WHY NOT "RICHARDSON HALL?"

The renaming of the so-called "Richards Hall" is a problem brought to the forecourt by the announcement that the State Home Economics department is to be absent from the site. The new building, scheduled for construction in 1929, will provide a new home for the department and will also house the Home Economics Laboratory. This laboratory, located in Richards Hall, has been severely criticized by students, faculty, and others for its inadequate facilities and inadequate space. The new building is expected to alleviate these problems.
