Spring has come to the Albany State campus and with it, the annual contests for Student Association President, Vice-President, Central Council, University Senate, and Class Officers. The polls open tomorrow and students have until Friday to cast their ballots.

A complete list of candidates is on Page Two.

Presidential candidate profiles are in the centerfold.

And the ASP endorsements for president and vice-president are on Page Six.

Don’t forget to vote...
These are tentative lists of candidates, pending confirmation of status.

People's Party" Organizes for Elections

A group of students calling themselves the "People's Party" has recently been organized to bring forth a new wave of student activity in the upcoming Student Association Elections for the Fall Semester. The party, which has been established to counter the traditional "WSUA" party, is made up of students who are concerned with the "above suspicion" of political parties, and their potential for manipulating the student vote. The party plans to challenge the traditional WSUA party in the upcoming elections, calling for a "social change" in the Student Association elections.

Scholar Incentive Changes Urged

The Student Incentive Program, which was introduced last spring, has been met with mixed reactions from students. While some students have praised the program for its potential to promote academic achievement, others have criticized it for its lack of effectiveness. The program offers financial incentives to students who achieve certain academic milestones, such as maintaining a certain GPA or enrolling in a certain number of classes.

Register to Vote!

This year is an important one for both the state and the nation. It is a year of national elections, and a year of great change in the world. This year, the Student Association Office is encouraging all students to register to vote, so that their voices can be heard in the upcoming elections. The Student Association Office is also hosting a registration drive on campus, so that students can register to vote on site.

APPLICATONS FOR WAIVERS

of the Student Activities Assessment for the Fall Semester are now available in the Student Office Association Office, CC 346.

Applications must be returned to the Student Association Office by September 22.
Police and Dogs on B.U. Students

We are just two Boston University students who wish to inform you of a strange incident that occurred here yesterday. Yesterday, at 8:00 p.m. or so, we were on the way to our English class, and we were standing in the second floor of the Agassiz building when we heard a commotion on the first floor. We peeked into the hallway and saw a crowd of police officers. They were dragging in a young man, who appeared to be under arrest, and we thought, "What is going on?"

The police had explained that the student was on campus for the purpose of demonstrating. The administration had obtained a court order to have him removed. We asked the police if they had evidence of student wrongdoing against the student. The police said no.

We would like to thank the administration for informing us of this incident. We also would like to thank the police for their help.

A decision was made, and a threatened return of university complicity in the war culminating in the bombing of new pass and unlawful assembly. One were charged with criminal trespass from coming on campus to re-
1. Why do you feel that you are qualified to be Student Association President? I feel that my past experience and background are relevant in the Student Association. I have been involved in Student Association in various capacities and have had the opportunity to work with different groups and individuals.

2. State your position on mandatory vs. voluntary student tax with a brief rationale.
   - I favor a voluntary student tax. A voluntary tax would have a good chance of succeeding. As I introduced the amendment calling for a tax referendum next spring, if I am elected, the Student Association will prepare two packages, with a brief rationale and a voluntary tax with a brief rationale.

3. What suggestions can you offer to get more students involved in Student Association and what specific measures can you suggest to promote the university community and student activity? The Student Association has a duty to be aware of the needs of the students and the university community. We need to make the Student Association more involved in the university community. We need to make the Student Association a vehicle for change and a means of expressing the needs of the students.

4. What do you feel the role of Student Association President should be in relation to the students? to the university community? to the local community? In relation to the students, we will be servants to the bitter end. We will try to establish a radio program in W.S.U.A., which will have a direct line for question and answer periods. This program would be on the air weekly.

5. What suggestions can you offer to make the Student Association more involved in the Student Association and what specific measures can you suggest to promotes the university community and student activity? We will make a systematic effort to involve the Student Association in various capacities and have had the opportunity to work with different groups and individuals.

I don't like the pictures of the "bad" included with the senior pictures. I truly do understand what you're trying to say with this book. And, I am not proud of all the problems of this world. However, my college years have been a time of happiness. If little more as needed to raise people up, you don't expect flowers such as this should ENCOURAGE because they will last a long time and be passed down to future generations! Even people something at VALIPO it causes to my mind while looking through this book of pictures is absurd and preposterous. Yes, you communicated - how ridiculous and useless a yearbook can be. How about the Viet Nam tragedy. Repetition can be effective if it's not overdone, but society. I hope my name appears in the next year's book as its Pres. I, (the Pres.) had to get a good cartoonist but he's not the only campus member. Too many all work pages with white printing. The quote and the story of what's happened here were well written. The Gay Liberation interview was interesting, funny at times and very enlightening. The two color shots of two GAY brothers shocked my PARENTS hell to hell. GOOD TRY - some humor. Especially, as I said, the senior section sucks!

Just a note to say the yearbook is phenomenally terrific... communicative, abusive, moving, shocking, in poor taste, and just beautiful.

The book was (GREAT, GOOD, NICE, O.K., SHIT.......)
Before the Binghamton Coffeehouse, they weren't as comfortable as they are in February, but they still got the audience dancing. There's still good, honest, folk-oriented music and the night was worth the hassle.

And then, Dick. The sound was a bit rougher; Dick's got what amounts to an anti-personal stage (for makes a number in a somewhat good-natured manner and his sound man was having lots of trouble with the SUNYA recording equipment). Nevertheless he turned up the acoustic guitar into the Feedback, and Dick started to tell a real story with the audience, and all was well.

The man's a fantastic guitarist, and a truly weird singer. His voice was well. We have rapport with the audience, and all was well. The sound got straightened out and cracking sounds from the sound system-whenever he turned his back on the audience. His second act, a somewhat graceless manner) and the broader repertoire will be played at the SUNYA's final show of the season, April 28th.

The show will be rescheduled for Saturday, May 5th, due to the show's success. The audience's enthusiasm was a major factor in the decision to reschedule the show. The show will be presented in the PAC Main Stage at 8:00 PM, in Albany City and Capital District.

1971-72 Again

by Dean Ann Moody

1971-72. What was the year that they did the revolution change in those twelve short months? It may sound a bit of a redundant question on the part of the last year, the year of "The Fall." Some were killed, others injured, and phone numbers for student unions were disconnected, all in what little student protest. Yes, there was a "clash" in front of SUNY Central Office to protest the tuition increase, but not some 15,000 breakfast students, fewer than 50 thought it was important enough to attend. One anecdote was reported, however, that left many in awe.

The student body was said to have been divided. Only a small handful of students chose to protest in front of the President's office in Albany. Asked of some 15,000 enrollees, fewer than 50 thought it was important enough to attend. One anecdote was reported, however, that left many in awe.

The vast majority was said to have been divided. Only a small handful of students chose to protest in front of the President's office in Albany. Asked of some 15,000 enrollees, fewer than 50 thought it was important enough to attend. One anecdote was reported, however, that left many in awe.

Nixon's Decision Brings National and World Criticism

Chronology of Events

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move sure to touch off new North Vietnamese attacks, President Nixon announced today the mining of the waters of North Vietnam to block delivery of supplies. He offered the mining as an "appropriate measure within the framework of the internal and claimed territorial waters of North Vietnam."

The U.S. Command in Saigon has advised the President that Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces have increased their activity in all areas in the Saigon region. The President has been advised that North Vietnamese military movements in the Saigon region will increase if飝he mining of the waters of North Vietnam continues to prevent the delivery of supplies to that area.

The President, in a statement giving the reasons for the mining, said: "The mining of the waters of North Vietnam was planned as an appropriate measure within the framework of the internal and claimed territorial waters of North Vietnam."

Two Opposing Views on Nixon

By Mitchell Frost

Analyzing the Situation

A month after the Nixon offensive in Vietnam was launched, even though Nixon had been meeting with considerable opposition and criticism, it was apparent that he was determined to carry on his war against North Vietnam. The President's decision to escalate the war was met with mixed reactions from the American public. Some agreed with his aggressive stance, while others were concerned about the long-term consequences.

The Americans' Perspective

The American government was divided on the issue. Some believed that the war was necessary for the defense of South Vietnam, while others argued that it was a failure and should be ended. The main argument was whether the U.S. should continue with its military strategy or move towards a diplomatic solution.

The Russians' Perspective

The Russian government was also divided on the issue. Some believed that Nkom's offensive was a mistake, while others argued that it was necessary to show the U.S. that it could not dictate terms to the Soviet bloc. The main argument was whether the U.S. should continue with its military strategy or move towards a diplomatic solution.

Conclusion

The debate over the war in Vietnam continued, with both sides presenting strong arguments for their positions. The outcome of the war would have significant implications for the future of the world and the balance of power.

SUNY STUDENTS PROTEST

About 150 persons gathered in the Campus Center at 5 p.m. yesterday to protest against the U.S. invasion of Cambodia. After a short talk, the crowd marched toward the lake, crossing the bridge over the lake and into the middle of the lake, where they broke up into smaller groups and turned their backs to the lake.

The protest was organized by at least 200 members of the Students for a Democratic Society, who gathered at the Student Senate Building at 1:45 p.m. to plan the protest. The protest was aimed at the invasion of Cambodia, which the protesters say is a violation of international law.

They were dropped off by a bus and then walked into the lake on a bridge. They turned their backs to the lake and chanted slogans. Later, they marched around the lake and back to the Campus Center.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was speaking at the Lake George convention last night. He said that the U.S. invasion of Cambodia was necessary to stop the Viet Cong from gaining strength.

But the protesters said that the invasion only serves to strengthen the Viet Cong, and that the U.S. should be trying to negotiate a peaceful solution to the war.

They said that the invasion is a violation of international law and that it is a form of aggression.

It was raining, but the protesters continued with their demonstration. They chanted slogans and held up signs that said, "Stop the War!" and "End the War!"

They also sang songs and played music to mobilize the crowd.

The protest lasted for about an hour and a half. It was peaceful, with no violence or damage.

The protesters said that they will continue to protest against the U.S. invasion of Cambodia and that they will not stop until peace is achieved.

They said that they are not interested in negotiating with the U.S. government, but rather, they want to force the U.S. to withdraw from Cambodia.
