Changes In Condon-Wadlin Law Urged By Legislative Committee in Study Report

Citing the "self-defeating rigidity and harshness (of)" penalties in the Condon-Wadlin Law, which bans strikes by public employees, the Joint Legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Conditions last week released its report on the law and urged revisions in the measure.

The Condon-Wadlin Law, which provides for the automatic dismissal of public employees, also imposes penalties that involve rehiring without tenure under the Condon-Wadlin Law for three years. The legislation, written during Governor Thomas Dewey's administration following a Buffalo teacher's strike, has rarely been involved in the state and has never been used in New York City.

Employee organizations throughout the state, including the 107,000-member Civil Service Employees Union, have been hostile to the Condon-Wadlin Law since its inception and have called either for its repeal or for serious amendments.

In another important area, the committee recommended that the law "should entail as well binding arbitration of disputes arising under collective agreements." It added, however, that "arbitration of disputes over what should be the desire to strike."

State Changes Suggested

Four basic changes proposed by the committee, headed by Assemblyman Anthony P. Savarese, Jr., were:

- Elimination of any definition of a strike.
- Greater flexibility in penalties that may be invoked against employees.
- Addition of a requirement that the State Attorney General seek an injunction immediately when the law has been violated.
- Provision for arbitration proceeding and collective dealing so that some of the causes of strikes may be eliminated.

The committee also proposed that in place of the penalties of the Condon-Wadlin Law the penalties for misconduct as contained in the State Civil Service Law be substituted.

Stand on Retirement

Protects Aides—CSEA

ALBANY, Aug. 20—The state's laws, constitution and precedents require that the State Retirement System award a pension to J. Vincent Keough, Supreme Court Justice who was sentenced to two years in prison on a bribery charge.

So ruled State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz last week in an opinion sent to State Comptroller Arthur Levitt. Levitt had earlier declared that he had no other choice under law but to allow the asked Lefkowitz for a ruling on the issue.

The stand of both officials was supported by the 107,000-member Civil Service Employees Union, president J. P. Kelly, who declared: "I anticipate criticism from some quarters. I firmly believe, however, that our citizens, in general, upon more reflection would understand that justice for every employee is best served by a decision in the case in which I express judgment now."

Lefkowitz, memorandum to Levitt:

"Whatever may be said of the applicant's eligibility for a retirement allowance under the City System (as to which I express no opinion), the controlling fact here is that unlike the City System, which safeguards the pension rights of members of the New York State retirement system in order to correct this one inhumane act of the Legislature, the Employees Association now opposes the law."

Here are highlights from the Lefkowitz memorandum to Levitt:

"Whatever may be said of the applicant's eligibility for a retirement allowance under the City System (as to which I express no opinion), the controlling fact here is that unlike the City System, which safeguards the pension rights of members of the New York State retirement system in order to correct this one inhumane act of the Legislature, the Employees Association now opposes the law."

Proposed Changes In Condon-Wadlin Law

PUBLIC employee organizations will do well to give long and hard study to the report issued last week by the Joint Legislative Committee On Industrial and Labor Conditions which contains basic recommendations for changes in the Condon-Wadlin Law. This piece of legislation has been a thorn in the side of public employees since its passage in 1967. The penalties are unbelievably harsh; an accused employee has less recourse to trial and appeal than a person accused of treason or murder; the very sweeping definition of a strike, as contained in the law, is so broad that a walk to the water fountain could be the basis for invoking the Condon-Wadlin Law. The result is that it is an ineffective law because no one will invoke the extreme measures its application requires.

The Joint Committee, headed by Assemblyman Anthony P. Baverese, Jr., proposed changes in the law that would eliminate the definition of a strike; give greater flexibility in penalties that may be invoked; require the Attorney General to seek an injunction immediately when the law had been violated; provide grievance processing and collective dealing as a means of eliminating some of the causes of strikes, and provided some sort of off binding arbitration.

Whether or not this committee has provided the answer that public employees want remains to be seen. Employee organizations certainly must make their feelings known and the committee report provides a basis for serious action.

At any rate, it is encouraging that the committee recommends action on the Condon-Wadlin Law in the next session of the Legislature. The issue should be settled once and for all.

from his death without permission. The burden of innocence when charged is on the employee. There is no procedure for appeal.

Savarese declared that revision of the law must be given consideration in the next session of the Legislature.

Employee Relations

First employee organization reaction to the report was expected, mainly because few had received the report in time to give a thorough reading and study. It is doubted that revisions alone will satisfy some organizations, which feel the very nature of the law is an insult to the public officers and to a degree belittles a desire for a better working relationship.

More detailed reaction is expected in the near future.

The convention will open at the Hotel Westward Ho on September 10, 1962.

Progress of the civil career system and questions vital to the welfare of federal employees are among the questions the convention will consider.

The committee agreed to conduct the inquiry after Olsen submitted that it is nearly impossible for older persons to obtain govern- ment jobs and that if these older people do have a government job, they are often overlooked for promotion on the basis of age.

The group will undertake to investigate this charge by means of questionnaires, which agencies and departments will fill out, and personal investigations.

Extension of G.I. Bill of Rights training opportunities for an addi- tional year to Army Reserve and National Guard Units may be passed this session, although both Senate and House have passed versions of the bill. Questions Answered On Social Security

Below are questions in Social Security laws, and answers by an expert in the field. The answers are based on Social Security laws and regulations. They should be read in conjunction with the Social Security Administration's publications. The answers are not a substitute for legal advice and should be used as a general guide.

I receive a civil service pension. Will this prevent me from getting Social Security benefits?

Yes, if you receive a civil service pension, you may lose some or all of your Social Security benefits. Your Social Security benefits will be reduced by the amount of your civil service pension. The reduction is based on the amount of your Social Security benefits and the amount of your civil service pension.

I want to know what happens in civil service proceedings. Get them right so that at least they are not delayed.

In civil service proceedings, the time for filing a petition and the time for a hearing are specified. The time for filing a petition is determined by the date of the hearing. The time for a hearing is determined by the date of the petition. The time for a hearing may be extended if the petitioner requests it.

The Lefkowitz ruling is based on the merit system and the need for fair procedures. The court held that the state's decision to terminate an employee without notice or a fair hearing was contrary to the merit system. The court also held that the state's decision to terminate an employee without notice or a fair hearing was contrary to the merit system. ASKS OPINION

SHERIFF CANDIDATES Favor Civil Service For County Deputies

BUFFALO, Aug. 28—In Erie County, and in most other counties in New York State, deputy sheriff jobs are political plums.

Louis J. Fingerst, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Erie County sheriff by the party's primary, this week said he favors placing deputies under Civil Service.

The proposal is not new but it is in its fourth reawakening.

In manner Niagara County Democratic Sheriff James E. Murphy said he would favor civil service status for his deputies.

SUFFOLK MOVES To Cut Number Of Deputies

SUFFOLK, Aug. 29 —The Suffolk Civil Service Commission is making its first drive to reduce provisional workers in Suffolk County jails, penitentiaries, and schools for the deaf.

Commission Executive Director David Zaron this week issued the fall examination schedule, listing 120 open competitive and promotional tests on a wide variety of positions ranging from toll collector to librarian to assistant airport manager and harbor master.

Zaron said there were about 200 provisional employees in the various municipalities. Zaron had previously completed a similar effort to reduce provisional workers in the county level.

ALBION STATE TRAINING Installs Officers

Tuesday, August 21, 1962

JUDGE JOSEPH F. FELTY

In his office prior to his application to the State Retirement System for a discontinued service retirement allowance, the actuarial investigation as to the amount of the retirement allowance must be continued and his application may be retained. The Court said (p. 58):

"... The retired officer still pays the State a fee, and the cost of his retirement allowance must be shared. The State does not replace a service worker. The State, therefore, is not a beneficiary of the officer's retirement allowance. The State, therefore, is not entitled to his retirement allowance if the officer will be in service on the date of his application."

The significance of this determination is that under the provisions of the State Retirement System, an employee of the State, who has a right to retire under that system, after attainment of the age of fifty-five years, is entitled to retirement benefits. The employee's disability or age does not affect his right to retirement under the State Retirement System. Almost twenty years ago, the members of the New York State Retirement System contributed a significant amount of funds to the State Retirement System in order to provide continuing right to retire under that system. That right is recognized by every member of the State Retirement System and is protected by the State Retirement System. Almost twenty years ago, the members of the New York State Retirement System contributed a significant amount of funds to the State Retirement System in order to provide continuing right to retire under that system.
