Gentle Thurs. Strummed In, Twanged Out

"Twa Gentle, and the melody so plaintively on the strings, as if..."

This gentle Thursday started on a note of promise. A guitar was strummed and sang on once more.

The student was an engaging event, and still more engaging was the idea that he would have a chance to talk with Mr. Gent and Mr. Thurs. about their music and plans for the coming school year.

Expansion Planned For Math, Sciences

Major expansion of the guided-research program is expected. Development and implementation of the program will be especially encouraged in the areas of the physical sciences, mathematics, and biological sciences. It is expected that the program will be started by the beginning of the next academic year.

The physics and chemistry departments will be at the forefront of the development of the program. The department of biology is also expected to be involved in the program.

Controlling Opinion Topic Of Former Government Spy

American Business Professor, an ex-CIA agent, will present his views at SUNY Albany on Monday, May 13. The presentation will be held in the University Union ballroom.

Dr. John E. Wheeler, former CIA agent and current professor at SUNY Albany, will discuss the role of the CIA in government and the impact of its activities on society.

The presentation is sponsored by the University Union and is open to the public.

State Fair Successful, Visitors Crowd Grounds

State Fair, which was held in Albany, NY, on May 18, was a success. The fair was attended by thousands of visitors who enjoyed the various exhibitions and attractions.

The fair, which featured a variety of exhibits, attracted a large crowd. Among the highlights were the agricultural displays, the livestock shows, and the food courts.

The fair concluded on May 20 with a fireworks display and a concert featuring the band "The Eagles." The fair was widely praised for its organization and its focus on community engagement.

Help Needed For Frog Program

The state Department of Environmental Conservation is seeking help for their frog program. They are looking for volunteers to help with the program's various activities.

The program focuses on the conservation and protection of frogs. Volunteers are needed to assist with research, monitoring, and education activities.

Those interested in volunteering are encouraged to contact the Department of Environmental Conservation for more information.

Albany Housing Survey - Progress Report Given

Some of the results of the survey at Albany Housing Council, Inc. and Stewarts, a group being done at the Urban Center, were published at a meeting of the Committee to Study Housing Wednesday night.

Progress reports were given by several students who have been studying various aspects of housing. While most of the on-site house groups will not be able to speak in the Albany area as described in the study, they have been able to keep the committee informed.

It must be stressed that the committee is not affiliated with the student group. A letter stating that the student group is working to offer their services to the city was signed by one of the Stewarts, but it is not necessarily a Stewarts. There have been many instances in which the student group has been to meet with them.

As its third year in existence draws to a close, it seems that the Student Association has finally found a non-financial function for itself in the University Community. Up until the beginning of the 1965 Council, the legislation of important student issues was either ignored or left to the discretion of those in charge. While the following reorganize students who join the S.A. to constitute representatives, others might have a say in the decision-making process of the University as a whole.

The reconstruction of the Association's legislative bodies is not only a significant step in the direction of constructive self-government, but it also shows that the University has begun to recognize the growing importance of students in the decision-making process. The new bodies will enable students to participate more effectively in the formulation of policies that affect them. The S.A. can now be a vehicle for the expression of student opinions and concerns, and it can serve as a forum for the resolution of conflicts and the promotion of understanding.

As a result, the S.A. has become an important part of the University community, and it is essential that its members continue to work towards the goal of a more democratic and participatory system of governance. The new bodies will provide a platform for students to voice their concerns and express their opinions, and they will also enable the University to take into account the views and perspectives of its students.

Muck and Chaff

By Jack Savich

There's been a lot of talk about the "Muck and Chaff" column in the Albany Student Press, and I think it's time to set the record straight. The column was started as a way to give students a voice in the editorial process, and it has been a success so far. The columnists have written about a variety of topics, from student issues to current events, and their writing has been both informative and thought-provoking.

The column has also been a platform for students to express their opinions and to hold the University accountable. The columnists have written about a variety of issues, from the university's policies and procedures to the condition of the facilities. They have also written about the university's administration, and they have called for greater transparency and accountability.

In short, the "Muck and Chaff" column has been a valuable addition to the Albany Student Press, and it has helped to give students a voice in the editorial process. I encourage all students to read the column and to participate in the discussion. The column is a forum for students to express their opinions and to hold the University accountable, and it is an essential part of the student voice in the University community.

View From The Behind

By ROSS Goodwin

The current flurry of student activity on the campus is quite interesting. It seems that students are eager to be involved in the decision-making process of the University, and they are doing so by organizing and participating in various activities. The student government is holding meetings, and the student body is expressing their opinions through the media.

I think it's important for students to be involved in the decision-making process of the University, as it is their responsibility to be informed and to participate in the shaping of the campus. The University leadership should be open to student input and should be responsive to student concerns. The student government should be a platform for students to express their opinions and to hold the University accountable, and it is essential that students participate in this process.

In conclusion, the current flurry of student activity on the campus is quite interesting, and it seems that students are eager to be involved in the decision-making process of the University. Review Of The New Right Wing

By Ray Bestow

I attended the mouth of the Albany Student Press, and I found it to be a very interesting and thought-provoking article. The writer, Ray Bestow, is an expert on the subject, and his knowledge and insights were evident throughout the article.

The article was well-researched and well-written, and it provided a comprehensive overview of the new right-wing movement. The writer covered a wide range of topics, from the political and social implications of the movement to the economic and cultural factors that have contributed to its rise.

In conclusion, the article was a valuable contribution to the understanding of the new right-wing movement, and it is a must-read for anyone interested in this topic. Since this will be my last column as sports editor, I feel that a general overview of sports here at Albany is in order. It seems that the Athletic Department, under Dr. Werner's capable direction, has made tremendous strides this year. The addition of four new clubs in one year is a sure sign that the sports program is developing at a rate that will complement the continued growth in stature of the University, as an academic institution.

Of the four new sports, only track and field is not entirely new. Last year the club had only field events. However, the addition of Coach Kelly has allowed this club to develop and, the club's performance this season certainly points toward varsity status in the near future. Other sports initiated this year were swimming, sailing and lacrosse. All showed promise, but it was lacrosse that really caught on. Coach Morgan and Silvey have put together an excellent squad, one that may finish undefeated. And judging from the crowds the sport has attracted, lacrosse may very well become the university's number one outdoor spectator sport. Number one until football that is; for another important development this year was the University Athletics Council's report, which called for the establishment of a football club, to be in the fall of '69. Football has been a long, long time in coming, and I would sincerely hope that this tentative date will be met.

New sports are not the only indication of improvement, however, for the established varsity sports must also develop and improve. The varsity teams have had mixed results this year; but where we were successful, we were very successful. In sports like cross-country and baseball, it seems that Albany is really making a name for itself, and from all indications there will be no let-down in either of these sports in the near future. The cross-country team made excellent showings in the Lebanon and Albany invitations, and generally outclassed most of its small college opposition.

Next year Colgate will be on the schedule, and other big schools are sure to follow. The basketball team has also had its troubles, and here too the extra work is sure to help. And if this year's record can be repeated people just have to say this sort of performance has to be impressive, but with the loss of some All-Stars in 1968, their status in the near future seems to be in question. The club's excellent squad, one that may finish undefeated. And being charged with the loss. The Sciannino game was started, 5-4 came in the second inning, slipping out Albany's three-run lead.

Another innovation, which certainly will not hurt is the introduction of fall baseball, and spring soccer. The soccer team was not too successful this year, but with a spring warm-up and conditioning period, they should be much stronger next year. The baseball team also has had its troubles, and here too the extra work is sure to help.

Summer Employment
