Senior Graduation Speech Nixed

By Matthew Cesy

The Class of 77 will not have a student speaker at its graduation ceremony. The committee is in charge of selecting the speaker.

"If the student speaker is asked to speak, they will not be asked to do so," President Cheryl Schenk said.

"We do not want to put someone in that position who has not been asked to do so," Schenk said.

The committee is in charge of selecting the student speaker, and it is decided among the students following a vote.

The student speaker at graduation, Yolanda Smith, will give a prepared speech.

Public Policy Center Planned

Plans are being made for the re-establishment of the University of Albany's College of Public Policy which was established in 1963. The college was closed in 1971 due to budget cuts and other issues. The new college will focus on policy research and analysis, with a particular emphasis on issues related to New York State and the Northeast region. The college will include a policy research institute, a policy and management program, and a policy analysis program. The director of the new college is Professor Richard F. Squire.

The Editor:

As a member of the Student Affairs Staff, I feel a strong obligation to respond to the proposed changes in the academic calendar.

My position as a Student Affairs Staff member involves interacting with students on a daily basis. It is not uncommon for students to express concerns or suggestions regarding the academic calendar. In the past, I have found that students often have a stronger voice when they are given the opportunity to participate in the decision-making process.

In response to the proposed changes, I would like to highlight the following points:

1. Student Representation: It is crucial that student voices are heard throughout the process. The proposed changes should be evaluated from the perspectives of students, and their input should be considered.
2. Flexibility in Course Scheduling: Allowing students to choose between different start dates can provide increased flexibility in course scheduling, allowing for a more personalized academic experience.
3. Impact on Faculty: Changes in the academic calendar can have far-reaching implications for faculty. It is important to explore how these changes may affect faculty members and to develop strategies to support them.

In conclusion, I strongly encourage the administration to listen to student feedback and to work collaboratively with students to ensure that any changes to the academic calendar are made in a manner that is fair and beneficial to all stakeholders.

Sincerely,

Jingle bells, jingle bells

The problem of Mandatory Minis the Monday after Labor Day: "Mary had a little lamb..." There is a new edition of the student handbook that students should be made aware of. This handbook includes a list of mandatory events that all students must attend. The purpose of these events is to foster community and provide opportunities for social interaction.

Some students have expressed concern about the Mandatory Minis, arguing that they are unnecessary and detract from the academic experience. However, I believe that these events offer valuable opportunities for students to connect with each other and with the broader community.

In conclusion, while I acknowledge the concerns raised by some students, I remain convinced of the benefits of Mandatory Minis. The administration is actively working to address any concerns and to ensure that these events are held in a manner that respects the diversity and needs of all students.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

The May faculty meeting will consider an amendment to the Constitution that would make permanent the position of 11 seats on the Senate. The faculty have been discussing the need for this amendment to provide better representation and governance on the Senate. The proposed amendment would provide for a more equitable distribution of representation among the faculty members.

The Contact Craze

By JANE REYNOLD

Athletic, celebrity, and girls who are afraid men won't make passes at girls who wear glasses, are among the millions of Americans who wear contact lenses each year for contact lenses.

The popularity of contact lenses has increased tremendously since the 1960's when the hard lens was first introduced to the country. Now, about six million Americans wear contact lenses.

One reason for this, according to an opthalmologist, Dr. Stanley Eisenberg who has been in the business for 20 years, is the development of the soft contact lens. The soft lens, first developed in Czechoslovakia in the 1960's was brought to this country for use in the early 1970's.

Now, at least half of the people who are fitted for contact lenses each year get the soft lens, according to a mouthpiece from Greenfield Opthalmic Inc., a major optical center of Long Island.

The main reason for the popularity of soft contact lenses is that they are no uncomfortable to wear and so easy to get used to. Whether one wears soft or hard lenses there is a break-in period.

For hard lens wearers, this process begins with the lenses being worn on only one hour a day with time increased daily until the lens can stay on the eye full-time. This takes weeks and sometimes months.

The break-in period for soft contact lenses is much shorter. The average time span is about a week and some people fail but they are ready to wear their lenses full-time almost immediately.

A 36 year-old medical student, Andrew Bachman, who wore glasses most of his life, decided to try hard contact lenses. He said, "I couldn't even make it through the training period". He now wears soft lenses and said, "I went almost immediately to full-time use. I couldn't believe how comfortable they were. I almost forgot they were in my eyes." The contact of the soft lenses stems from the makeup of the lenses. They are 76 percent water as opposed to the hard lenses which are made of a rigid material.

The soft lenses can absorb the tears from the eye which keep them moist and easy to wear. However, the warmth and moisture of the soft lens is a perfect breeding ground for germs and bacteria. For this reason, a very elaborate system of cleaning and disinfecting is required.

The lens must be cleaned in saline solution and sterilized (by boiling) every day. They must also be cleaned once a week in a solution that breaks down proteins deposits from the eye. "This is a much more complicated cleaning process than that of the hard lens", said Dr. Eisenberg. "The sterilization and the cleaning is an important because eye infections can occur from unnecessary lenses. If I think a patient is not responsible enough to care for his soft lenses properly, I will not allow him to get soft lenses. I will then place him on hard lenses where the cleaning procedure is relatively easy."

A "movie not to be missed." Robert Altmann's 3 Women is such a stimulating achievement in cinematic art that it makes one rethink the whole aesthetic of motion pictures. There is something so utterly unusual about 3 Women that its like may never materialize again.

It is ironic to recall that the President's Task Force recommended the elimination of Italian from the school curriculum on the basis that the program costs too much and was deficient in noteworthy teaching figures, which were the main content of the curriculum at the Albany State campus. The error was quickly corrected by the New York State Legislature, and now by President Field.

Next year Rintemk will introduce several new courses into the curriculum having to do with the total Italian-American experience. One of his exciting new propositions is for a course on Italian cinema. The new course of studies was formally proposed in March at the Italian-American symposium held in the Campus Center Ballroom under the direction of D. Augustine Zellini.

On a personal level, Rintemk is warm and affable. His knowledge is vast, and his wit is laconic. Albany State should take special pride in the knowledge that one of the truly remarkable literary geniuses of the twentieth century is teaching here on campus, lending his insights on a diversified range of topics.

At the training class, after we got our instructions and a script to carry out, we were given the role of jumping. The equipment was simple: a parachute, a helmet, and a flight suit. As we awaited our turn, we were reminded of the importance of safety and precision. The instructor emphasized the need for a calm and focused mindset, as the slightest error could have disastrous consequences.

Finally, it was my turn. I strapped on the gear and checked my equipment several times. The parachute was anchored securely, the helmet was tight, and the flight suit was ready. I took a deep breath and stepped forward, my heart pounding in my chest.

The takeoff was smooth, and the plane gained altitude quickly. I felt the rush of the wind against my face, and the world gradually blurred into a haze of colors. As we reached the preset altitude, the instructor signaled me to pull the ripcord. I hesitated for a moment, feeling a mix of excitement and fear, and then closed my eyes and pulled the handle.

The jolt was sudden and intense. My body was thrown forward, the wind whistling through my ears. I felt the parachute deploying in front of me, the fabric catching the air and slowing our descent. I opened my eyes and saw the sky stretching below, unbroken by clouds.

I took a moment to adjust, to take in the vastness around me. The earth was a distant, blurred speck below, and the horizon seemed endless. It was exhilarating, being in control of my destiny, free from the confines of gravity.

As we continued our descent, I reflected on the journey that brought me here. The training, the preparation, the endless hours spent perfecting our craft. It all led to this moment, the culmination of our efforts. I knew I was prepared, both mentally and physically.

Finally, we landed safely. The instructor met me, congratulating me on a successful jump. I felt a sense of pride, knowing that I had accomplished something great. The weight of the world seemed lighter, and I felt a newfound sense of confidence.

I realized then that the fear everyone felt was a necessary step, a reminder of the challenges we face. It was the fuel that drove us to push beyond our limits, to strive for excellence.

As I walked away, I knew that this was just the beginning. The journey was far from over, and there were more challenges to face. But I was ready. Ready to take on whatever came my way, knowing that I had the skills and determination to succeed. And so, I stepped forward, eager to see what the future held.

Biography of a Nazi

By STEPHEN ALMASI

April 26th marks the birth of Hitler's world. At that time, he was not a Nazi. His name was not Adolf Hitler. He was a man of many names. His father was a tailor, his mother was a seamstress. He was born in Austria, but spent his early years in Germany. His life was full of struggle, but he was determined to succeed. He was a man of many faces. He was a student, a writer, a soldier, a leader. He was a man of many dreams. He was a man of many failures. He was a man of many successes.

The goddess of victory

The Classical Forum

The Goddess of Victory

On a high platform at the western end of the Acropolis of Athens stands a small but beautiful temple of the Ionic order. It is commonly called the temple of Athena Nike or Wingless Victory. One of the most famous works of Pheidias is the Winged Victory of Samothrace, now in the Louvre. Another famous Nike, that of P Arizona, is in the museum of Olympia.

In Greek religion Nike was the symbol of victory in war and other contests as well as war. She became especially popular after the Persian Wars. The Athenians, for instance, dedicated a statue to her at Delphi before the battle of Salamis. In vase paintings she is often depicted as crowning a trophy or making a sacrifice after a victory. Its Athena Nike was closely associated with Athena. A figure of Nike was part of the tetrapylon (magnificent statue of Athena Parthenos, Classical Forum of Greece (1775).

The Roman counterpart of Nike was Victoria. A statue of Victoria stood in the senate house of Rome for more than 300 years. Its return was ordered in 1796 by the emperor Napoleon I and tossed off a better dispute between Christians and Pagans. Victory appeared as Roman coins right to the end of the Western empire. So early Christian art the winged victory

After The Gold Rush

The long, hard battle over who will lead Student Association next year is over. A record number of students voted, and the run-off elections for the two top spots were close. The new Central Council took 21 ballots to choose their chairmen. Many dedicated people were involved in this year's election. If SA is to improve, it will need the help of everyone who ran and lost. The smoke must clear as soon as possible.

And through that smoke, there is always a glimmer of hope. Each new SA administration has the potential to avoid the pitfalls of the past and go on to actually improve the lot of students on this campus.

If the high voter turnout proves anything, it's that more and more students want to be a part of student government. And as long as the new administration's top priorities will be to sustain and augment that interest.

David Goldfield can set an earnest and serious tone in SA. He can inspire students to get involved, and can be, in a real sense, the "student's" SA President. Goldfield can tap the talents of Vice President Jim Aronoff, and work closely with new Central Chairman Michael Lissner. Lissner, like Goldfield has proven he can inspire students to get involved in an unbelievable 298 write-in votes on Colonial Quadrant, but he must also inspire Council. Lissner may have far more success than Greg Lessig did this year, since the new Council is enthusiastic and not, at present, disillusioned.

SA begins again with a blank page. This year, Council can get solid information before they make decisions. The President and the Vice President can treat each other. Petty concerns can be eliminated, so students can spend their time getting things done. Reforms in the internal procedures, handling of the groups and communication among the leaders can be instituted. The possible list of accomplishments for SA is only limited by SA.

Aronoff, Goldfield and Lissner all have enemies, other students who question their motives. But if the student good is everyone's shared goal, new Council can put away the politics and the pet projects. They will have a few months to prove themselves—they must be given a chance to do so.

Golfers Finish Fourth in Tourney
by Frank Soo
The All-American team went west and showed off on Monday, and continued its success on Tuesday.

The All-American team finished fourth in the stroke play portion of the 1967 NCAA Tournament at the Olympic Club in San Francisco.

The team's victory was their second straight national title, and they have now qualified for the NCAA Championship in five consecutive years.

Batmen Lose Twice To Indians

by Mike Pfeifer
The Red Sox were baseball saying that they were ready for the series. "We're getting more consistent," said manager Dick Williams. "We've had some ups and downs, but we're getting more consistent now." The Red Sox have been on a roll lately, coming off a three-game sweep of the Cleveland Indians in the AL West.

In the fourth, the Red Sox loaded the bases on hits by Mike Molitor, Roger Trainer and Mark Whiten. But a combination of poor fielding and bad luck kept the Red Sox from scoring.

In the fifth, the Red Sox were again unable to score, as the Indians' defense held them scoreless.

In the sixth, the Red Sox finally managed to score against the Indians' bullpen. Molitor hit a single and Trainer reached on a fielding error, setting up a bases loaded situation. But Whiten was thrown out at the plate, and the inning ended without a run.

In the seventh, the Red Sox had a chance to score against Indians reliever Bob Stanley. Molitor hit a double and Trainer reached on a fielding error, but Whiten struck out to end the inning.

In the eighth, the Red Sox loaded the bases again on hits by Molitor, Trainer and Whiten. But Indians reliever Dan Petrie got the final out, preserving the shutout.

Despite the loss, the Red Sox remained in first place in the AL East, a half-game ahead of the Indians.

The match was opened in spirit by the visitors, and Albion roused their fans back to the track and Albion’s first track victory for one year. The small crowd took the applause of the visitors with enthusiasm. The only double winner for the year was in the middle of the pack. The match saw Albion win 15-2, and the only double winner for the year was the second place finisher. The game was played to the best of its ability, and the game somehow managed to end 2:1 in favor of Albion.

Referee Eamonn Mervyn has been named as the top referee of the year for his performance throughout the season. Albion fans are hopeful that he will be able to continue his good form in the future.

Sickmen Lost In OT

by Eddie Sweeney

Sickmen were down heading into the fourth quarter of the game, but they fought back to win in overtime. They were able to score the game-winning goal with less than a minute left on the clock.

The third overtime period was played under yellow sheets. When the game was called off, Sickmen were down 6-5. The game was stopped due to bad weather conditions.

Sickmen’s coach, Dave Schuette, said his team played hard and showed a lot of determination.
