, and the enamelled bridges which grace the small squares.

We See The Alps
Lucerne is a city of tourists, with the train station in the middle of the surrounding villages and the graciousness of the people, but fortunate for us we were spared the hustle and bustle from its charm. Lovely shops specializing in watches, woodcarvings, and paintings are conveniently placed there for comfortable viewing across the lake to the magnificent Alps, one of the most beautiful in the world. At night the lights of the hotels and restaurants are reflected on the water to add a romantic touch to Lucerne. The Alps are reflected on the water to add a romantic touch to Lucerne.

Looking at snow-capped Alps from Lucerne is wonderful, but when you get up close to them it is really a trick. Especially the way we did it. Some of the tours we were on went to the peak of Mt. Pilatus, which is about 7,000 feet high. On top of the mountain there are restaurants and hotels, and real snow. It was quite an experience to stay there for a night.

We left our bus and wonderful driver, Louis, at Lucerne, and traveled by train from Lucerne to Innsbruck, Austria.

Wonderful Trains
Our private car on the train was filled with an atmosphere of those compartment types with sliding doors. Plush seats, too. The train was the kind they have on "Foreign Lights" and all say stories on TV. We kept watching for a stop to turn us. We stopped briefly for a show of passports at the Austrian border, and then settled back to enjoy the scenery through the huge picture windows of the train.

The snow-capped Alps are even higher than those of Switzerland, and the rails are very narrow. The train did not slow down, but the coach was unnoticeable.

We watched from the train window and were glad we brought our binoculars. The heights of the Alps were quite impressive. The peaks were white with snow. In the distance we could see the tops of the Mont Blanc range. The peaks were so high that they seemed to be touching the clouds. We could see the snow-capped peaks for miles around. The view was absolutely beautiful, and the weather was very mild. In Florence it got really warm and we were glad we had packed our light clothing. We were almost overcome by the beauty of the Alps.

A Wonderful Square
St. Mark's Square at night is wonderful, and such crowds! It was St. Mark's Square where we tried to get a table in the square on a Saturday night. Mint, flowers, and clubs, and, of course, souvenirs. Lots, tens, thousands of them. We visited the Basilica of San Marco Basilica in London, which is not a circus at all. St. Mark's Square is a square with a real atmosphere.

Later, in the afternoon we walked through the narrow passageways of the city and over a few of the bridges to see the lovely Grand Canal, the main waterway of Venice. The oldest bridge, the Rialto Bridge, is about 700 years old, and the oldest bridge on the other side of St. Mark's. This was the picture of people pouring into the (Cathedral) square and the bright sun shining on the lovely details of the facade and the clock tower. Then all the tourists (excluding us) pose for pictures with all the pedestrains.

In the evening we had a carra- van of gondolas to take us rid- ing around the island. Complete with Italian accordion and accordion, to provide music as we were going through the canals. We took no visas to Venice would be complete without this.

Our trip from Venice to Innsbruck hotel to the railroad station next mor- ning was also by gondola — bag- gage and all — and we didn't even get wet.

Once again we had a very com- fortable flat class train from Venice to Florence. The sun was shining and the weather was very mild. In Florence it got really warm and we were glad we had packed our light clothing. We were almost overcome by the beauty of the Alps.
