LECTURE A SUCCESS

Farrar Welcomed To Capitol District

John Farrar, introduced by Miss Alice Fritter, as editor of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, and author of two recent Broadway successes, is soon to hold a distinguished position with the Doran Publishing Company, delighting his Albany audiences in the auditorium. Farrar's February 7 speech, Mr. Farrar gave helpful advice and suggestions to those who are planning to write plays.

"Playwrights must dare to be original," he said. "Write a play sooner or later, whether you expect to, or not. Children are playwrights by nature, and education only suppresses their innate instinct. It is better to take it to a literary critic at once, and find out that you haven't." Then forget everything about your play. There will be many changes made, but don't mind it. Be wise to find a star and to become acquainted with him. All things are possible, find out what kind of play he wants, and write it. You can take yourself, think through your play, and then write it. What is called 'provinces' is not generally liked by New York—"you can't take your mother to the theatre in New York this year anyway."

"Eugene O'Neill is among the important playwrights," he said. "He is a fascinating, romantic, character, who, like Shakespeare, completely absorbs the problems of the world, takes tragedy into his heart, and, in his masterful way, gives full expression to the findings."

The Dramatic and Art Association is to be highly complimented for affording such an enjoyable entertainment.

STYLE VERSUS BRAINS

College styles and college slang have aroused a great deal of comment lately. Some people are even so foolish as to believe that bell-bottom trousers and brim can not possibly be found in connection with the same individual. Certain it is however that yellow slickers, bell-bottoms, felt hats and flannel shirts are regarded by co-eds with almost as much respect as intelligence. Although in the business world they may brand the donor of such accouterments, those who confuse their brains in college classes; to the college world they are big items. College slang too, seems to have gained unnoticed repute. College slang, it seems, although superior to street vernacular, nevertheless must be rated as high-grade slang. Even college professors, according to general reports, are occasionally caught in its meshes in their efforts to be ultra-modern.

We admit we are proud of our style; we are too, we are guilty of a college slang. If we are extreme among college slang, we would remind critics that there are always extreme dressers or extreme tailors, we have no reason to believe that college slang is charged with over-emphasizing dress and under-emphasizing intelligence and good nature, and we are not unmindfully and ignore the charge; for down in our hearts we all feel sure we are capable of estimating real worth and willing to pay homage to it.

Next Tuesday, Dr. John Henry will address the Y. W. meeting on the work of the church. Dr. Henry is pastor of the Church of All Nations, New York City.

The faculty, too, came in for his share of praise. In closing, he says: "We have undergone a minor operation. The New York State College for Teachers may rest assured that she stands with the best."

SLEIGH RIDE A SUCCESS

A large number turned out for the College Sleigh Sled Ride, February 7. The sleigh ride left college about seven o'clock and after traveling out the Country Club for a couple of hours, returned to Albany and unloaded at Miss Johnston's house, Bert Zajan, Don Hoyt, and Don Lashler played for dancing. One of the features of the evening was "The Clyde," a new dance step as exhibited by Professors Emory and Wilson. This step made a decided hit on its first appearance at State and bids fair to become very popular during the next few months. Crossword puzzles engaged many for a time, but toward the end of the evening all gave their undivided attention to the sandwiches and hot chocolate which began to appear in huge quantities. The evening was concluded by a practical demonstration of home-making in the kitchen.

At the next meeting of the Citizen Society, February 18, a demonstration of first aid is to be given.

EXTENSION COURSES

Sir Philip Gibbs, war correspondent par excellence, has begun a series of copyrighted articles in a national weekly, the first of which almost defined Mr. Risley's remarks of half a year ago.

FRI<DAY, the thirteenth, is the date for the sophomore source. As one's point of view directs, this may be an occasion for one's own or his classmates' reference to either 27 or 28. The men of the latter class although unavowed are expected to attend the dance.

With regards to the invariable incident of a few years ago, which occasioned entry of hundreds led by Sophomores and Freshmen to a midnight sortie into Baker County, a subsequent call for police to attend and there, and later an unsuccessful call upon a train at College point by the hours of the hour.

March 7th is another date of interest to State, for it marks the beginning of the college's entrance into its "special collegiate girls' basketball." The Purple and White made its debut about a year ago that time in a game with Russell Sage College of Troy, 42 to 32. This year the game will be at Troy.

CHEMISTRY and characterization were linked closely by Professor Bronson in a popular lecture to the assembled students. Recently, chemistry, he averred, determines whether we are long or short, whether we are square headed, nervous or placid, radical or conservative; in short, normal or abnormal.
an untenable situation, and a most appropriate characterization of the deadening,' says Dr. I'rubacber, referring to the ignorance of the indifference arising from the absence of public appropriation. The advance is not for adequate appropriation. The status quo here has been declared that overcrowding has come to a point where it is extremely necessary for action. The gymnasium is built and all departments are crowded.

"State College is doing great work and it should continue to do so," says Dr. I'rubacber. His statistics that he has a case for political expediency, continuing;

"For three years the number of students exceed the capacity of the college. There is room for 750 and there are 1,000 students. As a result, the buildings are overcrowded and the capacity of the college is being exceeded by fifty per cent. The appearance and facilities of the college are crowded past all reason. The state has bond ready for a new building and has already appropriated some money to begin work on such a building. Common sense and good judgment would dictate compliance with the obvious demands of the situation. There is a matter that touches, potentially, every child of the state for another generation. Will it be allowed to take its course or is something to be done?"

"And it appears from Dr. Brunner's statistics that he has a case which will support Senator Byron's bill for adequate appropriation. The
