ed tirelessly around the State talking to business and labor leaders, small town and big town officials; he has boomed up on the problems of the small businessman, the problems of taxation and unemployment, major problems in almost every community, and let himself be seen and heard by thousands of ordinary voters through his appearances and speeches before innumerable groups and organizations.

To those who expected a rash of promises of what he would do for them in Washington, Robert Kennedy has had a surprising message—self-help is needed more than Federal assistance to get at the root and solution of most of these state and local problems. The Senator’s measure basically has been “Don’t create a Big Brother society by asking Washington to solve all your problems. I’ll help when and where I can, but we must first explore all the possible answers to our troubles right here at home.”

Different Image

The image of a Robert Kennedy who is out to help the New Yorkers help themselves is a far cry from the image of a Robert Kennedy, initiator of ideas in Washington would be the ideal response to every request for Federal assistance to get at the possible answers to our problems. Who is out to help New Yorkers win the presidential race, except to note that the party has many good candidates among all the factions for these jobs.

Upstate Office

One of Kennedy’s first moves after the November election was to show his seriousness about being a working Senator for New York State was to announce he would open an office in the State as well as one in New York City, in order to be available to the people not just in the Metropolitan area. The political wisdom of this move was indirectly underlined when Sen. Jacob J.avis announced similar plans shortly afterward.

In short, Robert Kennedy has managed to convey his deep concern for the duties of his office and his duties to the people of New York, before even taking that office officially. Robert Kennedy already has proved his ability as an active politician. It would appear he may soon emerge as Robert Kennedy, initiator of ideas in the tradition of the New York’s great Senators Robert Wagner and Herbert Lehman. Kennedy is destined to be a man who wants to be judged by performance, not labels.

What’s Doing In City Departments

A movable roof for Shea Stadium is in the planning stage, according to the Department of Commerce and Industrial Development. The new roof would be in place by 1966 and would, it is hoped, draw larger crowds to New York City, thereby bringing millions of dollars in new business to the City. The roof would cost $4 million.

The annual Christmas show by the inmates was held at the New York City Correctional Institution for Men, Rikers Island, recently. It was a variety show of vocal solo, choral singing, comedy skits and dance presentations, all produced and participated in by the Rikers Island inmates. All costumes and stage scenery were also made by the inmates.

The City Commission on Human Rights has said farewell to Commissioner Lester A. Walton, called the “dean of the Commission.” He retired after 60 years of public service as a reformist, diplomatic and champion of human rights. CHR officials made it clear Congress and Industrial Commissioner Walton’s retirement was not accepted as final. They said he would be purchased to become Commissioner Emeritus and would be consulted from time to time.

ALBANY, Dec. 21 — Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has found no bar in the common law concepts of law and ethics to allow a correction officer to engage in part-time employment.

In reply to a question raised by the Public Employment Compensation Board, Lefkowitz wrote: "Whether the part-time employment may interfere with the performance of the duties of the correction officer is a question which should be answered by the Department of Correction."

HIGHER PAY URGED FOR PROFESSIONAL STAFF AT BROOME COUNTY CLINIC

(From Leader Correspondent)

Binghamton, Dec. 21 — Higher salaries have been proposed for professional employees on the staff of the Broome County Mental Health Clinic.

The recommendation came from a special committee headed by Supervisor William B. Havener (R-Fifth Ward), who is chairman of the Board of Supervisors Public Health Committee.

The committee was appointed after Dr. Waldemar H. Bolt, clinic director, complained that he could not fill some vacancies on his staff because salaries were too low.

Dr. Bolt said the present salary schedule makes it difficult to compete with New York City and other agencies for personnel.

The clinic has had to limit its service to the public for the first time since it was created eight years ago, because of a staff shortage.

The recommended pay increases will be studied by the County Employment Committee, headed by Earl D. Riley (R-Ninth Ward).

The raises would cost an additional $5,600 in 1965.

There are the proposed increases:

An additional $300 for Dr. Boldt for a total of $19,600; child psychologist from $13,280 to $14,600, up $1,320; supervisor of psychological services, from $9,204 to $10,999, up $1,795; supervising psychologist, from $7,538 to $8,800 up $1,262.

A psychiatric social worker would have a rate of $5,450, with a range of $5,360 to $5,900, compared to the present $4,700 to $5,700.

A psychiatric social worker would get an added $1,602 with a new range of $7,450 to $8,770.

A social worker would have a raise of $510, with a range of $6,450 to $7,770, compared to the present $6,900 to $7,230.

The pay of Dr. Herman M. Rurden, employed half-time at the state center for $3,120, is not expected to be changed. However, the committee proposed that the range for the job on a full-time basis be raised from the present $16,500 to $18,250 to $17,160 to $20,400.

The committee had already studied the salaries and the 1965 budget has been adopted, so it is now with special action by the Board of Supervisors to grant the higher wages.

Social Security For Federal Employees

Now Being Considered

Official Social Security coverage, already enjoyed by New York State and New York City employees, may soon be accorded Federal Government employees if a citizen's committee recommendation is adopted.

The idea of Social Security coverage for public employees was pioneered in New York State by the Civil Service Employees Association nearly a decade ago.

As of now, the Department of Health Education and Welfare, Health Benefits program. The present regulations have prohibited carriers from advertising plans since 1960, when the program began. The main reason for the ban was to enable employees to choose a plan, from among the large number available to them, on the basis of the complete factual descriptions of benefits in the official brochures.

Prior to the program, most employees had never had to exercise such a choice. The Commission now believes that employees, after having had three opportunities in five years to study and select or change plans, have learned to rely on the official brochures for an accurate description of a plan's benefits, limitations, and exclusions.

It seems important to me that, at least, something should be done about the practice. It is well known that some employees consider their work a "ticket." Another often-used means to make up for the bad weather is to take a vacation in order to prolong the unexpected staffing difficulties.

Employment was up only 1.6 percent in the nation's employment increased 11.1 percent, New York State employment was up 10.4 percent, or about one-seventh the national rate.

By WAY of illustration, approximately one hundred and fifty elevator mechanics and elevator mechanics' helpers in the competitive Civil Service of the City of New York and employees of the Authority complained that their civil service rights were infringed. For years, they worked an eight-hour day from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday. These hours were in compliance with the Authority's Personnel Manual which provided that employees would work the prevailing hours of the industry.

With a VIEW toward assuring uninterrupted elevator service at all times, a novel expansion of these regular working hours was instituted. Ever since, sick leave has been granted to all State employees of the authorities. But employees still expected to meet the needs of the people of New York State lost a valued man of leadership who, at last, something should be done about the practice. 6,000 Jobs Coming To City Area Youth

Some 6,000 jobs for youths up to 21 years of age are scheduled to be made available throughout the New York City metropolitan area. One thousand of these are full-time positions for those still in school with the remaining 5,000 on a part-time basis.

The jobs will be under the supervision of the Neighborhood Youth Corps, a bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor which was set up under anti-poverty legislation.

This corps is aimed at assisting youths who still live at home. Another group, the Job Corps, is programmed to aid youths who still live at home. One thousand of these are expected to continue his education because of the program. The plan is to keep potential school dropouts in school by finding positions for them on a part-time basis. In addition, the hard core school dropout could be influenced to continue his education on a part-time basis through a part-time basis through a earn-learn program, advocates of the program point out.

According to Mrs. Ann M. Roberts, staff director of the City's anti-poverty board, more than five million dollars will be allocated for the program with about 44 per cent of the jobs in City departments with the remainder split between private industry and community action groups.

WE CHOOSE Inspector Sullivan's laudable deed because personal performance is the good performance of a civil servant given such wide publicity. One is more likely to read of a civil servant's misdeeds because good performance to most newspapers and radio stations is 'routine' or 'a bore', and thus 'new story.'

THERE WAS GOOD reason why Inspector Sullivan's story got into print and over the air. The story possessed a number of qualities which, added together, made a big splash. The inspector is young; the narcotics he discovered is worth $3 million; and the circumstances of his find—pinholes and the needle—were an off-beat, that the story was what newspaper reporters call 'natural.'

WE WOULD LIKE to see Inspector Sullivan's achievement "merchandised" in behalf of a civic and political leader, public officials, legislators etc. Civil service organizations should give to opinion leaders—clergy, civic and political leaders, public officials, legislators etc. Civic service organizations should give to opinion leaders—clergy, civic and political leaders, public officials, legislators etc.

Inspector Sullivan did still another great service for civil service. He put a bright spot on the civil servant's image for the newspaper stories, particularly the superb report by Homer Bigart in "The New York Times." It will enhance the Merry Christmas greeting card in "The New York Times."

work-week to forty hours without loss in take-home pay that occurred several years ago. He said, as presently arranged, State employees in certain areas of the State are on a six-day week, and they are not working overtime as not merely overtime pay but as salary.

Merger

CSEA's other request refers to a Departmental announcement earlier this month to consolidate the activities of the Upstate Transportation Studies Group and the Department's Bureau of Highway Planning and Programming.

Concerning this move Peit told McFadden: "Our members employed by your Department are concerned over the merger. Questions have been raised as to whether present career employees will be protected as to promotion opportunities for which they should be eligible. We have heard that a number of individuals, even from outside the State had been brought directly into rather high paid positions on the Department's staff, and we question whether these new postings being established can be filled by promotion of qualified employees already in the Department."

Peit asked for detailed information on the merger situation, including a listing of the new positions and the question of whether each position will be filled. He said the information is sought not so that the Association will be in a position to discuss this information with its members who are interested and take whatever action may be appropriate to protect their interest.
