ALBANY—The legislative committee named to come up with a recommended settlement in the negotiations impasse between the Civil Service Employees Assn. and the State has apparently reached a temporary impasse itself, and consequently a recommendation from that committee to the full State Legislature may not be forthcoming until at least sometime this week.

The committee had been expected to make its recommendation by now for a settlement in the negotiations dispute affecting some 65,000 state employees in four bargaining units represented by CSEA. The dispute affects specific contract areas, including salary, hours and leave, and the present contract. The final year of the contract began April 1.

CSEA Proposes New Transfer System

(ALBANY)—The Civil Service Employees Assn.'s Labor-Management Committee proposed a number of new provisions to existing layoff procedures in a meeting late last week with State Department of Labor representatives.

The CSEA representatives told the Department of Labor management people that a number of serious problems are apparent relative to present layoff plans for department employees, according to Robert Lattimer of Buffalo, a member of the union's panel and a Department of Labor representative to CSEA's Board of Directors.

CSEA said it is seeking the broadest consensus possible within the department to give considerably more latitude to employees affected by layoffs. No agreement was reached on that subject, however, but Mr. Lattimer said the department appeared interested in CSEA's goal and that such a proposal would be worked on.

Pact Dispute, Legislative Programs Are Discussed

ALBANY—The statewide legislative and political action committee of the Civil Service Employees Assn. met late last week to review action to date and to consider additional steps in the effort to obtain legislative approval of a satisfactory settlement in the present CSEA-State contract dispute.

Committee chairman John Clark also reviewed CSEA's 1976 Legislative Program and reported on the status of bills in the union's legislative program.

Mr. Clark said CSEA had demanded the reactivation of that joint committee first to handle layoff problems in 1971, to discuss and rectify inequities and problems connected with the present layoffs. The State finally agreed to reconvene the committee recently only after CSEA unilaterally declared a new bill to force the committee to meet.

The committee was meeting at a leader project with CSEA opening the session by presenting and discussing a long list of situations resulting from the present layoffs that the union says are wrong and must be corrected. The outcome of the initial session was not available at press time.

Committee Formed To Give Feedback To Statewide Social Services Group

NEWBURGH—Southern Region 3 of the Civil Service Employees Assn. has become the first CSEA Region in the state to form a mini-social services committee.

At a recent organizational meeting were Pat Spieck, of Rockland County, who organized the group; Pat Thomas, of Orange County; Sharon Vance, of Putnam County, Helen McCallum, of Dutchess County, and Nina Younger, of Ulster County. The meeting was held at Newburgh's Holiday Inn.

The mini-committee was formed to provide local feedback to the statewide CSEA social services committee, of which Ms. Spieck is vice-chairman. With only eight persons on the statewide committee, Ms. Spieck felt it was too difficult for the members to get an accurate idea of what problems are confronting social service workers throughout the state.

A landmark law in 1971, which changed the operation of county social services departments, is still having widespread effects on many local social service employees. Ms. Spieck wanted to get a better idea of what the problems are that workers are still encountering as a result of the law.

The Newburgh meeting revealed that many problems still exist.

The law was intended to separate the delivery services from the "income-maintenance" functions in each county social services department. But the South-

The Gardener City Solution: Free Coffee, No SS Hike

GARDEN CITY— "Other areas are going to look for this benefit," Garden City Village Civil Service Employees Assn. unit president Ken Darby remarked after village officials prohibited outside crews from sending for morning coffee.

The practice had been for outside crews to designate one member to fetch coffee for all from a nearby luncheonette or delicatessen. However, as the village triggered an increase in contract negotiations by refusing any wage increase, the order came out forbidding even coffee-fetchers to leave the work site.

Mr. Darby was mock-serious as he praised the village's generosity in providing coffee. "Garden City has taken the lead in its consideration of human rights as regards to coffee," he declared.

The Nassau County village has started delivering the brew to working sites. The Nassau County Village Civil Service Employees Assn. has become the first CSEA Region in this state to form a mini-social services committee.

DelBello Protests Closing Of MVB Peekskill Office

WHITE PLAINS—Describing himself as "shocked and distressed," Westchester County Executive Alfred B. DelBello, in a message to Gov. Hugh L. Carey, protested the state's planned closing of its portion of the new Peekskill Motor Vehicle Bureau.

"I am acutely aware of the financial problems you inherited since taking office," Mr. DelBello told the Governor, "but I must protest this decision.

"For ten years, Westchester residents, elected officials and political candidates worked very hard to have a branch office of the Motor Vehicle Bureau opened in the northern portion of the County. There was, and still is, a real and pressing need for this facility.

"The White Plains office was overburdened and lines were intolerable. Accessibility from the vast distances of Northern Westchester is difficult, and parking in White Plains is inadequate.

"Finally, in April of 1974, the Peekskill Motor Vehicle Office was opened. The pressure and workload in White Plains has been considerably reduced and the new office has made work more efficient and convenient not only to Northern Westchester residents, but to many Putnam County residents as well.

"I strongly urge that you reconsider your decision and allow the state portion of the Peekskill Motor Vehicle Bureau to remain in operation."

In addition to cutbacks at Peekskill, announced MVB closings include offices at West Haverstraw and Malone.

Public Protest

When America celebrates its Tricentennial 100 years from now, one of the historic battles on the tourist tour could well be City Hall Park in downtown Manhattan. Almost daily, protesters march around the park. Placards, megaphones, banners and police barricades are seemingly permanent fixtures in this picturesque site at the foot of the Brooklyn Bridge.

The people change, however. Last week there were demonstrations by members of the Chinatown community who lost their jobs and a massive number of concerned South Bronx parents and students who vented their anger over a threatening cutback in school funding.

In addition, press conferences are being called left and right by leaders of the uniformed unions in New York City to build public support against layoffs in their vital services.

It is not all happening in New York City either. State Legislators in Albany are being deluged with letters and petitions urging favorable action on a contract for state workers, who are still working nearly three months after terms of the third-year reopeners had to be put into effect. (At this point, the bipartisan legislative hearing committee seems to be bogged down in its own efforts to find a solution.

Rather than face up to the consequences of the budget crunch, New York City has found it easier to resort to fiscal gimmickry as a procedure for getting around the legal requirements.

What the elected officials have failed to see is that cutting back on their own employees is even more counterproductive. Obviously the wholesale firing of public employees, which has manifested itself in states and cities in all parts of the country, puts the responsibility of budget imbalances on the public employee, even though the employee has nothing to do with the fiscal crises.

The elected officials would have good cause to presume that the public did not care.

To the contrary, because there is always a chance that the public's anger will turn into political brinkmanship. There have been holds, we hope that some order can be brought about in the State Administration.

The problems that face the State Administration are admirably monumental. That does not mean, though, that a solution is available by merely dumping public employees out into the cold.

Layoff Units

Now that the first meeting of the Joint State Civil Service Employees Assn. Committee on Layoff Units has been held, some order has been brought about that will lessen the devastation being caused by rumors and political brinksmanship.

The committee, which was reconvened under the insistence of OSSA, has met to clear the air on layoff procedures— which have been less procedure than they have been called.

The problems that face the State Administration are admirably monumental. That does not mean, though, that a solution is available by merely dumping public employees out into the cold.

The heller-skelter manner in which OSSA and Department of Labor layoff threats have been handled is demoralizing to the affected employees, of course, but also to every worker who fears that he or she could be next.

quate means of reviewing the action taken against him through the procedures established in the existing collective bargaining agreement. This raises the interesting question as to whether or not an employee would be required to exhaust a grievance procedure established by collective agreement where there is no provision for third-party dispute settlement. wards was described by PhyUis Felton, president of the county's Civil Service Employees Association, as "an attack on an elected official, masquerading as a report," and an "inaccurate innuendo about other elected officials and a disservice to the citizens and taxpayers." Ms. Felton added that the county's Civil Service Employees Association, the CSEA, has a contract with the county and that the county treasurer was required to provide the union with copies of any contracts negotiated. Ms. Felton said that the county negotiating team did not reach agreement with the CSEA and that the contract expired on October 31.

Ms. Felton also noted that the county negotiating team did not agree to Ms. Edwards' request for a one-time, across-the-board raise of 50 cents per hour, and that the county treasurer was required to provide the union with copies of any contracts negotiated. Ms. Felton said that the county negotiating team did not reach agreement with the CSEA and that the contract expired on October 31.

State Workers Now Eligible For Federal Unemployment Assistance

By JANE B. BERNSTEIN

Unemployment insurance benefits are now available to state employees not protected under the regular unemployment insurance program.

To qualify for the federally funded special assistance, a worker must have been employed at least 26 weeks, must have lost his job through no fault of his own, and must be actively seeking other employment.

Weekly payments are calculated on the basis of half of an individual's regular wages, to a maximum of $60.65, and are payable for up to 26 weeks, although legislation is pending to provide a 13-week extension.

Regular unemployment benefits are paid for benefits covering paid vacation periods or days of absence for which they receive their regular pay.

Employees who work solely on a part-time basis are totally unemployed when not working, and, therefore, are eligible for benefits if otherwise qualified.

An employee's eligibility for benefits is not affected by the continuance of a salary schedule during recess periods, even though the cost of such benefits is paid in whole or in part by his employer.

Persons who believe they are entitled to benefits, or are uncertain of their status should register at the local unemployment insurance office when a recess or part-time period begins.

The staff coordinator for the CSEA committee, Danny Jinks, says that members seeking company information regarding this situation should write to the Committee on Employment, OPA, 33 Elk Street, Albany, N.Y. 12207, or contact one of the committee members.

The CSEA committee with the following qualifications for unemployment insurance by non-teaching personnel.

Employers who are paid on the basis of a salary schedule may be entitled to benefits during the Christmas, Easter or any other recess period failing when.

In the school year if the salaries set forth in the schedule do not include payment for days on which they do no work in such recess periods. The fact that salary payments based on the salary schedule are distributed over each week of the school year would not affect this determination.

McGowan Urges Wariness Of Paper Tiger Outfits'

BUFFALO—William I. McGowan, president of the Civil Service Employees Assn.'s Western Region 6, cautioned state workers recently not to sign representation election cards for "paper tiger outfits," his description of unions seeking to challenge CSEA this fall.

"As representatives of workers, we must always cause legitimate legal nuances which delay negotiations and often times, the victorial union in a difficult bargaining position," Mr. McGowan said.

"CSEA is constantly being challenged and CSEA consistently comes out on top because CSEA, challenges competition with any other union," Mr. McGowan continued. "However, the challenges are costly in terms of members' money and in the delays in negotiations. We can better use the time and money to improve our member services and bargaining position."

Mr. McGowan, who said he had some misgivings about advising workers in this matter because of his strong feelings about the democratic processes, said, "Nevertheless, CSEA has a long and strong democratic history and always presents the members a choice in the union elections this month."

"In the past we've kept quiet until an election was upon us. Then we got our strengths together and beat them all. We express the needs of our officers and staff from the immediate job of serving members. Sometimes two members' money from servicing them. And, that's all these 'outside' unions want, especially this 'paper tiger.'"

Mr. McGowan, an employee at the West Seneca Developmental Center, is a member of the Mental Hygiene Council, explained what he meant by a paper tiger.

A Rescue, A Bite On The Hand And A Film

To begin with, congratulations to Fireman John Kleehaas of Ladder Company 108 for his rescue of two housing police one week ago Sunday.

The fire, in a project at Siple and Humboldt Streets in Brooklyn, involved the rooms on the second floor where the housing police changed uniforms. All windows were permanently barred and the way out was through the front door, which was blocked by fire. It became 108 truck’s baby.

Jack Kleehaas was right in there and managed to get past the fire to the two trapped men. Looking for a fire window, he found that the bars were fastened into the bricks, so he had to get the two victims out the same way he entered.

Like any human under similar circumstances, the policemen swore they were saved. However, Kleehaas calmed them down and told them what was going to happen. Then, following him, they dashed through the fire to safety without nervousness but a good level of smoke as a reminder. However, later, they both went to the hospital for treatment.

One of the rescued cops told Jack, "Here it was Father’s Day and there I am stuck in that room, positive I’m going to be burned to death. You sure looked great to me."

A few days before, in Manhattan, first companies were moving in on a building at 233 East 78th St. Suddenly, a sudden hypersensitive flame leaped into the midst of the troops and had to be smothered and quenched. Later, after the fire door had been knocked down, it was found that a few'sy that so much had to be burned from the original for the sake of the endless commericals. It marked the presentation.

I am told when the film was first presented in England, a high Fire Department personality was present. When it was completed, some English Fire Department people expressed shock at the drinking scenes, incorrectly assuming they took place in a firehouse. The Brits felt we were terribly lax on discipline, don’tcha know?

It seems the New York Fire Department representative didn’t bother to ask BBC to make a correction. So, the scene, along with a shot of the burnout and bed, with some of the brothers in them, was also shown. So was the kitchen, where it was said, the brothers eat "cheaply" which is not so, not in this day and age anyway.

After each showing of the film last week, I received many phone calls and comments. It seemed to me to think a vastly incorrect impression had been created and that the Fire Department evidently made no effort to have them changed or in some way corrected.

The truth is that even though the party seems to have been taken in the kitchen of a firehouse, it actually happened at a medal day party in The Pub, a bar and grill at Bridge Avenue and 20th Street in the Bronx. I think the least thing Time and Life Films could have done was to check into it when preparing the script which was not even the British original. In one case, the hack was broken Meredith who was there responding to fires, sometimes they are stoned. I sighed.

This is not our grapes. It is just that I have gone to great pains to avoid anything which may reflect unfavorably upon the troops. To do those boot-boys which are no fault of the firefighters, but busy editing instead, bothers me no end.

The general impression upon the folks who are unfamiliar with department operations was good. But for someone with 50 years of close association and a hell of a lot of respect and affection for the troops, it was a disaster. I hope if there is a next time, the Fire Department will have an advisor around to give the photos a few pointers, or at least reserve the right to be in the editing room when the stuff is cut.
