History Prof Egolsten: State's 'Mrs. Baseball' by Dan O'Sullivan

It has been traditional in the United States that the President throw out the first ball to open the major league baseball season. Here at State, however, this honor has gone, over the last ten years, to Mrs. Martha Egleston, who lives in North Adams. Mrs. Egleston, who has been interested in baseball all her life, is the principal of the high school, where she has taught for the past twenty-five years. Mrs. Egleston said she was given the honor, because she loves baseball so much, she regards it as her favorite sport. When she was asked why she likes baseball so much, she replied, "Because it offers a chance for individuals to play their own game, without much control he could be a fine pitcher." Mrs. Egleston is the most prominent pro ball player she has ever seen at any school. She is also the principal of the high school, where she has taught for the past twenty-five years. Mrs. Egleston said she was given the honor, because she loves baseball so much, she regards it as her favorite sport.

Marquis DeSade's Writings Reflect A Philosophy of Sadistic Freedom

By Larry Spivak

Nearly every college student is a member of the generation that grew up with William Burroughs and the Beat generation. The Beat generation, as William Burroughs explains in "The Hawk's Nest," was a philosophy of sadism that reflected the 20th century's obsession with sex.

"The Hawk's Nest" is the story of a man who is forced to kill his wife and the son he has fathered with her. The novel is about the sadistic, violent, and, at times, humorous world of the Beat generation.

"The Hawk's Nest" is a work of fiction, but it is based on the experiences of William Burroughs and his wife. The novel is also a reflection of the sadistic nature of the modern world.

We had the opportunity last Wednesday to watch and evaluate the first baseball and tennis teams, as both squads saw action against Hudson Valley Community College. Result of our observations: a dominating, unmatched, nutty advantage.

The Dutch baseballers were left seated by a truly outstanding HVCC team, 11-1. The HVCC team has beaten the Dutch varsity by a 9-3. That point varietal is anticipating trouble from their HVCC just didn’t have the pitching and hitting (partly to lack of sufficient pre-season practices) to cope with the offensive and defensive power of the two-year school. If this game can be of any value at all, it is to point out how tough a season the first HVCC side faces. Dutch players like Gordie Cammack, Don Pizzini, Jim Gurney, and Joe Gerken displayed definite potential and defensive power of the two-year school. We are no longer just a Dutch League."
