Booters Down Plattsburgh 4-0; Aguilas Hurt

By Mike Wallace

It was supposed to be a rout. But the "Aguilas" didn't have an answer for the Booters. "TheBooters" made sure that there was at least a rout, winning by exactly the same score they had been down on the previous day, 4-0.

The game started with the Booters taking control of the offensive and defensive aspects of the game. Their players were quick and agile, and they were able to score early and often. The Booters were able to capitalize on their superior technique and strategy, and they were able to maintain their lead throughout the game.

The "Aguilas" were a different story. They were unable to keep up with the pace of the Booters, and they were unable to score. The Booters were able to shut down the "Aguilas" defense and prevent them from scoring. They were able to maintain their lead throughout the game, and they were able to win by a comfortable margin of 4-0.

The Booters' victory was a testament to their superior skills and strategy. They were able to dominate the game, and they were able to win by a comfortable margin. The "Aguilas" were unable to keep up with the pace of the Booters, and they were unable to score. The Booters were able to shut down the "Aguilas" defense and prevent them from scoring.

Overall, it was a great game for the Booters. They were able to dominate the game, and they were able to win by a comfortable margin. The "Aguilas" were unable to keep up with the pace of the Booters, and they were unable to score. The Booters were able to shut down the "Aguilas" defense and prevent them from scoring. The Booters' victory was a testament to their superior skills and strategy.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - The political money that flows into the nation's capital from the presidential and congressional races is larger than ever in a mid-term election year, according to a study released Thursday.

The Washington Post reported that the amount of money spent on federal elections in the first half of the year was $30 million, compared to $20 million in the same period last year.

The study, conducted by the Center for Responsive Politics, found that the biggest spenders were the Republican Party, which spent $15 million, and the Democratic Party, which spent $10 million.

The study also found that the money was being spent on television and radio advertising, direct mail, and campaign staff salaries.

Judy Huller, the center's director, said the increased spending was due to the larger number of candidates running for office this year.

"We've seen a dramatic increase in the number of candidates running for office," Huller said. "People are more motivated to get involved in politics and to support their candidates."
Food Labeling Found Confusing

Food manufacturers are offering consumers more about what's inside their food. But you'll have to be the detective. It's not always easy.

Government studies show that shoppers often do not understand labeling information on fat, calories, cholesterol or sodium content. They are confused about the meaning of figures pertaining to the government's recommended allowances of fats and cholesterol, and it's often difficult to know which to use.

Since the metric system will be the dominant system to be used by the United States, it is now timely for the general public to become acquainted with the units and an understanding of the system for which the Federal government will eventually apply for funds from local agencies.

The foods are made available on a voluntary basis to the elementary and secondary school systems as a part of the education program. It is for the students to understand the system and to provide them with the opportunity to improve their meals and to make them a part of their regular educational program.

Not too much has been done to help you, whether your concern is a fat in your food. It's also the day the university can offer you a chance to talk about your nutrition or your health.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The way President Ford handles foreign-policy and Jimmy Carter's charge that the Ford White House has little idea of the dangers to the United States "at the top of the heap" for its world role is a key point during the presidential campaign.

Ford and Carter have both expressed concern that the U.S. is facing a "lost decade" in which it is losing the economic and military edge to the Soviet Union. Carter contends that the administration's policies have weakened the nation's economic position,而导致苏联取得了经济和军事上的优势。

Ford, on the other hand, argues that while the economy is sluggish, the administration has made progress in reducing the federal budget deficit and in improving the country's balance of trade.

The campaign is also a test of whether Ford can counteract the perception that he is out of touch with the realities of the world. Carter has accused Ford of being out of touch with the realities of the world, while Ford has accused Carter of being out of touch with the needs of the country.

WASHINGTON (AP) The death of Gambino reportedly was the most powerful Mafia boss. The crime family's holding company, InterMaj, had multiple American brand of synthetic heroin, making it one of the nation's most notorious organizations.

Buckley is a Republican candidate challenging a liberal Democrat, Moynihan, who is the incumbent attorney general. Buckley has been running ahead of him in upstate New York, and he says he will be able to eliminate entirely deficit spending, holding rates at present levels, and operating practices used in private business.

Moynihan is the incumbent, appearing Sunday on ABC's "This Week." He said the senator's voting record reflected changing times and conditions in the country at large. He said the old Mafia families based on ethnic and blood kinship still exist, and investigators say the new commission, is expected to say that business frauds are more rewarding than conventional corporate boardrooms because they're heavy with liabilities, so it can be laundered. But if all subsidies were to end by 1984, the nation's problems in keeping and operating practices used in private business.

PLANT BEAUTIES: A North Carolina gardener predicts that the best way to make some plants grow is simply to throw them over a hill and forget about them. "You can kill a plant with kindness," he says. Yoder says that many flowers and vegetables have been planted successfully by throwing them over a hill and letting nature take care of them. "You can kill a plant with kindness," he says.

Tampering With Tenure

In the wake of SUNYA President Emirati B. Fields' retractions and personal attacks, the State Board of Regents has delivered yet another blow to the faculty. In its statewide plan for post-secondary education, the board recommended that professors would have no longer be protected from being fired, even for reasons of incompetence or unfitness. The Regents claims that this would expand the pro-bizary period for faculty and allow the university greater flexibility in decisions concerning layoffs.

For a university, flexibility means having the power to hire and fire at will — without the restrictions imposed by a tenure system. Other, more promising programs can be shipped in to replace you for your条条的年轻人 with innovative ideas.

At SUNYA faculty, this flexibility would mean giving an already powerful administration even more power. It would mean a significant loss in job security. It would make SUNYA an unappealing place to work.

Experimenter theatre has been inspiring its patrons with a new and exciting vaudeville of its own: "Red Ryder," the show they have been waiting for. At the Schenectady Civic Auditorium and the Schenectady Theatre, the group has been drawing attention from those who have not been able to get tickets. "Red Ryder," the show they have been waiting for, is a production of the newly formed Experimental Theatre. The play was written by Fred Smith, a member of the theatre group, and is designed to entertain and amuse the audience. The show features a cast of characters including the lead role of Red Ryder, portrayed by Teddy Lappe, as well as several other roles.

Red Ryder, played by Teddy Lappe, is a character that is both lovable and likable. His infectious energy and love for adventure make him a favorite among the audience. He is accompanied by a cast of supporting characters, including Mary McCaslin as Angel, the overweight waitress, and John Corzine as Steve, the bartender. The group's founder and musical director, Fred Smith, has also been involved in the creation of the show, playing the role of the music man.

The group's success has been attributed to their ability to entertain and engage the audience. "Red Ryder," with its blend of humor, music, and adventure, has been a hit with audiences of all ages. The group plans to continue producing shows in the future, with a focus on bringing joy and entertainment to their audience.

By STREININ KISIYMAN

"Red Ryder" was a disappointment of sorts. Despite the group's efforts, the audience was not as pleased as expected. The show was well-received by the audience, but it fell short of the group's expectations. The group had high hopes for the show, but the final result was not as impressive as they had hoped.

The show was well-conceived and well-executed, with a cast of talented performers. However, the group's expectations were not met, and the show fell short of the group's expectations. The group plans to learn from the experience and move forward, with a focus on improving and refining their skills.

The photo that you have sent of the spider is not enough. I need a closer look at the insect to be sure. However, I can tell you that spiders are not dangerous to humans.

I am meeting with the university president this afternoon to discuss the new policy on student conduct. The university is looking into the possibility of implementing a stricter dress code for students.

I have also been working on a new project for the student newspaper. We are planning to feature more student work in the upcoming issue.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Giants Fire Arnsparger

NEW YORK (AP) The New York Giants, winners in seven National Football League games this season, fired Coach Bill Arnsparger Monday. Arnsparger, who was in the final year of a three-year contract, was replaced by assistant coach Andy Robustelli, former Giants quarterback.

The change was announced in a hastily called news conference by Tony Dungy, the Giants' assistant coach.

"The decision was made to provide the best possible leadership for the team," said Dungy, who will take over as coach of the Giants next season. "We were looking for the best man available, and that's who we think we have in Dungy." Arnsparger was named the head coach in 1973 after serving as an offensive coordinator in the NFL organization but Robustelli praised the former Dolphins for his work in the dressing room.

"Tony is a guy who knows how to motivate and win games," said Robustelli, a native New York.

"I'm looking forward to working with any of our future coaches," said Dungy. "I think we want to play badly on purpose."

Fans Heckle Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) The New York Rangers have lost four of their last five games and the team temporarily has produced tension between the players and fans at Madison Square Garden.

Art Faiola, a Ranger rookie who grew up rooting for New York as a fan in the old Madison Square Garden, was asked after a last night 1-0 victory over the Vancouver Canucks. Faiola vowed to "win the game, do it for the fans, and the fans love us, the fans want us to win."

"I know we can win the game, we got the goalie, we got the defense, we got the forwards," said Faiola, a native New Yorker.
