Leader Survey Finds Charges Against Creedmoor by Union To Be Without Foundation

By RICHARD EVANS, Jr.

The Leader last week conducted a thorough, on-the-spot investigation of charges of mismanagement and a variety of other obnoxious practices and conditions at Creedmoor State Hospital, a splinter labor union trying to organize there.

The investigation showed the charges to be primarily groundless: threatened picket lines were nonexistent, and there was very little evidence of group activity at the hospital.

This group, local 181 of the Building Service Employees Union, claims to have 400 members at Creedmoor, but this reporter spent nearly a day trying to locate one of its stewards and was able to find only two employees who would admit they were members, never mind stewards.

Reported attendance at the group's meeting the previous night, June 8, was about ten people.

The dominant employee group at the hospital is the Creedmoor Chapter of the Civil Service Employees Association, which can prove more than 1,900 active members from among the hospital's 2,000 employees.

Dr. Frank M. Cullen, assistant director at the hospital, said he personally did not know who the chief steward of the splinter group was nor who any of the ward stewards were or even who might be a member.

Joseph Bottura, CSEA Chapter president, said that "it would seem reasonable to assume that an organization making such broad claims and criticisms would have some contact with the administration.

The members of this group are typical of a minority labor group fomenting abstract dissatisfaction, unrealistic demands, and general unrest purely for the sake of its desire for members.

"It can set no responsibly because, since it deals with no one of authority, it has no authority itself and no responsibility."

The splinter group encouraged hospital employees, with promises of protection, to acts of insubordination. The protection was not forthcoming.

Mrs. Margaret C. Schrader, an attendant at Creedmoor, was one of the two splinter union members The Leader interviewed.

Last week she received a month's suspension and a $19 fine for refusing to help clean a flooded basement. The union leaders had told her to refuse the work and they would see she was not punished.

Other Charges

The group had also charged that employee morale was at a low ebb. In touring the wards, recreation areas, kitchens and other installations, The Leader reporter talked to many attendants and other employees. Their attitude was unmistakably one of general content and pride in their work.

The only two members of the minority union this reporter could locate (Continued on Page 14)

Fringe Benefits Let Gov't. Compete With Industry For Personnel, Kaplan Believes

MONTREAL, June 15 — The traditional disadvantage of government in competing with private business for the services of able people can be neutralized to some extent by liberalization of retirement and other fringe benefits, according to H. Eliot Kaplan, president of the New York State Civil Service Commission.

Mr. Kaplan's remarks were made at the annual conference of the Municipal Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada, held here June 9.

"Public service plans have been in existence a long time," he continued, "some-for police, firemen and teachers—for more than three-quarters of a century."

It is a misunderstanding, Mr. Kaplan explained, to believe that these plans are only for devices to attract and hold superior personnel.

"It therefore behooves government to level up to do what they can to mitigate this situation. A well-rounded program of all such benefits will be recruiting the far-sighted young person at the outset of his career."

"The government may even give inducement to those approaching the midpoint of their working years. Perhaps even more important, it cuts down the 'grievance' of experienced men who might otherwise be enabled by higher salaries and other various inducements of private enterprise.

"What should constitute a just pension of public employee benefits, liberal enough to enable government to compete effectively for its fair share of competent talent?

"It must include at a minimum:

1. An adequately generous retirement allowance geared to the uncovered conditions of the public service.

2. Assurance of pension benefits to employees in competitive industry, with more liberal benefits if the incapacity results from service in government service.

3. Assurance of benefits to surviving dependents of an employee killed in performance of duty.

4. Old age and survivors' benefits either under the Federal Social Security Act or under the retirement plan.

5. Permanently basing up to 50 percent of the employee's contributions, preferably without interest, with the balance of an unpaid balance at the time of the employee's death insured up to a reasonable maximum.

6. Health insurance coverage with the costs shared by the government and the employee.

7. Group life insurance with the costs shared by the government and the employee.

8. A pre-retirement counseling program.

One indication of the number of jobs for Long Island is that Suffolk County pay clerks alone employ about 4,000 clerks. Anyone may apply, whenever the time comes. A Word on Economy, or Where's the Saving?

YOU HAVE to go a long distance these days to find somebody who isn't for economy. It is a fine, high-sounding word. To hear all the talk about economy in government, a man who hankers to spend more public money will beat his wife and kick his children. This paper must register something of a dissent.

There can be too much economy. Services to the public and the business community always carry a price. Whether you want your garbage carted away, or taken care of in any other way, if you want a police guard to protect your family and home and income, if you want any service that people want today, you must have enough money to support it.

The abuse and the danger of too much economy has been proved at a local Federal installation. During an 18-month period, to save money, the civilian guard force was cut down from 150 to 88. At the same time, the military police force, which originally was down to 25, has been increased to 60.

This “saving” really cost money. The difference between the two methods of policing amounts to several thousand dollars per man each year. Military guards, with the supplies and organization needed for them, costs the taxpayers in this instance $50,000 extra.

In other words, you can't economize by doing away with services that you will have to replace anyway.

The City hemmed and hawed about raises that should have been coming to City employees. The big argument was that the City is losing a lot of Big Brother breathing down its neck as it is.

First the chairman of the Federal CSC seems to say there's no need to broaden all of loyalty-security, it was reported in black and white — that there wasn't any way of spreading the loyalty-security regulations. The Supreme Court of Appeals of the United States in a sensitive post, and the bill is a matter which the courts, the courts, the courts.

I think a city stands on this issue, if it is using federal employees, and it is a matter which the courts, the courts, the courts.

The question is whether there should be something definite or that Section 208 states. The question is, what should the courts, the courts, the courts.

I want to point out about the Social Security year that was 1952. And a year in the Social Security year, there must be a training program in the Social Security year.

The Social Security year is paid for all months beginning April 1, 1956, or August 30, 1956, and any month of the Social Security year ending June 30, 1956.

If you file for Social Security benefits, you would be entitled to draw all your monthly payments, or you would be entitled to 12 checks if you earn only $100 a month. A Social Security benefit of $100 a month is $1,200 a year. Yes, I could not qualify for Social Security by my annual earnings. Therefore, you will get a Social Security benefit of $100 a month.

I have worked for several different companies during the past few years. Is there any way to get a G.I. loan if my wages have been reported?

Yes, we have a printed form for your convenience. It is complete and send in for a report on the amount of wages credited to your account for the year. We do not agree with the report, you receive in the mail to your Social Security office for an explanation.

I was dependent on my son for most of my support. Is it possible the Social Security Board of Appeals, has told me that the 1958 amendments have changed that.

Yes, dependent parents can now file for benefits even though they are not living with the child. Under this new rule can be applied to cases where death occurred as long ago as 1945. However, I could not qualify for social security benefits because the deceased was my wife. I have told that the 1958 amendments have changed that.

VARIOUS TECHNICAL CHANGES

Chapter 327 of the Laws of 1959 makes technical changes with respect to the Health Insurance Plan. The revision of the system of costs in connection therewith against the appropriate salaries of employees or officers who are members of the Plan, and who are not covered by a special administrative fund shall have the employer's share of their own costs, and the retirement allowance with respect to said employees shall be increased by the proper assessment of such charges.

Chapter 361 of the Laws of 1959 provides for the unfunded change in the provisions of the unemployment insurance provision of the Labor Law. The Change in the Provisions of the Labor Law is intended in its reference to the Civil Service Law to contain the provisions of the laws of the State of New York for the benefit of all employees of the state of New York who are employed by the state of New York.

LIBERALIZATIONS

Chapter 139 of the Laws of 1959 liberalizes certain provisions of the Retirement and Social Security Law with respect to discontinued service retirement. In essence, this amendment provides that an individual who has been discontinued from employment and was entitled to a discontinued service retirement, and who was subsequently reappointed into State service shall, provided he serves at least ten years after reinstatement and returns the value of the retirement allowance which he received while in discontinued service status, may elect to receive his entire pension for a period of one year, or if he prefers it, a more advantageous rate to him, he may receive a portion of his retirement allowance for a period of time during which a public employee may obtain a leave of absence to attend military service training school.

Chapter 274 of the Laws of 1959 extends until June 20, 1969, the privilege of certain employees to elect to transfer their retirement membership from a system of which they were previously a member to the system to which the employee joined the second system while still a member of the first system. The benefit to the employee shall not have been withdrawn in accordance with the first system.

STATE POLICE - INCREASE SUPERVISORY FORCE

In addition to the bill to increase the number of State Police which was authorized by the Budget bill as finally passed, Chapter 217 of the Laws of 1959 membrane the retirement allowance for a period of one year, or if he prefers it, a more advantageous rate to him, he may receive a portion of his retirement allowance for a period of time during which a public employee may obtain a leave of absence to attend military service training school.
