PROFESSOR PRESIDES AT TUMULTUOUS TRIAL

“Rebel vs. Royalists Is Topic Of Case

Professor Charles F. Dexter presides at Tumultuous Trial, as Rebel and Royalists are divided in their opinions of the case. The Rebel, played by Mr. Smith, stated his case with force and precision, while the Royalist, played by Mr. Jones, countered with equally strong arguments. The trial was a heated debate, with both sides employing eloquent and persuasive language to convince the judge of their respective points. The trial concluded with a verdict in favor of the Rebel, who was thus declared the winner of the debate. However, the case promises to be a very tumultuous trial, with both sides promising to appeal the decision and continue the battle in the court of public opinion. The details of the case have not yet been announced, but will be revealed in the next issue of the State College News. Meanwhile, the debate team will meet a team from St. Lawrence University, at Oxford, on November 12, starting a new season of intense competition.
