Union Defeats Bottons 2-1

By Sam Scott
The Albany State lacrosse team was triumphant last Wednesday night, winning 2-1 over Bottons. The game was played at the State University of New York at Albany, and Bottons was defeated by a score of 2-1.

The first half of the game was intense, with both teams vying for control of the ball. In the second half, Albany State regained control and scored twice to secure the victory.

As for the post-game comments, head coach Mike Smith stated, "This was a hard-fought battle, and we're happy to come out on top. We'll take this win and get back to work on Monday." Assistant coach Jane Doe added, "Our players played with heart and soul. We're looking forward to the next game."
Ervin thinks ERA Amendment Unnecessary

CAROLINA. Ervin says he is enough of a liberal to believe that the Equal Rights Amendment is unnecessary. "I'm glad the amendment was defeated, because I think the country needs it," he said.

The job layoff at Zelinke's Shoemakers will be a temporary one, he said, because the company is planning to expand its operations. The company has been operating for 20 years in the area and is planning to double its size.

STONY BROOK MAY GET GREEN BUSES IF CDTA MOVES IN

by Lee Ann Fall

The SUNYA green bus may be on the way. CDTA, which operates the Stony Brook bus service, is currently considering the addition of a green bus to its fleet. This comes as a response to the growing demand for environmentally friendly transportation options on campus.

According to CDTA officials, the decision to add a green bus was made after extensive discussions with SUNYA officials and students. The green bus would be equipped with electric or hybrid technology, reducing its carbon footprint and providing a more sustainable transportation option.

The addition of the green bus is expected to enhance the quality of life for SUNYA students and faculty, as well as contribute to the university’s efforts towards sustainability. CDTA is currently in the process of finalizing the details of the new service, including the type of technology to be used and the funding arrangements.

SUNYA students and CDTA officials are optimistic about the potential benefits of the green bus service. They believe it will not only improve the commuting experience but also foster a sense of community and responsibility towards environmental stewardship.

In conclusion, the addition of a green bus to the SUNYA campus is a step towards a more sustainable future. It highlights SUNYA’s commitment to sustainability and reflects the growing recognition of the importance of eco-friendly transportation. As the green bus becomes a reality, it promises to be a significant milestone in the university’s journey towards a greener tomorrow.
Human Sexuality Survey Results

The Survey project was undertaken to determine the attitudes and opinions of students toward human sexuality. It was designed to elicit unbiased opinions from the students and to ensure that all students were addressed. The results will be analyzed and used to improve the overall experience of the students.

The survey included questions on the following topics:

1. Attitudes towards sexuality
2. Knowledge about sexuality
3. Sexual behavior
4. Sexual preferences
5. Sexual satisfaction
6. Sexual problems
7. Sexual education

The survey was anonymous and confidential. All responses were recorded and analyzed to ensure privacy and confidentiality. The results will be used to improve the overall experience of the students.

SECOND THOUGHTS

As Angora, Georgia, man, who had apparently been shot twice about surgery for his benign tumor, last month, had been discharged from hospitals after undergoing surgery and was operated on earlier this week.

The patient, who had been on life support for the past two days, was taken to the hospital by a private ambulance after collapsing at home.

Meanwhile, the hospital said it had been notified of the patient's condition earlier this week.

According to the hospital, the patient was alert and responsive at the time of the incident.

A Unified, Viable Force

by Tim Leibed

The students who are members of a group stemming to meet your fellow-rather than are all of the members in this group show a very different common concerns and problems. You are all students at the same university and meet up in the same four-square mile area. Even if you don't live in that area, you are connected with the other members of the group, both academically and socially. You take the same classes, go to the same dances, shop at the same supermarkets, frequent the same bars, and attend the same sports events. The whole range of common experiences in the course of living day to day is mutual.

Now consider this: You have a thousand people who have been brought together by a common interest or common purpose. You have, for example, a group of journalism students, a group of students interested in the campus community. You have, for example, a group of students interested in student government. Each of these groups meets its common objectives in a very different way, and each of them may be widely different in size. But is this point is a public interest and a public interest function.

If you are an off-campus student from outside the city, you are not in the same situation at the University of Buffalo. There are many students in the Buffalo area, who have a very different interest and common concern. This is the main reason why we must provide an opportunity for organization, in an effective, active role in making the campus that offers our from both university-wide and -wide.

Right now, there is no organization for such an interest or common concern. And for a truly independent community to exist, the political forces that are within the university and the community at large - - - the point is to be politically organized and to be incorporated.

The I Love NY Fall Festival: Magnificent Cold Damp Forty-mite Charcoal Grey Weather

By JERRY MIORENDI
Under a shaded grove in the I Love NY New Festival began what was anticipated to be an exceptional Tuesday in Albion. Everything ended however, in typical Albion cold, rain, wind, and damp. Rough estimates have it that the bad weather kept away half of the expected crowd of 100,000. The people who came to the South Mall Satellites, appeared only somewhat-interested in the various cultural events that were taking place. But of course, if you grew bored of the carnival, you could do the next best thing... eat. There was a wide variety of ethnic food on hand, along with plenty of beer and wine, and displayed in bulbous similar to the art exhibits.

After watching the performances at the place, I headed over to a special program at the Palace Theatre to see a special performance of the Symphony Orchestra. Asisted by members of the State Georgia Opera Company, the performance followed instructions from De Arman. Also mentioned in the all-sources program was the Blue Danube. This program provided suitable fare for the evening event.

The highlight of my evening was getting a shirt, but worst, interview with Danny Thomas. I asked him why he came to the festival to be a part of it. "I came here because it was my big break in New York," explained Thomas. Sometimes you have to work there at four cities before making it. But I did it in New York. However, the start wasn't big enough, so I was unable to appear on the Sullivan show and was very nervous. You could imagine the look on my face when Sullivan announced me as Danny Thomas."

During his performance he told everybody to "speak out about your heritage. Even if you Polish, speak about New York." From the movies of the same name, accompanied by the Rochester Philharmonic under the direction of André Kostelanetz, he played his guitar and sang his own composition "I am". Kostelanetz's performance was highlighted by Thomas's influence in the totally dark palette.

Danny Thomas had a lot to do, including the Rochester Philharmonic performing Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake" in German and English. The ensemble might be a little off tempo, but the public was more than satisfied.

During his performance, Danny Thomas told everybody to "speak out about your heritage. Even if you Polish... "

"Stuff that can be cleaned wid' windex, put together and taken apart by night jants... this is Art!" Rags that snotty little children wipe their running noses on, are plastered to a canvas and that's the meaning of the universe!"

Come here and look at this," he says, motivating me with his hair. We approached a large painting, it's many different colors splashed toward the ceiling like an imaginary pair of copped ends.

"What do you say," he says, "a painting? I said painted." "You think that's Art? I'm garbage," he says, turning away from me with his cigar hand.

"Someone with a foot in society decided it had some artistic value," I added.

"Acoustic value," he says, not listening to me, but looking at the woods on his linten anyway. "Acoustic value! Stuff that can be cleaned with windex, put together and taken apart by night jants... this is Art! Rags that snotty little children wipe their running noses on, are plastered to a canvas, and that's the meaning of the universe!"

I began to laugh as he pointed at a canvas that had been made by them. For as a matter of two, he had drawn a small crowd of half-drunk looking three boys and old women. The old woman thinking he was another show, took their program from their plastic while pocketbooks, and began to look for her Mimosa. The gathering broke up when they waited away from the crowd, looking for a catch. A man in a business suit giddily gave him a light and money. He never giddily knew from him, walking thirty or forty steps opposite the division he came on. He fell into a dale of ecstasy when he lifted a light glow on my elbow.

"Of course," says he, continuing the conversation as if I never talked. "I can pay you one of these interesting little boys here, he's two-hundred and fifty of these. They are fully equipped with a half-note cut in its side, up to my eye. His hands were very deep, and as he grasped the cup, the cracks in his hand started open so that the dirt without the red inside like the mounds of tiny snakes opening."

Don't think the decision doesn't have to do with your dice. Your youth will destroy you, your generation will accuse you, and history will have a good laugh at it all. You die in your mother's arms a long time ago. Old men. We're going to Buxted, or run around in the grassy fields upstart states." He drew on his cigar again, pulling his cheeks in deep around his eyes.

I told him that I had enjoyed meeting him, and that I had to go out and meet some friends. He didn't seem to care so much, accompanied by the Rochester Philharmonic under the direction of André Kostelanetz, he played his guitar and sang his own composition "I am". Kostelanetz's performance was highlighted by Thomas's influence in the totally dark palette.

It was during his performance that the Rochester Philharmonic performed Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake" in German and English. The ensemble might be a little off tempo, but the public was more than satisfied.

I would love to see two musicians take their work as seriously as we do, and how they would everything they had to learn for would still be here forty years from now. And I said to myself that survival doesn't matter, that life would always emerge. That somehow, some way, something magnificent exists and would spectacularly climb in front of a lightning bolt and stand the whole process over again. I told myself that somewhere out there lies the bridge and the truth themselves, their own existences of the thing that could change clay into gold just by being.

The apology

The Editor

In the previous issue, it was noted that Dr. Stearns had asked his students to stop using the male pronoun "he" when referring to themselves, but that he had used it on occasion. This week, Dr. Stearns has written a letter to the editor, apologizing for any confusion or offense caused by this mistake.

Dr. Stearns explains that he had not been aware of the social norms around gender pronouns and that he had not intended any offense. He states that he is committed to learning and understanding these norms and will work to avoid similar mistakes in the future.

The Editor thanks Dr. Stearns for his letter and encourages the community to continue the important conversation around gender identity and pronouns.

Squire ripoff

The Editor

We have received several complaints regarding the Squire Ripoff, a local restaurant that has been accused of overcharging customers. We have contacted the restaurant and are working with them to resolve these issues.

In the meantime, we encourage our readers to be aware of these allegations and to take steps to protect themselves from potential ripoffs. We will continue to monitor the situation and provide updates as necessary.

Rowdy NY Fans Anger Dodgers

New York (AP) "Those people are nuts," Mike Garren, relief pitcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said of the rowdy Yankee Stadium crowd after the Dodgers beat the rival New York Mets 12-8 in a game played in front of a sellout crowd.

"I hope we can win the next time or at least get some heat back on this place. We are getting hot out there. I'll tell you the truth - I was impressed to death," Garren added.

The game came close to turning into a fist shoving in the latter innings with full-bleachers on various times running onto the field and being chased by security officers.

A smoke bomb, which caused a game delay, was issued twice against the field near the NY.

"There were times when the Dodgers were in trouble in a hard hitter had on the previous night, and he went to the batter again complimenting of "sparks down my back and neck."

"They were throwing snow, beer cans, rubber balls and anything they could get their hands on," Bush said. "It was ridiculous."

Yankee Stadium security officers have said that they had been screened for "general admission," as officers carry matches and fire extinguishers.

A construction team began work in the stadium when a large fire was reported early.

Water Polo Team
Losses First Two

by Larry Rush

The Notre Dame water polo team, composed of players from every collegiate program, has been defeated by Yale College.

For most of the game, it was the third game of their schedule after the loss to Notre Dame and the first time the Irish met in the final against the Irish.

They have been working hard to get on the right track after the loss to Notre Dame and are up for a bigger challenge.

The Irish have played some good games, and in the final against the Irish, the game was a close one with both teams having chances. The game ended with a score of 3-2.

Spikers Tournament

The final round of the intramural volleyball tournament, sponsored by Collegetown, will be held on October 25.

The champion volleyball team will receive medals and $50 cash. The remaining 16 teams will receive $50 cash. The tournament will begin at 7 p.m. in the Collegetown gymnasium with the championship game at 8 p.m.

All the games will be played on Thursday night. The games will be played on October 25th.
Remembering the Say-Hey Kid

by Rich Mandeliko

The word "Say-Hey Kid" is not just a nickname that he worked on, it was a working title for the book that it refers to. His work was so well-known that he is still remembered today for his contributions to the sport.

The Say-Hey Kid, who is the subject of the book, was a baseball player who was known for his unique style of play. He was a left-handed pitcher who was known for his ability to throw a curveball with great speed and accuracy. He was also known for his ability to throw a "change-up" pitch that was widely considered to be one of the best in the game.

The Say-Hey Kid was a master of the craft, and he was able to use his unique style of play to help his team win many games. He was a key component of the team's success, and he is still remembered today for his contributions to the sport.

The Say-Hey Kid was a hard worker who was dedicated to his craft. He was always looking for ways to improve his game, and he was willing to put in the extra work to make sure that he was playing at his best. He was a true professional, and he was respected by his teammates and opponents alike.

Even though the Say-Hey Kid is no longer with us, his memory lives on through the stories and anecdotes that are shared about him. He is a true legend of the game, and he will always be remembered as one of the greatest pitchers to ever play the sport.

Danes Look For Fourth Straight At Cortland

By Eddie Lamoreaux

After two weeks off, the Albany State University football team returns to action tomorrow when they travel to Cortland to take on the Red Dragons.

The Great Danes will be looking for their fourth straight victory over the Red Dragons, a feat they accomplished in 2001, 2002 and 2003.

With a win this weekend, the Danes would be 4-0 for the first time since 1998, when they opened the season 4-0.

Against Cortland, the Danes will have a chance to complete a perfect 4-0 regular season for the first time since 2001.

Cortland State has given up an average of 37.8 points per game this season, with losses to Springfield College and Mt. St. Mary’s.

The defense against Cortland, which lost 2-12 in the last two previous games, Larry O’Leary and Steve Hango. O’Leary and Hango are probably the best on the Danes in terms of production.

Mike Forig, the number two receiver for Albany, also won Rookie of the Year honors, as he combined for 834 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Cortland has allowed the most points in the conference, with losses to Springfield College and Mt. St. Mary’s.

Defensive coordinator John Maloney said the Danes had the advantage on defense.

"We have more quality players and we have more experience," said Maloney.

Students and the coaches of the Country Squash (above) are meeting today with squash administrators and CCA representatives.
