NYC Labor Commissioner
Raps AFSCME For Taking
Credit on Upgradings

Attempts by a New York City local of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees to take credit for gains won for City hospital employees by another union were publicly discredited by David A. Fein, New York City Labor Commissioner and Chairman of the City's Salary and Classification Appeals Board.

For the past few years a Transmitter local - 217 - conducted a solo campaign to have eight titles upgraded in the City Hospital Department. That local was the only organization to file petitions, and its members were permitted to see the upgrading orders over that period of time.

Recently, the Transmitter local's fight met with success when the New York City Salary appeals Board supported the upgrading demands.

Henry Feinstein, president of Local 217, said yesterday the local was no sooner announced than the local issued a circular entitled "One Way to Slim a Cat" in which the AFSCME took credit for winning the gains although the AFSCME local had no part in the appeals.

The circular, issued by Local 420 read in part: "Our boycott won! Salary Board renders Yields; 420's boycott of the Board felt the very real power of our Yields. 420's boycott of the Board..."

Mr. Feinstein said that other organizations have been pressured by AFSCME tactics.

"Our joy is New York City," he said, "all we know that the Civil Service Employees Association for all practical purposes the sole bargaining agent for State employees. This has not stopped Mr. Wurf, and his few State employee members from taking credit for gains made by employees in getting candidates elected to political office, although his State has no political influence, and he claims credit for gains that he has not made.

"This kind of thing is not new to us, and by this time we don't think so. Wurf and his local presidents have fooled many people.

To date, the AFSCME has no plans to discontinue Commissioner Felix's disclaiming.

COURT EMPLOYEES DUE FOR FRINGE BENEFITS

About 130 employees of New York City Magistrates’ Court have joined with the Probation and Parole Officers’ Association of Greater New York and the Magistrate’s Clerks Association in bringing a mandamus action in New York Supreme Court, Monis Weissberg is their attorney. The group seeks the benefit of the Uniform Leave Regulations established by the Board of Estimate. It contends that court employees do not get the same sick leave, personal business leave, or terminal leave, or other fringe benefits that other City employees enjoy, but are governed by rules characteristic of another era.

Questions Answered on Social Security

How can I find out what Social Security benefits my family or I am entitled to before my retirement or in the event of a family member's death?

You can get general information about family benefits at your Social Security office or by writing to SSA. Additional information will be given, and you can pick up sample applications and statements of family benefits. If you need more specific information, you may need to see a public official about benefits now due or to be paid after September 1960. This information is contained in a booklet called "Social Security Benefits" which you can get from your local Social Security office.

My wife and I both work under Social Security. Would the Social Security benefits be enough for us to live upon your retirement?

Probably not. Social Security provides only a part of the income you will need in retirement. Your Social Security benefits can be expected to be small and will provide only the minimum additional income upon your retirement.

I am unmarried and living together with my partner. Can we receive Social Security benefits?

Your Social Security benefits may provide some help towards meeting your living expenses. A married couple, however, would be covered under one Social Security account. You may be entitled to a separate Social Security account if you were married before 1955 when your partner was 15 years of age or older. If you have both worked under Social Security, your benefits might be larger than the Social Security benefits due you now. Social Security benefits can be received by 'survivors' of Social Security workers under age 60 or over, and to their 'dependents'. A dependent is someone who is permanently and basically disabled, or who was permanently and totally disabled at the time of the insured worker's death. If you are the widow or widower of a Social Security worker under age 65, you would be entitled to benefits as a dependent.

I am 54 years old and have just been laid off from work. Could I collect Social Security benefits on the work record of my husband?

Yes, you would be eligible to receive Social Security benefits as a dependent on the earnings record of your husband, but the amount of your benefits would depend on the amount of your husband's earnings. The benefits you could receive would be determined by the amount of your husband's earnings and the number of years he has worked under Social Security. You could collect Social Security benefits on the earnings of your husband, but you would be entitled to a retirement benefit on your own earnings when you reach retirement age.

My husband and I are both aged 62. Can we collect Social Security benefits on our own earnings?

Yes, you can collect Social Security benefits on your own earnings at age 62. You can collect retirement benefits if you meet the eligibility requirements and the amount of your benefits is determined by your own earnings record.

I have a physical handicap because of an accident in 1953. Can I collect Social Security benefits?

If you have a physical handicap because of an accident in 1953, you would be entitled to Social Security benefits if you meet the eligibility requirements and the amount of your benefits is determined by your earnings record.

The Social Security Administration has extended medical care to some patients who are receiving Social Security benefits. Can these patients also collect Social Security benefits on their own earnings record?

Yes, you can collect Social Security benefits on your own earnings record if you meet the eligibility requirements and the amount of your benefits is determined by your earnings record.

I have just become a parent. Can I collect Social Security benefits on my child's earnings record?

Yes, you can collect Social Security benefits on your child's earnings record if you meet the eligibility requirements and the amount of your benefits is determined by your earnings record.

I have a son who is under age 18 and is being cared for by my relatives. Can I collect Social Security benefits on my son's earnings record?

Yes, you can collect Social Security benefits on your son's earnings record if you meet the eligibility requirements and the amount of your benefits is determined by your earnings record.

I am 70 years old and have just retired. Can I collect Social Security benefits on my own earnings record?

Yes, you can collect Social Security benefits on your own earnings record if you meet the eligibility requirements and the amount of your benefits is determined by your earnings record.
