I am still on active service and am being transferred to another section of the country. Since I have my VA entitlement to a new home may assume the responsibility.

There are, however, cases where the money may be paid to the young person directly.

Who pays the money allowance to VA where a veteran is receiving government aid?

GODD PUBLIC relations can be "banked" and saved for emergencies as readily as money. Just as a government can be drawn upon when the economic going gets tough, so can good public relations be "banked" and drawn upon to achieve an emergency objective. Without passing judgments on the right or wrong of the action itself, we can tell you that President Kennedy was able to impose a price revolution on the American people because of the prestige of the President of the United States. Federal Employees Can Reduce Auto Insurance Costs

As a result of a recent change in the Federal Tort Claims Act, federal employees no longer will have to carry and pay for liability insurance providing coverage while they are using automobiles on U.S. Government business.

This announcement was made recently by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters on behalf of its 250 affiliated companies.

The NBCU explained that an amendment to the act, which became effective March 21, 1962, makes suing against the United States the exclusive remedy for bodily injury or property damage resulting from the operation of a government employee while acting within the scope of his office or employment.

Formerly the employee could be held liable for damages and usually carried insurance protection against this liability, the NBCU said.

It's a fact, each year millions of Americans lose billions of dollars in lost wages as a result of accidents and sickness. Statistics show that 1 out of 5 people will be disabled before age 65, and approximately 1,000 people are permanently disabled due to accidents alone each day.

The CSEA Accident and Sickness Insurance program administered by TerBush & Powell, Inc., offers this vital protection to any active CSEA member.

Over 33,000 employees are already covered and many have re-

Health Plan Downed By Election Politics

Once again the public employee is learning that campaign promises are as usual as Confederate monuments.

When running for office last fall, Mayor Wagner assured New York City employees that, among other things, they would have a choice of health plans, filing fees for City jobs would be dropped and job benefits would be increased.

After studying the health plan choices for months, Deputy Mayor Edward Cavanagh announced last week at a Board of Estimate meeting that the matter was being laid over without date. He declared that "the Mayor has the problem of inadequate funds during the coming year and needs additional revenue."

Well, the Mayor can get additional revenue if he wants it. That can be seen with an eye on the offing. In the offing this means that not only the health plan choice might as well be forgotten for the time being but any action on filing fees, salary adjustments, etc.

Some voters question whether the Mayor has the courage to say more from politics than the merits of the legislation that he killed, hasn't helped the situation any.

Any way you look at it, the public employee is being saddled with policies out of time. The moral of the story is to get your promises turned into action before an election takes place.

How To Win A Bout With Automation

A UTOMATION need not be the unemployment specter it has become. A way of avoiding the depressing effects of the technical age was illustrated last week by the Civil Service Employees Assn. Its answer? Think ahead.

Back in 1959, the Employees Assn. learned that more than 200 jobs in the Albany Division of Employment offices would probably have to be eliminated as a result of new Electronic Data Processing equipment, the installation of which was decided upon that year. It started work at once to save those jobs and, with the cooperation of the Division of Employment and the Civil Service Department, managed to keep every single person affected by automation in State employment.

This was done through transfer, putting the affected personnel in new jobs and trimming overtime work in the Division, but none of this could have been accomplished without intelligent planning and action right from the beginning. The CSEA was not fighting automation—it was battling unemployment.

We congratulate all concerned for thinking of humans rather than computers.

Social Security Questions Answered

Social Security Questions Answered

Below are questions in Social Security problems sent in by our readers. If you have a legal expert in the field, anyone with a question on Social Security should feel free to contact the Social Security Editor, Civil Service Leader, 97 Duane St., New York 7, N.Y.

Is it true that a worker, regardless of his age, may qualify for a monthly retirement benefit as early as November 1960 even though he delays filing his claim until some other time?

False. For a disabled worker under age 30 to become eligible to apply for disability, he must file his application no later than December 31, 1960. For a worker age 31 or over, he must file his application by June 20, 1961. A delay in applying beyond June 20, 1961 may result in a loss of all rights to present and future disability benefits.

I plan to continue working this year at a lower rate of pay. My employer has promised me a raise of $2,000. Will I have to wait until 1963 before I am eligible for payments?

You can give an estimate of your 1962 earnings; some payments may be due this year. You can estimate the number of payments due by applying the following formula: take your total earnings above $1,150 and subtract $1,150, $1 is deducted from your social security payment due for each $1 over $1,150.

I am a car dealer and hire 20 people. One of the employees is my father, who works full time as an office manager. Do the 1960 changes in the social security law make a difference for him to credit for his work now?

Stable explanation. Because of his age, his work was covered by the social security law since he is working in the operation of a business or farm as a partner, brother, or as owner or as his own father or as his mother or a father or a mother's husband.

Where and when does an employee file the social security tax return? I am an employee paid to a domestic employer. The returns are filed within one year of the end of the calendar year. Your employer must file a return with the IRS within one year of the end of the calendar year. If the employee lives in a different country, there will still be a slight reduction.

I am thinking about signing up for my social security when I reach 65 in October. I find a job which pays only $10 a week, and then I plan to retire at 65. How will this affect my checks?

Any checks due you before age 65 will be at the same reduced rate. If you return to work before age 65, your checks will be refunded to you. If you return to work after age 65, your checks will be refunded to you at the time of your retirement.

Stable explanation. Because of his age, his work was covered by the social security law since he is working in the operation of a business or farm as a partner, brother, or as owner or as his own father or as his mother or a father's husband.

The return covering cash wages of $50 or more paid a household worker during January, February, and March 1962, is due by April 1, 1962.
