CSEA Files Clerk Appeal; Charges Union With Not Helping On Reallocations

ALBANY—An appeal to reallocate State clerical titles has been filed by the Civil Service Employees Assn. with the State Civil Service Commission. The Employees Association wants the Commission to overrule a denial of the State Division of Compensation and Classification, which said that the union bid for joint action was nothing more than an admission that they had failed to create any effort for State employees and were just trying to cover up for it by “coming into the act” in an attempt to hide their own ineffectiveness. A CSEA spokesman said, “We are not interested in any joint effort with a union that has made no effort for the State clerical titles. The bid for unity is patently impossible.”

Judging from the files of the State Division of Compensation and Classification, on Dec. 14 rejected an appeal by CSEA to upgrade State clerks two salary grades. A CSEA spokesman said last week that the Employees Association did not intend to stop its fight for clerical aides at the State Division of Compensation and Classification. The Employees Association wants the Commission to overrule a denial of the appeal by CSEA to upgrade State Division of Compensation and Classification to clerical titles,” the spokesman said.

Union Bid Rejected

In the meantime, the CSEA rejected a bid to work with a union on the appeal. The union, according to J. Earl Kelly, had filed no appeal with his agency for the clerks and the CSEA last week declared that the union “has worked a hundred times harder trying to get publicity for itself than it did to help the clerks. We filed a reallocation appeal. They did not. We represent the great majority of the workers. They do not. We have spent our efforts with the Civil Service Department and other State agencies in behalf of the clerks. The union is depending its efforts on getting newspaper publicity and attacking the CSEA.”

CSEA Enters Hempstead Vote

Hempstead — A showdown vote has been scheduled for the first payday in January for about 400 Hempstead Town Sanitation Department employees to choose between the Civil Service Employees Assn., which has represented them for 13 years, and a New York City union.

The CSEA, traditional bargaining agent for all of Hempstead’s 1,000 workers may be chosen by marking an “X” in the upper left-hand box on a ballot prepared for the vote. The vote—among Sanitation Department employees only—was ordered after CSEA officials agreed it would establish that the employees want to continue to be part of the town-wide bargaining unit, long provided by CSEA.

Irving Plautsonbaum, president of the Nassau CSEA chapter, announced the idea of a Sanitation Department bargaining unit, as a threat to the bargaining power of civil servants.

When Living Costs Rise

Levitt Pre-Files Bill

ALBANY — A bill that would give automatic pension increases to retired public employees where there are rises in the cost of living has been pre-filed in the Legislature by State Comptroller Arthur Levitt. A similar bill was supported vigorously by the Civil Service Employees Assn. this year and is a part of the CSEA legislative program for 1967.

The increases would be based upon changes in the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics Consumer’s Price Index. In sending his proposal to the Legislature, Levitt declared, “It is my hope that this measure will provide both a model and incentive for private pension systems to build in to their benefit structures this type of protection against the ravages of inflation”.

A similar proposal by the Comptroller was passed by bi-partisan votes in both houses of the Legislature this year but was vetoed by the Governor.

Approval Predicted

Levitt said, “On the basis of statements made during the recent gubernatorial campaign, I do not anticipate a veto if the bill is passed by the 1967 Legislature.”

The Levitt Bill covers members and retirees of the New York State Employees’ Retirement System of which the Comptroller is trustee. It calls for using the actual annual CPI average of the year of the employee’s retirement and applying to it the current annual CPI average. When the living cost changes represents an increase of three per cent or more, the employee’s retirement benefits is adjusted upward accordingly.

The Comptroller described the cost-of-living escalator as “a fair and practical means of helping retired workers preserve the standard of living earned at time of retirement.”

He said, “The impact of increasing prices is most severe upon those whose livelihood depends upon field income. The rise in state and local taxes has played an inscrutable role in building this economic pressure. It is therefore only fair that government should lead the way in providing some relief.”

Cost Not Excessive

Levitt said, “If there’s a substantial share of any additional cost for this benefit will be covered by increased earnings of the Retirement System.”

He said, “During inflationary periods, the treatment yield of the System also increases, especially those common stocks which civil servants so much enjoy.”

The Comptroller concluded that

No More ‘Off Years’

For Civil Service

UNTIL recently, public employees privately accepted the thesis, to a large degree, that little could be gained from legislators or the Governor’s office in a year that had no important election. The politicians just didn’t worry about the civil service in those so-called “off years”, largely because the civil service was “off stage” of the Veter.
Retirement System Adds Eastern Suffolk: For Consultation Services

ALBANY—The State Employees Retirement System is setting up a new consultation service for members who live in eastern Suffolk County.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt announced that an informational representative of the system will be available on the third Wednesday of each month at the Suffolk County Center in Riverhead, Long Island.

The service begins Jan. 1.

Levitt indicated that appointments are not necessary at any of the offices, the Comptroller said.

Third Civil Service Career Development Program Completed

Graduation ceremonies were held recently at the Minisink Town House for 224 men and women of the New York State Legislature next month expect to get their full strength now and will be going to the State next month to expect to get things done—election year or not. The 142,000- member Civil Service Employees, Inc., for instance, intends to hang on as long as it is able to get things done.

The State, there is every reason to believe that Rockefeller's 400,000-vote victory margin was due in part to the civil service vote.

Legislators throughout the State are in favor of their organization and support of some of their victories were the result of public employee votes.

"No Hat In Hand"

The civil service knows its worth at the polls.

The public employee vote has emerged as one of the most significant services of the civil service, comprising nearly 20 per cent of the voters. Their strength was felt in many areas in last November's gubernatorial and local races and candidates wooed public employees as if they had never been wooed before.

Governor Rockefeller, who has an outstanding record as a labor governor for civil service, waged a vigorous campaign among public employees and won many of the important issues and endorsements from civil service organizations that had never supported a Republican gubernatorial candidate in their history. With a million civil service family votes in the State, there is every reason to believe that Rockefeller's 400,000-vote victory margin was due in part to the civil service vote.

Legislators throughout the State are in favor of their organization and support of some of their victories were the result of public employee votes.

North Hempstead Unit Is Pleased With New Role As Only Bargaining Agent
Town Supervisor Sol Wachtel told 290 workers of the Town of North Hempstead, Civil Service Employees, the organization was the exclusive bargaining agent.

Tuswiler, speaking at the group's meeting Wednesday, Dec. 14, said he and the town board were convinced that CSEA gives employees a voice at town hall and a sense of public responsibility and pride deserved to be the exclusive bargaining agent. He noted that an overwhelming majority of employees were veteran members of CSEA.

North Hempstead Town had a week earlier voted exclusive representation rights to CSEA.

CSEA Protests Trooper Weight Restriction
ALBANY — A new regulation promulgated by the Division of State Police, establishing trooper weight restrictions on eligibility for promotion examinations, has been protested by the Civil Service Employees Assn.

The CSEA said the State Administration that the regulation was put into effect without giving affected troopers an opportunity to meet requirements of the regulation.

In addition, CSEA concluded that it was unjust to the men that the number of troopers would be ineligible for a promotion examination for sergeant, scheduled for Jan. 14, under the requirements of the regulation.

The new regulation apparently was approved by the Governor in September, but only recently distributed to members of the State Police.

Following CSEA's protest, the Division of State Police issued a notification that troopers who may not now meet requirements of the regulation, may request the Superintendent of State Police, in writing, to assign him to duty for a "reasonable" period, to allow a trooper to lose weight and meet the requirement, provided under the regulation.

CSEA also protested that the regulation was adopted without prior discussion with employee representatives and that this was contrary to the mandatory procedures required in the collective bargaining agreement among Nassau municipalities.

Mons is conducting negotiations with officials of CSEA units in several Nassau villages.

Croton-on-Hudson-Crotona U.S. Unit Urges Administration Provide New 1-60 Retirement Plan

ALBANY — The Croton-on-Hudson unit of the Westchester chapter, Civil Service Employees Assn., has asked the Village administration to provide its employees with the benefits of the new 1-60 retirement plan, won in the last session of the Legislature by CSEA.

The request was made to Mayor James Longo, last week by State CSEA President John F. Kelly, on behalf of the CSEA Unit.

In his reply, Pely pointed out that the following resolution to the Village employees if the plan is adopted:

- Retirement allowances based on 1/60th final average salary for each year of future service from date of adoption of the 1/60th Plan by the Village.

- For future years of service, this provides a guaranteed retirement of half pay after 35 years service protected from deficiencies which heretofore developed in the system (provisions are based on years of membership"

The new retirement plan is scheduled to be effective on April 1, 1969.

The Administration will consult with its employees to see whether further action should be taken. CSEA represents some 3000 employees of the Village of Croton-on-Hudson.

Proposed To Wipe Out Discrimination in Eligible Choices

Editor, The Leader:
The ability to choose any one out of three eligible on a civil service list for appointment or promotion—without giving any reasons—makes it possible to discriminate against women, applicants of age, sex, race or religion, and to favor others who have political connections or are willing to pay under the table.

The Sanitation Department scandal is a case in point. Another is the compilation of documented cases forwarded to me by a union alleging discrimination against women by a State agency.

If a person on an eligible list can be passed over three times, the reason given, what safeguard do we have against improper personnel practices?

In an effort to meet this problem, I introduced a bill in my first session, which would have required that persons passed over through the civil service system be given the reason in writing. The bill was defeated.

I re-introduced my bill in the last session, and it was again defeated. The merit in eliminating this system, which would have required that persons passed over through the civil service system be given the reason in writing, the bill was defeated again.

In an effort to meet this problem, I introduced a bill in my first session, which would have required that persons passed over through the civil service system be given the reason in writing. The bill was defeated.

The merits of such legislation is obvious. A similar bill was passed last year by the Legislature but vetoed by the Governor, who objected to certain parts of the bill.

Helping The Retired

COMPTROLLER Arthur Levitt has pre-died a bill with the State Legislature that, if passed and approved by Governor Rockefeller, would grant automatic increases to retired public employees who were members of the State Retirement System. The increase would be based on official cost-of-living increases.

The merits of such legislation is obvious. A similar measure was passed last year by the Legislature but vetoed by the Governor, who objected to certain parts of the bill. Comptroller Levitt says that such objections have been removed from the new legislation and that he now expects it to be passed.

Inflation is harmful to all of us, but it is particularly harmful to the person of fixed income, as is the case with pensioners. No group has suffered so much in terms of dollars as is the case with pensioners. No group has suffered so much in terms of dollars as is the case with pensioners. Specifically, the petitioner contended that his status on the eligible list should have been higher because he was entitled full credit as a disabled veteran. As he recently demanded revision of his status and brought his legal petition, he has not been approved by the Governor.

At the hearing on Reclassification and Reallocation of Clerical Employees, the committee chairperson, on November 30, 1966, I made a statement that Mr. J. Earl Kelly had been passed over three times, and above minimum salaries for those employees at Suffolk State School. At the request of Mr. Kelly, I was asked to obtain information concerning this since that was unknown to the committee.

Inquiry, I found that there was no such information, but the Department of Mental Hygiene was using Mr. Kelly as the recipient in the old game of buck passing. He would appreciate you printing this letter to those employees who heard the make the above statement that I was in error and have apologized to Mr. Kelly. I have also asked Mr. Kelly if he has any knowledge of the number of times his name was used in this manner.

President Johnson will ask the Congress for only 100 million extra dollars to finance the additional $290 million awarded to the Federal Civil Service in their last pay raise. In order to finance the wage hike extras, Federal agencies are going to be asked to cut back on expenses. This may mean that many positions in the Federal job structure which have been marked for priority staffing will have to be absorbed by those already on the job. It would appear then, that the Federal civil servant on many levels will pay with the away of his job for those extras which the budget and finance areas of government will bring. It is to be hoped that the eligibles would be hired at grades 5 through 7 for a two-year course. Later the program will be broadened to train middle-grade civil servants from the budget and finance areas of government operation of the agencies themselves will not suffer from austerity ache. The Civil Service Commission is slated to embark soon on a program which will call for the hiring of eligibles from the Federal Civil Service Entrance examination to initiate a Personnel Management Training procedure.
